What Has Gorn Berone:

Eddie Pink, owner of a cleaning and pressing establishment in a college town, is the butt of all the students practical jokes. Only Butch Carson, one of the students, with more brown than brains, has faith in Eddie. Eddie is secretly in love with Joyce Lennox, night club entertainer, and determined to get somewhere in the world. To this end, he subscribes to a correspond-WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: he subscribes to a correspondence course on how to become strong and fearless and a leader of men. Meanwhile, Butch Carson's mother, owner of an amusement park, is having trouble with slot machine racke-

MASTER OF MEN

Chapter II

Thanks to Eddie Pink's ingenui-ty and the confusion of the profes-sors, Butch Carson finally won the coveted sheepskin. His mother and Claribel came to the commencement exercises. Claribel was disposed to be facetious about Butch's stalled in his office as manager of Dreamland Park, but in a daze because of a trip he had taken to New York with Butch to celebrate his new position. There they had gone to the Club Lido where Joyce Lennox was entertaining. Eddie was still numb from his experience of having seen Joyce.

Claribel, installed as his secretary, came into the office to take notes. Eddie, waking from his reverie struck a managerial pose.

"As I was saying," he said, "managing an amusement park is . . ."

Claribel interrupted; You gonna tell me—Claribel Higg—who was born under a scenie railway; me that cut my teeth on a brass ring from a merry-go-round! Mistermy family have been concessionaires since Coney Island was a wigwam. Now, go ahead—tell me something!"

"This is neither the time nor the thing!"

"This is neither the time nor the place for speeches. I have work to do, a task to perform!" said Eddie,

do, a task to perform!" said Eddie, pompously.

And he began to busy himself with articles on the desk, picking up several and laying them down, taking the telephone off the hook and replacing it and finally picking up a pencil and looking at it.

"Say, what am I supposed to do around here?"

"The first thing," said Claribel, "is—where do you want Mr. Har-

"You'd better beat it with that diploma," she said, "before they discover it's all a mistake."

"Wait," Butch said. You got to meet Eddie. If it weren't for him I'd still be a freshman. He knows what it's all about. He's got brains."

At this point Eddie entered the shop loaded down with clothes for pressing. On his head were stacked haif a dozen hats. Butch introduced him to Ma Carson and Claribel. Mn Carson was disappointed, but determined to be polite. Claribel was disappointed and made no effort to be polite.

A Go-Getter

"Well," said Ma Carson's. "I'm always glad to meet any friend of Butch."

Claribel smiled: "I'm always glad to say goodbye to any friend of Butch."

Claribel smiled: "I'm always glad to say goodbye to any friend of Butch. Goodbye!"

The women prepared to leave, taking Butch with them. At the door, however, Butch suddenly rebelled.

"Wait a minute," he said. "Listen, Eddie. What am I going to do? Ma wants me to manage Dreamland.

Tagan's wreath sent?"

"Who's Mr. Harrigan?" asked Bedie.

Mr. Harrigan, he learned, had been manager of Dreamland before him; so had Mr. L. Johnson, Mr. M. Peters, and Mr. C. Reilly.

"Wha—What happened to them?" said Eddie nervously.

"Nobody ever found out," said Claribel ominously.

The clue as to what had happened to the other managers came to eddie earlier than he had expected. Into his office that same day walked four villainous looking "mugs."

"My name's Copple," said the leader. "This is Mr. Marsh. Mr. Selby. And this is Mr. Thrust, in charge of—sales resistance. I talked with Mr. Harrigan?"

door, however, Butch suddenly rebelled.

"Wait a minute" he said. "Listen, Eddie. What am I going to do? Ma wants me to manage Dreamland. I can't do it."

"Can't?" said Eddie. "Are you a man? He took his coin from his pocket and flipped it. "Yes! Then have no fear! Be firm! Be bold! Have confidence in yourself!—Never retrent—always attack! After you have memorized this thoroughly, turn to chapter—" He caught himself, cleared his throat and struck up a pose. "Act—act—ACT!"

Ma Carson was impressed.

"Phineas, my husband, used to talk like that," she said thoughtfully, "and Phineas was a howling gogetter."

fully, "and Phineas was a howling go-getter."

Claribel was skeptical, but Ma Carson saw in Eddie the man of iron she needed to run her amusement park. Over Claribel's protestations, she said to Eddie:

"Young man, the job is yours."

And silencing Eddie's feeble objections, Ma Carson turned to Butch:

"You help Eddie pack, I'll be expecting you both at the park to-morrow."

pecting you both at the park tomorrow."

But Butch suddenly remembered:
"Gee, Ma, I sort of promised a feller I'd go with him on a boat trip around the world."

"What?" said Ma Carson startled
"It's a sort of a cruise." Butch explained apologetically.

"Well, tell the man you're gorry," said Ma Carson. And she left determinedly with Claribet.

A few days later found Eddie in-

TELL THEM NO!

A Tight Spot

"Here's the contract, Mr. Pink," said Mr. Cropple. But Eddie, referring to his man and mouse book for fresh courage, refused to sign. The men advanced upon him ominously. Claribel slipped behind him and put a gun into his pocket.

"I'm gonna get tough. Everybody out! See!" cried Eddy. "Get out!" The men refused to move and exchanged significant glances. Eddie's voice lost its conviction.

"Honest, you'd all better go." Marsh reached toward his inside pocket, as if to pull a gun. But Claribel's hand went into the side pocket of Eddie's coat, and there was the crack of a pistol. A burst of smoke came out of a gaping hole in Eddie's pocket. Copple's cigar flew out of his mouth and hit Marsh in the eye. Eddie convulsively clutched the desk for support.

The gangsters retreated.

Ma Carson, who came on the scene in time to witness the routing of the racketeers, threw her arms around Eddie and kissed him

"And to think he was once a tailor," she said.

But Eddie already had his coat off, and was sitting cross legged on top of the deak patching up the hole in his coat.

These magnificent Belgians are Nature at her best. They are animals to which Nature has given the vital spark—that necessary, natural balance of all the elements of which champions are made.

Natural balance is everything! It's the difference between this team of powerful champions and common, ordinary pluga. It's the difference between the best and the rest in almost everything.
