STRATION CLUB MEETS

The Beech Spring Home Den

home of Mrs. Noah Felton.

stration Club met on Tuesday at the

Miss Gladys Hamrick gave s

demonstration on flower arrangement. She also reported the quantity of May peas canned, and the number of slips made this spring.

Mrs. C. W. Reed gave a very inter esting talk on the beauty of our country, which was enjoyed. Mrs.

Eddie Boyce read a paper telling where the first watermelon seed came from, they being found in a

Mrs. W. J. Perry won the prize served to the following: Mesdames

Visiting Mrs. Small

Mrs. Archie R. Patton and her pound of coffee, years ago.

Mary Alice Felton.

er, Mrs. P. H. Small.

McM. Newby.

in the shrub and flower contest. Lemonade and sandwiches were

THE STORY THUS FAR: The Montagues and Capulets, mighty families of Verona, are deadly enemies who battle to the death at every encounter. Romeo, son of Lord Montague, is more interested in love than fighting. Capulet has a daughter, Juliet, but no son, he therefore appoints his nephou Tybalt as master of his soldiers. The Count of Paris asks Juliet's hand in marriage and her taker celebrates with a and her father celebrates with a feast. Through the stupidity of a feast. Through the stupidity of a servant, Romeo receives an invitation. He learns that Rosaline, the lady with whom he fancies himself in love, is to attend. He determines to go to the feast to be near her. His cousin Benvolio and Mercutio, their friend, go with him. His first glimpse of Juliet makes Romeo forget Rosaline completely; and Juliet is likewise smitten with love for him at first glance. Both wonder who the other is, neither suspectwho the other is, neither suspect-ing that they are the son and daughter of the warring Monta-gues and Capulets.

THE MEETING

Chapter Four

OMEO would have rushed to follow Juliet had not Benvollo, spying Tybalt among the guests, doubled his pleas against rashness. He finally convinced Lord Capulet soothed him with a fatherly pat. "Let him alone," he said. "I would not for the wealth of all this town, here, in my house, do him disparagement. Be patient. Take no note of him."

Juliet motioned toward Romeo.
"And he that follows there?" she questioned idly.
The nurse shook her head. "I know not."

THE WARREN

purged." Juliet's eyes grew la his cousin that since follow Juliet he must,
it was best to wait until the signal for the next dance.

Romeo's patience was at last rewarded. The musicians sounded the opening strains of the Pasacaglia, that dance of romantic gallantry so perfect for lovers! He hurried down the stairs, brushing aside any who would claim Juliet for a partner.

The Passacaglia! What good for-tune to have this dance with Juliet! He beat his heels on the marble floor, strutting and turning with magnificent, sweeping gesture. She rose and sank in the folds of her skirt. Now hand touched hand and foot approached foot as their bodies turned toward and away from each other, their heads inclining.

Deftly he directed their move-ments toward the door leading out to the beautiful terrace. The next figure in the dance took them through the door. They stood silent for a moment looking out into the night. Juliet turned as if to rejoin the dancers, but Romeo smilingly took her hand

"If I profane with my unworthlest hand this holy shrine," he murmured, "the gentle fine is this—my lips. Two blushing pilgrims who ready stand to smooth that rough touch with a tender life." with a tender kiss."
"Good pilgrim," she replied,
"Saints have hands the pilgrims'

hands to touch." "Have not saints lips?" he asked softly.
"Ay," she answered, demurely

"Ay," she answered, demurely "lips they use in prayer."

"Oh, then, dear Saint," he cried, "let lips do what hands do—they pray; grant thou—" he drew her to him.

"Saints do not move," she protested.

tested.

"Then move not!" he exclaimed.
"My prayer's effect I shall take."
And so saying, he kissed her. "Thus, from my lips, by thine, my sin is purged."

purged."

