THE CLINCHING

THE CLINCHING

EVIDENCE

Because of the nation-wide prominence that had been given by the newspapers and the radio to the Peabody kidnspping and the burning of an innocent man in the jail. Judge Daniel Hopkins permitted the trial to be broadcast. . . Joe Wilson could not remain so far away as Chicago; he dame to Capital City and went into hiding in a room his brothers had found for him. He had a radio put in so he could listen in on the trial.

Witness after witness was called by the District Attorney in the attempt to prove the presence of the men charged with murder in the mob that had stormed, burned and dynamited the jail. The state's witnesses swore to alibits for the men on trial. Even Sheriff Hummell swore — though the perjury came fense lawyer insisted that the State produce facts instead of tittle tattle.

"I did not put these representative citizens of Sage on the stand except, on their oaths, to tell the truth," said the District Attorney, "and, so help them God, they are all liars! I shall ask for their indictment for perjury, on the evidence that will prove the identity of these defendants with that of twenty-two active members of the mob that burned the jail and lynched Joe Wilson. I shall introduce that evidence now."

After Judge Hopkins had heard the attorneys' arguments on the admission of this mysterious evidence, a contraption covered with a sheet was wheeled into the court room by two attendants. The Judge warned the spectators against any demonstration and ordered the District Attorney to proceed.

He read the communication: "I can't hide the truth any longer. I am a citizen of Sage, who helped clean up the jail mess. In the ashes
I found this enclosed ring. Nobody knew it, so I was keeping it for a mement—memento, but it is upsetting my conscience, so I am getting it off my chest. I don't dare sign this or I might get lynched myself.
Inside the ring is an engraved inscription, 'Henry to K. .' I can't decipher the rest except, in a different style of engraving, '. . to Joe'."

Joe!"
Defense objection to introducing an anonymous letter as evidence was sustained, and the District Attorney recalled Katherine Grant to the stand. "Have you ever seen this ring before?" he asked.
"Yes," she replied after examining it.
"Where? And when?"
"In the railroad station in Chicago, as I was leaving to come here. It was my mother's wedding ring. I.
