BIBLE THOUGHT FOR WEEK

INFINITE STRENGTH—Trust ye in the Lord for ever: for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength.—Isaiah 26:4.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

Chairman H. I. Ogburn of the N. C. Anti-Compulsory Crop Control Association with headquarters at Sanford, has requested that The Weekly assign a reporter to cover the meeting of the association in Raleigh on Saturday morning.

The chairman made this request because of what he termed the "unfair and prejudiced attitude toward the program by the News and Observer." Former Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, will address the association against Compulsory Crop Control in the Memorial Auditorium at 11 A. M.

The Weekly regrets that it does not have a reporter available to cover the meeting, but it takes this means of notifying its readers when and where the meeting will be held.

WORTH READING

If you passed up Mattie Saunders' expressions on the relative merits of war and peace, we suggest that you go back and read them all.

Her letter provides an excellent insight on the way most people—those most affected by war—feel about major conflicts. Her's are not the views of a Major General or munitions king or inflated war lord. They are the views of the average American woman and expressed as such.

The Weekly suggests that each reader ponder over her letter and then come to a quick decision on an Armistice Day program for Hertford. The Saunders' plan advocates that Perquimans County should become noted as a people working for peace.

THINK IT OVER

The governor, judges, congressmen, representatives, auditors, solicitors, sheriffs, coroners and other high state and county officials have affixed their seals of approval to John A. Larkin's amendment for four year terms of office for sheriffs and coroners.

The amendment comes up for popular vote at the general election on November 5th, and while sadly The Weekly admits that its knowledge of the amendment's provisions is very limited, at the same time we can see where adoption of the amendment would benefit in two clear instances.

In the first instance, "vote-getting" is a tedious task which consumes entirely too much time, depending of course on the heat of the contest. Time, which, of course, we think, the incumbent should be devoting to the duties of the office to which he was elected.

Other officers are already elected for four year terms, and where the duties of a sheriff, The Weekly thinks, are fully as important as any other county official's, he must spend twice the amount of time in campaigning if his office is opposed, consequently drawing that much on his efficiency in office.

While such is not the case in this section, actually sheriffs and coroners in other sections must spend almost half their term of office in campaigning for reelection—in the primaries and general election.

As it is now, sheriffs and coroners run for office every time anyone else does, which necessarily leads to a lot of campaigning if the incumbent hopes to be re-elected.

On the other point The Weekly is not so clear, but this is the way we see it: Little other urge is needed to get the vote out when presidents and governors run for office, but under the terms of the Larkin Amendment (John D. Larkin is chairman) the sheriffs and coroners together with the clerks of court, would create enough interest among themselves to help get the vote out in the off years.

Then, on top of all this, The Weekly thinks that law enforcement offices, filled by electoral means, should be as far removed from active participation in politics as possible.

BETTER COTTON

Four Cumberland County farmers secured an increase of 250 pounds of seed cotton per acre by treating their planting seed for the "damping off" disease last spring. The four demonstrations were given a final check last week by O. P. Owens of the State College Extension Service.

Tyner Urges Program To Inspire Peace

vent war, some with branches in both the United States and in foreign countries. These organizations work to influence the National Governments to pass laws which will prevent wars, and also to help the people of different nations know and understand each other better, thereby bringing about good-will among them.

College students are becoming interested and many are spending their vacations caravanning from place to place on good-will tours and speaking to groups of people on peace.

Some teachers are spending a part of their summers in much the same way, holding conferences or lecturing in various places.

Many religious denominations have taken up the work of spreading the peace message.

But all these workers are not enough. They need our help. No mother raises her boy to be a target to be shot at. And in modern warfare, not only men are endangered, but no one is safe. It is a subject which concerns us all. What are we going to do about it?

Each of us can do something. We can learn and teach peace principles. We can get in touch with others who are working to prevent war. I hope each person who has not read Clarence Poe's article: "Mothers, Help Save Your Sons" in the November number of The Progressive Farmer, page 50, will do so, and write our Senators and Congressmen, as suggested on page 4 of the same paper.

Armistice Day will soon be here, a day observed in memory of the time when fighting ceased in the World War. It is often celebrated by having some military display in towns and cities, but would not a celebration which tends to educate people for peace be more appropriate?

I have been interested in the efforts of the veterans of the World War to get a complete list of those in the county, and in the suggestion that you have some kind of a get-together on Armistice Day. I hope you will, and that you give a peace program.

Let us all come to Hertford on Armistice Day and organize a local branch of one of the Organizations that is working to prevent war, and do our bit for this important cause.

I make this appeal to every man and woman in the county in the name of the youth of our land and other lands, and in the name of Him who came to bring "Peace on earth, good-will to men." I beg you to think about it, talk about it in your homes, with your neighbors, in your churches, clubs, and in whatever gatherings you happen to be, and let us see if we cannot work up so much interest in the peace cause that we will come to Hertford on Armistice Day and hold such a celebration that it will be a memorable day for years to come, and then continue working until Perquimans County becomes noted as a people working for world peace.

MATTIE SAUNDERS.