Juliet's eyes grew luminous.
"Then have my lips the sin that they have took," she murmured.
"Sin from my lips?" he answered.
"O, give back to me my sin."
And folding her in his arms he kissed her again and thrilled to her answering embrace.

answering embrace.
The voice of Juliet's nurse broke the spell.
"Madame!"

"On my life, he hath stolen him home to bed."

"Call him, good Mercutio," said Benvolio anxiously.

"Call him? I'il conjure him, too." In mock solemnity his voice intended a prayer: "Romeo! Humours! Madman! Passion! Lover! Appear thou!" He paused, and then in a voice of sadness "He hearest not. The ape is dead."

"Come," interrupted Benvolio impatiently. "He nath hid himself among the trees. Blind is his love and best befits the dark."

Romeo waited until their footsteps faded into the night. The guard stirred and he crouched deeper in the shadow. At last all was still and he arose to accustom his eyes to the dark. In which direction lay the house, he wondered?

As if in answer a light appeared from an upper window.

"What light through yonder window breaks?" he wondered.

It cast its soft gleam upon the balcony outside. Into its path walked a girl. She paused a moment and then stood quist as if enthralled by the beauty of the night.

"It is the East." murmured Ro-The two parted hastily.

"Madame," cried the nurse, "your mother craves a word with you."

Juliet threw him a last, longing look and hurried from the terrace.

Romeo stopped the nurse who would have followed her.

"What is her mother?" he asked.

"What is her mother?" he asked.
"Marry, good bachelor," the nurse replied with asperity, "her mother is the lady of this house—and a good lady, and a wise and virtuous," and flounced after her charge.

Romeo rested his head against the twisted pillars of the house, lost in sad thought. "She is a Capulet," he said at last, and with a sigh, he re-entered the great hall.

Benvolio approached him hurried-

Take no note of him."

A page ran toward them bearing a rapier. Tybalt seized the weapon flercely. "I'll not endure him," he muttered.

The elder man's face reddened with anger. "He shall be endured," he commanded. "I say he shall."

Tybalt glared defiantly.

"What!" shouted Capulet. "Am I the master here or you? I say he the master here or you? I say he shall be endured . . . you'll not endure him!" His voice rose in amazement. Dared Tybalt question his dure him." His voice rose in amazement. Dared Tybalt question his authority?

Tybalt controlled his wrath at the reprimande "I will withdraw," he said coldly.

He planted the point of his rapier against the floor and sprang the blade into a curve, releasing it so that it flew of its own accord into the waiting hand of his page.

The grature was not lost on Benvolio. He grasped Romeo's arm and hurried him off.

At the grand stairs, Lady Capulet and Juliet were bidding farewell to departing guests. As Juliet saw Romeo and Benvolio pass she beckoned to her nurse. She pointed to a man approaching.

"What man is that?" she asked.

"The son and heir of old Tiberio," answered the nurse.

inswered the nurse.

"Go ask his name," ordered Juliet. She watched the t'a thig ?"

speak, and then turn away quickly, her face a mixture of confusion and astonishment.

Juliet eagerly awaited the answer.

"His name," whispered her nurse, is Romeo—and a Montague—the

The girl's hand fluttered to her heart. "My only love sprung from my only hate," she murmured.

Juliet smiled to throw her off

"A rhyme I learned of one I danced with," she answered evas-ively, and with her hand still press-ing her heart, made slowly for her

Meanwhile Romeo Mercutio and

Meanwhile Romeo, Mercutio and Benvolio walked down the street leading from the Capulet estate. The latter two talked merrily of the evening, and so engrossed were they in their conversation they did not perceive Romeo's manoeuvre to fall behind, nor miss him when he darted back to the garden.

He ran lightly to make no noisc; with ease he scaled the high walls and slipped to the ground on the other side. He looked about cautiously for some movement on the part of the armed men guarding the place, and then slowly and carrilly stole along the base of the wall. He stopped short as Benvollo's voice sounded from the street.

"Where is he, my cousin Romeo!" he heard Benvollo exclaim.

