

PARIS ZOO RICH IN HISTORIC EPISODES

Now Being Spruced Up for 1937 Exposition.

Washington, D. C.—One of the Paris show places being spruced up in anticipation of the 1937 Exposition is the Jardin des Plantes, the famous zoological and botanical garden which spreads over 74 acres near the Seine.

"Isolated behind a high wooden fence, a large new cement house for ferocious animals is rapidly being reared," says the National Geographic society. "Zoo authorities expect to complete it before the influx of visitors next summer. It will replace the second oldest building in the zoo, the long low animal house, built in 1818, whose walls are stained and cracked. In more than 20 small cages in this old building lions, tigers, and other wild beasts pad around on ancient warped floors.

"Monkeys are already living in luxury in a large new monkey house completed in 1934, which, with its plate glass windows and immaculate white tiled walls, is a model of its kind.

One of Oldest Zoos.

"One of the oldest zoological and botanical gardens in Europe, the Jardin des Plantes was founded by Louis XIII and Guy de la Brosse in 1635 as an experimental garden for medicinal plants. An important collection of animals was not added until 1793.

"Today the botanical garden, greatly expanded since its inception, finds many frequenters. Visitors flock into the greenhouses filled with treelike ferns, flowering coffee trees, and tropical plants from the various French colonies. The Alpine garden contains rare plants from high altitudes in many countries. Under century-old trees women sit knitting and cast supervising glances at offspring riding in gay goat carts and on diminutive gray donkeys. Other mothers push heavy black perambulators down the long shady walks, stopping to admire magnificent dahlias in the ornate flowerbeds, or labeled specimens of medicinal and commercial plants.

"The Natural History museum and the Mineral museum both attract their devotees. But crowds wander in the greatest numbers through the zoological part of the garden. They stroll in family groups past the rustic wood houses of the ruminants, past the brilliant macaws screaming on their outdoor perches, and the swans preening themselves on the waters of a brook. Small boys in knitted or black velvet suits stare hypnotized at tigers. Little girls wave tiny white-gloved hands at keeper sweeping out cages with twig brooms. In spite of the signs 'Defense d'exciter les animaux,' men occasionally poke pointed sticks through the bars. Old women in pinwheel-decorated booths do a thriving business in small hard loaves of bread, 'Pain pour les animaux,' which visitors toss down to the polar and brown bears in the pits.

"It was probably just such bread that a kindly keeper used to steal from the bears' rations to give to a poor young artist sketching the animals. These exquisite pencil sketches made in the Jardin des Plantes can be seen in the Louvre, for the hungry young man was Antoine Louis Barye, later to become celebrated as an outstanding animal sculptor. His realistic small bronzes of animals in action are valued exhibits in art museums both in the old and new worlds.

Saw Exciting Times.

"The Jardin des Plantes has known many exciting times. During the siege of Paris in 1870-71, when famine was causing as much havoc as the Prussians, many of the animals were butchered for food. Starving Parisians paid as much as five dollars a pound for lion, bear, giraffe, and even hippopotamus meat. The shots that felled the animals were only slight disturbances in the garden where enemy shells were constantly shattering the glass of the greenhouses.

"The Jardin des Plantes has no giraffe at present, but in 1827 it exhibited the first living one ever seen in France. A present from the Pasha of Egypt, the creature arrived in Marseille wearing an amulet, a parchment inscribed with a passage from the Koran. It was accompanied by four Arab keepers, and three cows to furnish it with milk. Traveling on foot from Marseille to Paris, it created a stir all along the way. When it arrived in the capital, everyone flocked to the zoo to see it. Parisians went wild about it, dedicated songs and articles to it, and designed hats and dresses after it.

"The only previous excitement at the zoo that could compare with it was the sensation in 1795 caused by the arrival of two elephants from near Apollonia, Maland. They had traveled by land and on ships in specially built wooden cages mounted on wheels, but since the wagons sometimes broke down, it took them two years to make the approximately 300 mile journey.

"The long after they arrived, the Jardin des Plantes was the scene of a strange activity. Sixteen convicts were solemnly played different parts of music for the delinquency of the elephants, whose reactions were being studied by scientists.

Macaroni with Cheese Wine Sauce Makes Royal Taste Treat for Lent

New Macaroni Creation Provides Taste Sensation that for Sheer Deliciousness Has Few Equals

WITH the return of the Lenten season the homemaker again is searching for attractive suggestions for meatless dishes to serve during this period. Old friends are said to be the best friends, and so we often feel the same way toward old favorites such as macaroni and cheese. With a new twist to its preparation, or a new accompaniment with it, this old favorite will gain new friends with every entrance on the meatless menus of the Lenten season.

