Announce New Agents And 4-H Club Leader

The appointment of Mrs. Esther Gray Willis as southwestern district to the plants and should be applied home demonstration agent and Miss carefully and uniformly when the Frances MsGregor as assistant 4-H plants are dry. club leader has been announced at State College.

Mrs. Willis, a former home agent in Craven County, who has been with duties on April 15, said Miss Ruth Current, state home agent.

The new district agent was reared on a Transylvania County farm and attended Brevard College and the North Carolina College for women Greensboro. She has taught school in Macon, Johnston, and Transylvania postmaster in Hertford, was sent to Counties, and for three years she was in charge of the cafeteria in the New Bern city schools.

Miss McGregor, former home agent in Cleveland County, will work with 4-H club girls over the state under the direction of L. R. Harrill, state 4-H club leader for the State College extension service.

As home agent, Miss McGregor showed a fine aptitude for working with young people, in whom she is particularly interested, said Miss Cur-

Says Rotenone Dust

plant beds in eastern North Carolina of this land is too poor to produce can be controlled effectively with ap- grasses and clovers necessary for a plications of cube or derris dust con- good sod, Stott recommended the taining one per cent rotenone.

The dust will eradicate beetles, but is not harmful to the tender young plants, said Dr. B. B. Fulton, entonologist at State Collge.

With a dusting machine, he said, the dust should be blown through the canvas covers over the beds at the rate of 1-2 pound to each 100 square yards of bed. Although dust containing one per cent rotenone is recommended for tobacco beds, Dr. Fulton pointed out that the weaker dust used to control bean beetles can also be used on flea beetles.

Bean beetle dust contains 3-4 of one per cent rotenone, and when applied to tobacco beds 2-3 of a pound should be dusted on each 100 square vards of bed.

Both the cube and the derris plants contain rotenone. When ground to dust, the material is diluted with powered clay to lower the percentage of rotenone so the dust will not e too strong.

After the tobacco plants are set out in the field, they should be dusted the following day, and every fourth day thereafter during favorable weather until the beetles are eradicated. If the plants are rained upon the same day they are dusted, the application should be repeated.

When rotenone dust cannot be obtained, tobacco beds may be treated with a dust consisting of one pound of Paris green to five pounds of lead arsenate, but this dust is dangerous

Lespedeza Is Base Of Good Cropping System

Lespedeza can be made to serve as the hub for a good cropping system for conserving soil and water on the farm, according to H. M. Stott, agronomist of the Soil Conservation Service in the High Point demonstration area.

Although seed bed preparation is not necessary where lespedeza is seeded in small grain, Stott said, best results will be secured if the seed is run over lightly with a drag harrow. If seeding is done on land not in small grain, the seed bed should be disked well before the lespedeza is sown.
