

"... And They Were Married"

Ward obliges. But sometimes, for various reasons, he doesn't. "We want a marriage license," said the boy, unnecessarily, when Mr. Ward answered his knock at the door. The girl giggled. She looked so small on the dim porch that the register wondered if she was to be the bride or if it was to be one of the other two people still in the car. Sometimes, very young people, way under the age limits, apply for a license which of course, must be denied.

In the bright light of his office at the courthouse, however, Mr. Ward saw that the bride-to-be was much older than he thought her at first, and the matter of drawing a license got underway.

In the meantime an interested bystander departed in search of a justice of the peace and returned shortly with T. E. Raper, who cleared his throat, adjusted his glasses and said solemnly, "join right hands, please." The hands trembled, but got together.

The bride's brother and a buxom girl friend witnessed the ceremony, as did Ashley Fleetwood and a night-roving newspaper reporter. "Please don't put it in the paper," the principles requested the reporter, "we want it to be a surprise," and the reporter promised he wouldn't.

The voice of the justice droned on for a few minutes in the quiet room, and ended with a very definite, "I now pronounce you man and wife."

The awed stillness lasted for another few seconds, and then somebody laughed nervously. It was the bride's girl friend. Then everybody laughed and congratulations were in order.

Unexpected night weddings are usually pretty quiet affairs in Hertford, but this one was on a Sunday night—rather early in the evening—and a good number of people had gathered outside the courthouse. Best wishes were shouted and as the wedding party headed south, there came a terrific clatter of tin cans tied to the car. Some jolly soul had decided that this wedding was going to have all the accessories.

—And so they were married.

YOUR OIL FREE
(UP TO THE FULL MARK)
IF I FORGET TO CHECK IT—

WHEN you drive into my station, I'm going to remember to check your oil. We Shell dealers listed below have agreed to this.
If we forget, just say, "Didn't you forget something?"—and without any hesitation we'll bring your crankcase up to the full mark with Golden Shell. FREE!
WHY THE BRAINSTORM? Well, we know we ought to keep your oil up to the full mark for safety's sake. Besides we've got an oil that will do the job for your engine like never before.
This Golden Shell is especially made to reduce the wear of stop-and-go driving—the kind you do all day. It's fast-flowing so that it gets to every moving engine part the instant you step on the starter. It's tough, too, so that it won't break down under the heat of steady running. In fact—
There's no finer oil at any price than Golden Shell.