Macaroni can hardly be discussed without mention of the other members of this famous family, namely, egg noodles and spaghetti. This trio of energy foods is high in its proportion of carbohydrates, and when combined with fruits, vegetables, and high protein foods such as cheese and eggs, they offer a well-balanced meal base.

Successful cookery has been said to start at your grocer's. Quality foods are always good insurance against disappointing results. Buy good quality macaroni products and follow carefully the prescribed directions for the cooking of them. Briefly, the precautions to watch in cooking macaroni products might well be covered in this one sentence. Follow given directions for amounts of boiling, salted water to use, cook only until tender, use low heat, and use either hot or cold water for blanching the cooked product.

A new twist in the preparation of the old favorite macaroni and cheese will be welcomed when you serve macaroni with a cheese wine sauce. The mild flavor of the macaroni takes on tingling good taste when accompanied by this cheese wine sauce. Wine cookery has long been latent, but this simple, easily prepared sauce made with domestic sherry wine, will do wonders in stimulating your appetite for more. Wine served with the delicious macaroni dish offers atmosphere as well as appropriateness. It is especially well suited for informal buffet service.

If you wish to win the admiration and praise of your family for serving a Lenten dish that can truly be called a culinary triumph, just jot down the following recipe.

Macaroni with Cheese Wine Sauce

- 4 cups cooked macaroni
- 1 medium onion, minced
- 2 medium tomatoes or 1/2 cup tomato juice
- 2 tablespoons minced green pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 hard-cooked eggs
- 1/2 pound creamery, mild, packaged yellow cheese
- 1/4 cup domestic sherry wine

Cook until tender, but not browned, the onion, green pepper, sliced tomatoes or tomato juice with the butter. Combine with the cooked macaroni and sliced hard-cooked eggs and place in baking dish. Melt in the top of a double boiler the cheese, when soft add the sherry wine and mix well. Pour the cheese wine sauce over the macaroni mixture. Bake one-half hour in moderate oven—350 degrees. Serves 8.

If you care for a more pronounced cheese flavor—prepare additional cheese wine sauce and serve as an accompaniment to the macaroni.

Romance, Intrigue, Adventure Thrill In "Lloyds Of London"

Against the turbulent canvas of adventure and intrigue which forms the pulse-stirring background of "Lloyds of London," the picture that has startled two continents and which opens Monday at the State Theatre, Hertford, for a two day engagement, there stands out one of the great love stories of all time, when fierce courage and vengeful fury fought to the death for a love that flamed while the fate of an empire hung in the balance.

Packed with the thrill of forbidden kisses that changed the destiny of a whole empire, as the fateful lovers forgot everything but that they were man and woman in each other's arms, the new Twentieth Century-Fox triumph tells the story of human passions that were inextricably woven with the course of history. When Freddie Bartholomew, as young Jonathan Blake, and Douglas Scott, as the youthful Horatio Nelson, discover a plot to scuttle a ship and collect the insurance from Lloyds, the boyhood friends determine to warn "Mr. Lloyd" of the plot. At the last moment, Horatio's uncle takes him off to sea, and Freddie sets out alone on the hundred-mile walk to London.

The young lad's courage so impresses Sir Guy Standing, head of the syndicate, that he rewards the boy by taking him into the business, where every year Jonathan grows in stature and reputation.

During the years that follow, Jonathan often hears the great bell of Lloyds toll its message to the ears of listening Britons—twice for good news, once for disaster. Thus rings out the news of the French Revolution, of the heroic struggle between England and France for supremacy of the seas, and of the swift rise of Napoleon.

Through these eventful years Jonathan Blake, now played by Tyrone Power, has grown along with Lloyds. A secret mission to France brings a meeting with Madeleine Carroll, a stormy sea-swept voyage back to England, during which they discover their love for each other, and a crushing blow for Jonathan's new-found hopes when he learns that she is already married to Lord Stacy, his avowed enemy.

In the midst of world turmoil and personal torment, Jonathan, now famous in Lloyds, struggles to maintain equilibrium and fight his way through to happiness for himself, honor and glory for his firm, and supremacy for England. To protect Admiral Nelson and keep the integrity of his fleet, and ultimately to save the British Empire he risked everything—his position, the woman he loves, even making himself liable to charges of treason.

"Lloyds of London" stands out as one of the greatest triumphs of Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief. Directed by Henry King, with Kenneth Macgowan as associate producer, the screen play of "Lloyds of London" was adapted by Ernest Pascal and Walter Ferris from an original story by Curtis Kenyon.
