Question: Is a grain ration neces-sary for a dairy cow during her dry

Answer: If pienty of good pas-ture is available and the animal is in good flesh no other feed will be necessary. However, the cow should have free access to a suitable minerhave free access to a suitable mineral mixture, unless the grazing is legume crops or a legume hay is being fed. If pasture is short or the cow is in poor fiesh enough concentrate should be fed to put the animal in good flesh before freshening. Where concentrates are added, all high protein grains and most of the corn is removed from the ration about two weeks before freshening. A good grain mixture to feed during this period is composed of equal parts of wheat bran and ground oats.

Question: What is the proper temperature for curing sweet potations?

Answer: The temperature for best results should be from 80 to 85 degrees. This should be continued until the sprouts begin to appear, which usually requires about two weeks. After this curing period, the storage temperature should be low-stred to 50 degrees and kept at that point until removed for shipment or use. The temperature should never be allowed to go below 40 degrees nor above 50 as high temperatures during the storage period causes excess shrinkage.

Answer: Probably the most effective delousing product is sodium flouride. This may be secured at any drug store and can be applied in three ways. First, by the pinch method, second, by dusting, and third, by dipping. Dipping is probably the most economical method as it requires much less material and time. One ounce of the sodium

Market Weight Pigs Bring More Profit

H. C. Davenport of Columbia, Route ticularly described as follows, to wit: and complete description thereof. 1, in Tyrrell County fed them to market weight and made an addition-Harris.

The pigs weighed 1,177 pounds when started on feed and during a period of 65 days made a gain of 2,174 pounds at a cost of only $102.90. The animals when started on feed were worth $176.55. They sold for $327.49 which leaves Mr. Davenport a profit of $48.04 after deducting cost of feed and allowing 15 cents a pound for the pigs when the feeding period began, Harris Book LL, page 177, containing 59.04 of said swamp is hereby conveyed.
