THIS WEEK'S BIBLE THOUGHT

MAKE YOUR CHOICE: Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal. For where your treasure is there will your heart be also.—Matthew 6:19-21.

BACK OFFICERS FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

Give Judge Oakey a hand! There is a lot of criticism because the laws are not enforced. It must in fairness be admitted that much of the criticism is justified. Law enforcement officers are deplorably lax in their duties.

But there is at least one law enforcement officer in Perquimans County who has the courage of his convictions. That man is Walter H. Oakey, Jr.

Judge Oakey made the statement in his court some weeks ago that, after considerable reflection he had decided that, in order to do what he believed to be his duty in helping to prevent so much slaughter on the highways, any man convicted in his court of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor must serve a jail term. He stated at the time that no exceptions would be made, no matter who the convicted person might be, even if it should be his own brother.

Judge Oakey has stood by this decision and has sentenced five men to jail for driving automobiles while drunk. It happens that several of these offenders are otherwise law-abiding citizens, men with good reputations and from good families. It is obviously hard for Judge Oakey to send these men to jail.

Last week it became Judge Oakey's unpleasant duty to find a personal friend and a fellow practitioner at the bar in contempt of court because of the young prosecuting attorney's repeated appearance in court while under the influence of liquor and to forbid him the privilege of acting as prosecuting attorney.

That the thoughtful people of the county approve Judge Oakey's stand with reference to law enforcement is hardly to be denied. Such approval on the part of the right-thinking element of the public is only natural.

But that few of the people of the community have sufficient interest in the betterment of the conditions they criticize to make known their attitude was evident when Judge Oakey in addressing the members of the Hertford Woman's Club on Monday, stated that he felt discouraged because he had received so many requests that certain men convicted in his court of drunken driving be spared the serving of the jail sentence imposed.

We have been criticizing the situation as it has existed in Perquimans. We had a right to criticize. But one law enforcing officer is taking very drastic steps to render law enforcement. His efforts should be encouraged.

If we have been dissatisfied with conditions as they have existed, and if we are in earnest about this business of respect for law and order, and if we have any interest in the improvement of these conditions, we

HIT OR MISS

The first letter to Santa Claus to find its way into The Perquimans Weekly office this year arrived on Monday, and a fine letter it is. This is what the writer says:

Dear Santa Claus: Christmas will soon be here, so I will tell you what I want. Please bring me a bicycle, and lots of good things to eat. Please be in Elizabeth City the day before Christmas. I think I will be there. I want to see you for my first time. There are many reasons for wanting to see you. I love you although I haven't ever seen you.

Lots of love,
HORACE BOYCE, 4th Grade.
There is just one thing, wrong with that letter. It is a pity, I think, for Horace to ask Santa Claus to be in Elizabeth City, because if Horace will stay in Hertford he will probably see Santa Claus and Santa Claus would not have to go to all that trouble of making the long trip to Elizabeth City.

The Hertford merchants are preparing to help old Santa Claus out by having on hand lots of fine toys and good things such as Santa Claus deals in, and it might be a fine idea for the children to write to Santa Claus and ask him to be in Hertford that day. Maybe one of the merchants could arrange to have the good old Saint come here for a short time just to meet Horace and the other Perquimans children who are sure to want to see him.

Farm Emergency Period Near Close

The emergency period in agriculture is drawing to a close, and farmers are nearing the cross roads where they must choose between individualism and cooperation.

The choice is up to the farmers themselves, said E. W. Gaither, district farm agent at State College.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration is willing with a program of cooperation, he continued, but it has no desire to force upon farmers any program they do not want.

Both individualism and cooperation have their advantages and disadvantages, Gaither pointed out. The question is under which policy will there be the most advantages and the fewest disadvantages.

Under the old individualistic system, each farmer is relatively free to produce as much as he can of any crop that will grow on his farm. Likewise, he is free to sell his products to whomever will buy, and for whatever he can get.

But with millions of farmers following the same policy, Gaither asked, will they be able to sell all their production? Will they be able to secure good prices for their commodities?

Production in this country can easily outstrip all local demand, he stated, and foreign countries are not buying at the American surpluses like they used to.

Under a cooperative program, each farmer is asked to consider the welfare of his fellows, but at the same time they are considering his welfare. All are working together.

By adjusting production to demand, each can be reasonably sure of receiving a fair price for his products. Cut-throat competition is to some extent eliminated.

A well managed program of cooperation also encourages balanced farming, crop rotation, and living at home, Gaither observed.
