THIS WEEK'S BIBLE THOUGHT

PEACE AND TRUTH: Thus saith the Lord. Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not. Behold, I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth.—Jeremiah 33: 2, 3, 6.

WILL ROGERS WILL BE AT HOME WITH THEM

Charles M. Russell died before his book "Trails Plowed Under," was published. Will Rogers wrote the introduction to the book in the form of a letter to his friend who had passed on. This oft quoted letter has brought tears to many eyes since Will Rogers died. It is in part as follows:

"There aint much news here to tell you. You know the big Boss gent sent a hand over and got you so quick Charley. But I guess he needed a good man pretty bad. I hear they been working short handed over there pretty much all the time. I guess its hard for him to get hold of good men, they are just getting scarce everywhere.

"I bet you hadn't been up there three days until you had out your old pencil and was a drawing something funny about some of those old punchers. I bet you Mark Twain and old Bill Nye, and Whitcomb Riley and a whole bunch of those old joshers was just a waiting for you to pop in with all the latest ones. What kind of a bird is Washington and Jefferson? I bet they are regular fellows when you meet 'em, aint they? Most big men are. I would like to see the bunch that is gathered around you the first time you tell the one about putting the limburger cheese in the old nestors whiskers. Dont tell that Charley until you get Lincoln around you, he would love that, I bet you and him kinder throw in together when you get well acquainted. Darn it, when I get to thinking about all them top hands up there, if I could just hold a horse wrangling job with 'em, I wouldn't mind following that wagon myself.

"You will run onto my old dad up there Charley, for he was a real cowhand and I bet he is running a wagon, and you will pop into some well kept ranch house over under some cool shady trees and you will be asked to have dinner, and it will be the best one you ever had in your life. Well, when you are a thanking the women folks, you just tell the sweet looking little old lady that you know her boy back on an outfit you used to rep for, and tell the daughters that you knew their brother, and if you see a cute little rascal running around there kiss him for me. Well, cant write you any more Charley dam papers all wet, it must be raining in this old bunk house.

"Of course we are all just hanging on here as long as we can. I don't know why we hated to go, we know its better there. Maybe its because we havent done anything that will live after we are gone.
"From your old friend
WILL."

Hens Need Good Care In Summer

The productivity of laying hens in fall and winter depends a great deal upon the care and management given the poultry flock during the latter part of the summer.

Good egg prices are expected for the rest of the year, says C. J. Maupin, extension poultryman at State College, and it will pay the flock owners to bring their hens into laying under favorable conditions.

He recommends that the birds be given good feeding, a clean range, plenty of clean fresh water, and a clean comfortable house or shelter.

By keeping the birds healthy and getting them to put on as much fat and body weight as they can, they can be brought into lay with a reserve of flesh and energy to meet the demands of the laying season.

Sexual maturity should be delayed in order to give the birds a chance to put on weight before starting to lay. Do not give early hatched pullets a feed high in protein. Avoid mouldy or chaffy feeds, or such material as corn ground with the cobs.

If the birds fail to grow well, examine them for internal and external parasites, Maupin says. If mites or lice are found, clean the roosting quarters and treat the birds at once. For round worms or tapeworms, give the pullets a reliable worm treatment.

Find a good feed and stick to it, Maupin recommends, unless there is a good reason for changing. Poultrymen often lose money by switching from one brand to another.

Remove the old birds from the winter quarters. Scrub the floor and the fixture and expose everything possible to the sun; then let the house stand vacant until well dried. Use disinfectants liberally.

E. C. Blair, extension agronomist at State College, reports a great deal of interest in the farmers' tours he is conducting in various counties. In each of the counties the farmers study farming practices of their neighbors.

State College Gets Large Forest Tract

An 84,000-acre tract of woodland in Jones and Onslow Counties has been acquired by the State College department of forestry to be used by the students in connection with their class work.

During the school year the forestry classes will do periodic work on this property, and in summer a full six-weeks course will be offered, according to J. V. Hofmann, director of the forestry department.

The students will make special studies of the growth and development of trees and will gain first hand experience in the care and management of forests.

The property will also be used as a demonstration to show the public how forest lands should be managed and what improvements can be made through proper management. Timber will be cut from the area to demonstrate approved methods of timber harvesting.

The cut timber will be sold and payments on the property will be made from the revenue brought in from such sales, Hofmann stated. The title to the land, however, will be held by a non-profit corporation for the sole use of the forestry department at State College.

The State is cooperating with the college in providing fire protection for the timber tract. A number of fire wardens have been appointed to check any fires which may break out. They also serve as game wardens to prevent unlawful hunting or abuse of the game on the tract.

A CCC camp is now on the property, and the boys are constructing roads, building fire towers, and otherwise improving the area. Another CCC camp will be located there on October 1, Hofmann said.

Soil Surveys Aid Farming Programs

Data gathered in soil surveys of North Carolina is being used as a basis for the land-planning program and the AAA crop adjustment programs in this State.

Such data is essential to the preparation of sound land use programs and in making recommendations regarding crop and livestock production, said C. B. Williams, head of the agronomy department of the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station.

With the information gathered, the agronomy department has made maps showing the various soil types in the State, their location, characteristics, and adaptations to different crops.

The department has also shown what varieties of the different crops are best suited to different soils and what fertilizers should be applied to give the best results.

"By enabling the farmers to determine which crops are best adapted to their land," Professor Williams pointed out, "we are trying to help them secure the most profitable returns from their farming operations."

The work of surveying the State has been under way since 1902, with the experiment station, the State Department of Agriculture, and the U. S. Department of Agriculture cooperating in the project. So far, 85 per cent of the land in the State has been