"He is wise," laughed Mercutio.
"On my life, he hath stolen him home to bed."

"It is the East." murmured Ro-meo, "and Juliet is the sun." He made his way swiftly toward son of your great enemy.

sat's this wi

manded her nurse.

leeping room.

zuard.

DAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE

Morgan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E.

Walter D. Simpson and Allie B. Simpson, highly respected colored couple of Hertford, announce the marriage of their daughter, Julia B. Simpson, to Roosevelt Davis, formerly of Rich Square, now of Newark, N. J., on Wednesday, June 9, 1937, the ceremony being performed at the parsonage of the colored Baptist Church in Hertford.

The couple are making their home at Newark, N. J.

Eyes Aided by Brain

Man does not see by eyes alone. If it were not for the center of vision at the back of the brain, our eyes would be of no use to us, says an authority in Literary Digest. The brain has a complex job. Following immutable laws of optics, the eyes throw an inw ould have to reach the second floor. Also, each eye produces its own image and it is the task of the brain to fuse the two into one. There is no image on the retina, in the sense of a reflection in a mirror, for the retina is merely a nerve network capable of transmitting light sensations over the optic nerve to the brain.

The Spatulate Hand The Spatulate hand is a crooked, irregular kind of hand with fingers, which spread at the tips into pads or knobs rather like the nose on an engineer's hammer. This shows one to be the active, nervous kind of for work, into which you fling your-self whole-heartedly. Emotional and demonstrative, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly Magazine, you are bound only by the rules and conventions which you, yourself, choose to make. Inventive, original and frequently brilliant, you are apt to live on your "nerves" and (if your wrist is narrow) should guard against over-straining yourself and also against over-impulsiveness.

"Chaffing"

In some English counties, when a man has been guilty of inflicting personal chastisement upon his wife, it is customary for neighbors to empty a sack or two of chaff in front of the offender's door to signify that a "thrashing" has been done there. This is called "chaf-The general term may have had its origin in this curious cus-

Sassafras in Medicine The root of sassafras very early in American history became an important article of medicine. It is sometimes called the "ague tree" as a decoction of its bark was supposed to cure that disease. Sassafras tea, an infusion of the young shoots and roots, has long been a favorite remedy for colds and a tonic, being sudorific and a stimulant.

Colombia Vast Territory
Colombia has an area equal to that of the British isles, Germany,
France, Holland, Spain and Portu-

BEECH SPRING HOME DEMON-Legals

DIRT FOR SALE-APPLY TO W C. Moore, 201 West Queen Street. June10,17,24np.

North Carolina. In The Perquimans County. Superior Court Before the Clerk

Maggie Layden and Emma Layden Plaintiffs

Dallas Layden and Elsie Elizabeth Layden, Minor, Defendants. NOTICE

The defendant, Elsie Elizabeth action entitled as above has been will further take notice that she is said county in the courthouse in

This the 9th day of June, 1937. W. H. PITT.

COLORED COUPLE ANNOUNCE june 11 18 25 aug 2

NOTICE

Sale of Valuable Property By virtue of a Mortgage Deed executed to me by L. Felton Hunter for certain purposes therein mentioned which said Mortgage Deed bears date May 7, 1927, and is registered in the office of the Register of Deeds of Perquimans County in Book 16, Page 273, I shall on July 19, 1937, at 12 o'clock noon offer for sale at Public Auction, for cash, at the Court House door in Hertford. N. C., the property conveyed to me in said Mortgage:

One house and lot in the Town of tate lot, thence northerly along said Chances line to the place of the beginning, being lot of land this day conveying to the said L. Felton Hunter, by E. Leigh Winslow and J. E. Winslow, trading as the Hertford Wholesale Company. See said deed

This, the 17th day of June, 1937. S. M. WHEDBEE, Trustee.

North Carolina ans County In the Superior Court Before the Clerk.

