Picture By Frift Winslow One of Final Five From Which Two Selected For Fair

A painting by W. F. (Frift) Winslow, Plymouth artist formerly of Hertford, ranks among the top five at the Person Hall Art Gallery in Chapel Hill, from which two pictures were selected recently for sale to the International Harvester Company for display at the New York World's Fair this summer.

Submitted by Mr. Winslow for entrance in the third annual North Carolina Artists' Exhibition, the picture, entitled "The Mimosa in Bloom," was highly praised by Frances Speight, noted North Carolina artist who was called from the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, to judge the pictures.

Of the 131 paintings offered for display at Chapel Hill, Mr. Winslow's picture was one of the 59 chosen to remain on display there from March 3 to 25, when thousands of persons will visit Chapel Hill to view the display.

Mr. Winslow was well-pleased to learn on a recent trip there that his picture was in the last five considered in the selection of two the firm purchased and reports that Mr. Speight had a hard time passing over the Winslow picture as one of the two best in the show.

The painting is a landscape scene of the blooming mimosa trees at the old Swain home on Mackeys road to Plymouth, which he painted amid the swirls of dust stirred up by motorists last summer on their way to Albemarle Beach. Only paintings in oils, water colors, drawings, pastels and prints by natives or two-year residents of North Carolina who are amateur artists were eligible for entry in the Chapel Hill show.

"HIS GIRL FRIDAY"

Devil-may-Cary Grant and lovely Rosalind Russell are co-starred at the State Theatre, Hertford in Columbia's gay new romance, "His Girl Friday" with Ralph Bellamy. The new film tells of Grant's delightful battle to prevent his ex-wife from re-marrying anybody but himself.

(Continued From Page One) ally." Of the five whom street talk mentions, only two have given this newspaper reason to count them as candidates; but waiting for something or other they have delayed the announcing date.

Some will drop by the wayside before the filings close, but it is a safe bet that five candidates will be in at the primary . . . if not seven.

As yet, no competition has come into sight for Judge J. Granberry Tucker's post as Recorder of county court. He announced intentions of seeking re-election two weeks ago.

From Parkville Township comes today an announcement from E. U. Morgan that he will run for the board of county commissioners as the commissioner from Parkville:

"If elected," said Mr. Morgan, "I will endeavor to serve the county to the best of my ability."

Parkville is not represented on the incumbent board, but Hertford Township is represented, twice—by Archie T. Lane and John O. White. New legislation, adopted at the last General Assembly, makes it improbable that any one township hereafter will be represented by more than one commissioner. The individual townships will nominate their own candidates.

Mr. White has not made a public statement to this paper concerning his intentions, but Mr. Lane announced last week that he would seek re-election. He is rounding out his first term on the board.

An earlier survey, when gubernatorial hopefuls began to announce, made it appear that Perquimans would be forced to look to State politics alone for election talk. This is far from true now. It's still early in the open vote-hunting season, but a candidate is no longer an oddity.

A candidate for governor, it is said, passed through Hertford Monday morning. He came and went unheralded—and few people saw him.

The Youth in Business By C. E. Johnston

ANY organization manned entirely by older men tends to dry up and to go to seed. Older men get set in their ways and become less progressive. Forward looking young men build business for they are alert to new ideas.

"An enviable characteristic of youth is its dissatisfaction with outmoded processes and antiquated equipment. During the last few years more effective filing systems, more effective records, and more effective office machines and equipment have been made available. Yet in many offices the files, records and equipment in use are out of date.

The streamlining of production in the United States has gone forward to such a point that our manufacturing processes are the envy of the world. But in many of our greatest industries there has been no corresponding development in office practice. Because of the lack of office planning, because of the failure to study office procedures, and because of the use of out of date machines and equipment, most office clerks perform hundreds of useless motions each day.

A recent study conducted in the office of a large public utility showed that if every item was placed within the reach of clerks, so that they would not have to stoop, bend or turn around, the average typist, file clerk, mail clerk, etc., could do the work of three persons whose work spaces were not rearranged.
