Getting a Job and Getting Ahead

Difficulties Provide the Opportunities for Success

A PROMINENT business executive has said that if he had to name the one quality most essential for success in business, he would say that it is the ability to find genuine pleasure in overcoming difficulties. A tendency to shrink from or avoid difficulties can be a wellnigh fatal handicap to the young man starting his business career.

Every responsible job in every line of work presents its difficulties. The more responsible and better paid the job, the more it abounds with them. It is this very fact that accounts for the fascination of business, and that assures the man successful in overcoming difficulties an ample reward for his labors. It is safe to say that the size of an individual's earnings is an accurate measurement of the number of difficult situations he must deal with in the course of a day's work.

There are millions of people who can fill the routine jobs which business provides. Their reward is the reward the rank and file always receives. The opportunities for success lie in doing the difficult jobs. The man who finds himself in a job where there do not seem to be any difficulties can be sure there is no future in that job for him.

If your goal is a successful business career, you cannot do better than hunt for difficulties. Never try to avoid them or pass them on for someone else to worry about. Learn to discover and cope with them better than the men around you, and your success is assured.