Taylor, and wife, Sarah V. Tay. N. C., on the 28 day of June, 1987, lor, Defendants.

COOL AS AN OCEAN BREEZE

Wayland Howell, W. J. Perry, Daniel Rogerson, Noah Felton, C. W. Reed, Layden, will take notice that an C. B. Stallings, Eddie Boyce, John Hill, and Jarvis Forehand; Misses commenced in the superior court of Perquimans County, North Carolina, Callie Stallings, Lillian Rae Perry, for a partition of lands owned by Stella Rogerson, Emma Felton and plaintiffs and defendants as tenantsin-common; and the said defendant required to appear at the office of son, Archie, Jr., of Marion, arrived the clerk of the superior court of Sunday to visit Mrs. Patton's moth-Hertford, N. C., on the 12th day of July, 1937, and answer or demur to the complaint in said action, or the plaintiff will apply to the court for Mrs. Duke Morgan and her two children, Duke, Jr., and Betty, of the relief demanded in said com-Raleigh, were recent guests of Mrs. plaint.

Clerk Superior Court.

Hertford, Hertford Township, Perquimans County, N. C., described as follows: Beginning on Market street in the Town of Herifall

ing to one Alford for further description.

june 18 25 july 2 9

Pauline B. Madre and husband, W

tiffs and defendants as tenants in common so that a division might be had; and the said defendants will further take notice that they are re-F. Madre, Jr., Plaintiffs, Vs. Evalena (Eleanor) Hall, and hus clerk of the Superior Court, of said band, Semore Hall, L. Edward county in the courthouse in Hertford, and answer or demur to the com-plaint in said action, or the plaintiffs

NOTICE

The defendants Evalena (Eleanor) Hall, and husband, Semore Hall, L. Edward Taylor, and wife, Sarah V. Taylor, will take notice that an action entitled as above has been commenced in the Superior Court of June4,11,18,25

Today (Thursday) and Friday, June 24-25tobem liveb od EDWARD Q Galahad HUMPHREY BOGART

ACT

Last Chapter "UNDER SEA KINGDOM" Cartoon

Saturday, June 26-TOOTIN BHYTHM

First Chapter "THE VIGILANTES ARE COMING"

Monday and Tuesday, June 28-29-

Picture Is Talking About

Perquimans County, North Carolina, to sell lands belonging to the plainquired to appear at the office of the clerk of the Superior Court of said will apply to the court for the re-

W. H. PITT,

Clerk Superior Court.

lief demanded in said complaint.

This 28 day of May, 1987.

George O'Brien and Cecilia Parker

"HOLLYWOOD COWBOY" Also "GRAVEYARD OF SHIPS" and COMEDY BANK NIGHT

Thursday, July 1-

Jane Withers in "Angels Holiday"

CHEVROLET TRUC Chevrolet users say: They're the most economical trucks for all-round duty

Perfected Hydraulic Brakes . . . Greatest Pulling Power in Their Price Range . . . New Steelstream Styling

Thousands of Chevrolet users will tell you that the best answer to your transportation needs is-Chevrolet trucks! Chevrolet trucks have the greatest pulling power in their price range . . . because they have a New High-Compression Valve-in-Head Engine which wrings the last ounce of power out of every gallon of fuel. Chevrolet trucks are the most economical for all-round duty . .. because they give maximum gas and oil mileage, and will keep on serving over a long period with minimum care and attention.

And Chevrolet trucks are safer, more modern, more And Chevrolet trucks are saier, more modern, more durable . . . because they're the only low-priced trucks with Perfected Hydraulic Brakes, New Steelstream Styling, and extra-strong Chevrolet construction throughout.

Ask your nearest Chevrolet dealer for a thorough demonstration—today!

County Many Installment Plan, month positions to not your parent.

CHEVROLET MOTOR DIVISION, Course Motors Sales Corpora DETROLET, MICHIGAN

MORE POWER per gallon LOWER COST