BIBLE THOUGHT FOR WEEK

WE ARE NOT WORMS: Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.—John 15:15.

STILL A MENACE

At times, it has always been the unpleasant duty of newspapers to "take the joy out of life," so to speak.

Right now, with the opening of school at hand, with so many youngsters proudly looking forward to their first day at school, it is "taking the joy out of life" to publish the State Insurance Department's report on the condition of the grammar school in Hertford with relation to fire hazards.

It was in May that the Town Criers aroused themselves to the extent of making an investigation—and in June the Fire Commissioner's report arrived, showing the building subject to condemnation on two counts, auditorium on the second floor with no fire escapes, and furnace room not fire-proofed. These two conditions must be corrected to comply with the minimum requirements by law. But the report speaks for itself.

"There never was a fire there, why raise so much hell about it right now?" The impatient fellow who asked this question obviously is not the parent of a grammar school pupil. Frankly, he doesn't deserve the title of "citizen."

COOPERATION NEEDED

School began Wednesday and The Perquimans Weekly thinks now is a good time to impress upon parents the importance of seeing that their children attend. Aside from the benefits derived by regular attendance, the schools' averages will be increased, probably resulting in larger faculties. This county lost a couple of teachers last year through low attendances.

There's also a matter of fines for parents who do not send their children to school continuously during the term—that is, children between seven and fourteen years of age. Delinquent parents are liable to fines from five to twenty-five dollars.

INDUSTRY AND AGRICULTURE

The best news that has come out in long time is the report from Detroit that the big automobile companies are calling men back to work and that the rains have changed the "dust bowl" back into productive farms which promise the largest yield of wheat in a quarter of a century.

The motor manufacturers reduced their output for 1938, with the result that most of the stock is practically sold out, and in the higher-priced cars buyers are gobbling up the best of the "used" cars of last year's model. Now the makers of the popular-priced cars are looking forward to larger sales than ever of their new models, and are preparing to put them on the market earlier than usual.

One of the reasons for the car-builder's optimism is the certainty that there will be many millions more dollars flowing into the pockets of farmers as this year's bounteous harvest is marketed. That much of this money will be spent for new cars is regarded as certain, for the motor-car is as essential to farm life as the horse and buggy used to be. Probably the worst examples of worn-out cars still doing duty can be found in the regions where farmers have seen little or no money coming in for the past few years.

Prosperity in America has always been measured by the productivity of our farms and the ability of the rural population to buy the product of our factories. That is as true today as it ever was, though the proportion of farm folk to city dwellers continues to diminish.

There are still more than six million families living on farms, twice as many more living in rural communities and small towns dependent in large measure upon the prosperity of the farmer. And the automobile industry is only one of many equally dependent on farming.—Gates County Index.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

NEWSPAPER MAN DOUBTS AGE COURT HOUSE

Mr. Editor:
With true patriotic Edenton fervor and with scorn at your inference last week that Hertford has the oldest court house in the Albemarle or State, give a thought to a couple of facts. On the Main Street of this charming town, and pointing the way to all, is an official State Highway historical marker, No. 11, saying that the Chowan Court House built in 1767 is "the oldest court house in the state." Of course it is, and as C. C. Crittenden, North Carolina history chieftain, inscribed the Chowan sign, to be sure your eminent Charles Whedbee will have an easy time of it convincing Mr. Crittenden he is wrong. However, even your paper is inferentially skeptical about Hertford's ancestral claim. Court was held in Perquimans in both the seventeenth and eighteenth century, as your memoranda says and as even the merest Albemarle child knows, but not in Hertford in a building designed for that purpose, and don't you forget it. All you need do is to consult the records. The first one, in 1804, 37 years after our court house, says your clerk of the court was directed "hereafter" to move his documents and establish them in Hertford. A nickel against a turnip, you never had a court house before that date, if even then. If you wish to prove your history comb the font located here.

FILM FORECAST AT STATE THEATRE HERTFORD, N. C.

"Cowboy From Brooklyn."
They're the best of the West—Pat O'Brien, Priscilla Lane and Dick Powell head the cast of "Cowboy From Brooklyn," Warner Bros. hilarious new musical comedy hit opening at the Strand Theatre today.

Check your dignity at the door when you go in to see "Cowboy From Brooklyn," which shows at the State Theatre Tuesday only. Comedies don't come any funnier than this musical saga of a cowboy who never rides the range because he's scared to death of horses.

With the exception of a few sentimental interludes and some musical moments every minute of this production, which features Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell and Priscilla Lane, has at least fifty-nine seconds of hilarious comedy, with the result that the audience will roar with laughter almost continuously from the first scene to the last.

It is a fast-moving farce, with songs introduced occasionally but always as a logical step in the plot, which revolves about the amusing misadventures of a singer. Some of the songs are old cowboy ballads, but there are also five new tunes, every one of which gives definite promise of being a big hit. The reviewer liked particularly the songs entitled, "Ride, Tenderfoot, Ride" and "I'll Dream Tonight."

The screen play, adapted by Earl Baldwin from the stage play, "Howdy Stranger," by Robert Sloane and

Louis Pelletier, Jr., gets off to a flying start when Pat O'Brien, as a vacationing Broadway theatrical producer, mistakenly assumes that Dick Powell, who is being paid to entertain the guests at a Wyoming dude ranch with his singing, is an authentic cowboy.

Powell is actually a Brooklyn boy who has never ridden a horse, is afraid of horses and is even frightened by such tiny animals as prairie dogs. Nevertheless, taken back to New York by O'Brien, he wins great fame on the radio as a crooning cowboy.

It becomes necessary, however, for O'Brien to prove that his singer is a real cowboy, and he arranges to have the timid hero demonstrate his cowboy talents at a rodeo in Madison Square Garden. To tell here how this seemingly impossible task was hilariously managed would take the edge off one of the most ingeniously amusing sequences seen in any picture.

The great promise as a comedian shown by Powell in his first motion picture role some years ago—"Blessed Event"—is amply realized in his merciless caricature of the timid cowboy crooner. Pat O'Brien, of course, is veritable perfection in a fast-talking role and Priscilla Lane is both charming and amusing.

The production was directed by Lloyd Bacon, and it confirms a judgment which has long been accepted in Hollywood—that he is one of the very best comedy directors in the business.
