Hocutt Says Eight Drivers Between 18 and 25 Died In Overturned Cars Last Month

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to something more serious than love, according to Ronald Hocutt, Director of the Highway Safety Division. And that "something," Hocutt says, is stepping on the gasdriving at an excessive rate of speed.

Accident records show that nine persons were killed on North Carolina highways last month in cars that overturned, and eight of these nine, all but one of whom were driving, were young men between the ages of 18 and 25.

"Practically every one of these fatal accidents was due to just one thing-excessive speed," the safety director said. "Modern motor cars don't overturn easily, and as a general thing the driver who overturns a car has been guilty of reckless driving and speeding. Young men, as last month's accident record indicates, are the most flagrant offenders on these counts."

Pointing out that in some instances cars have overturned five or six times without killing or seriously injuring anyone, Hocutt said that it is possible and frequently happens that a person is killed in a car that has turned over only once, and that "any person whose car turns a flip without killing or at least seriously injuring him is a mighty lucky individual."

"Yet," he added, "there are a good many young men in this state who think their experience isn't complete until they have turned over at least one car.

"These reckless, speed-crazy young drivers," Hocutt concluded, "are among the worst menaces on our highways today. And we sincerely hope that the young drivers' groups the Highway Safety Division proposes to organize as a part of its Youth Highway Safety Club will serve to impress young drivers with the dangers of speeding and reckless driving."

ginning to carry a small notice which reads in effect "War news is censored. It is the right and duty of every citizen to form his own opinions, hold to his own beliefs and not allow himself to become a victim of emotionalism or propaganda."

Certain people in the world are credited with being more informed on certain subjects than the rest of us with the result that when they express an opinion it is news.

A glaring example of the cross purposes at which these supposedly superior persons can work was carried in many daily papers on Monday of this week . . .

"Declare war on Hitler and the other monsters," Bishop Darst is said to urge.

In the same paper Colonel Charles Lindburgh, an admitted authority on aeronautics, said "Because the American people have attempted to interfere with the internal affairs of Europe, these policies will leave us hated by victor and vanquished alike. regardless of which way the tide of battle turns."

"There is no longer time for us to enter this war successfully." he continued. "and if we desire peace, we need only stop asking for war."

Both Bishop Darst and Colonel Lindburgh are prominent figures; each has a host of followers who will receive his opinions with all degrees of "emotionalism."

At the same time two other factions are at work in a different, yet associated, field; one side wants to increase the United States' air strength by fifty thousand planes a year. The other wants us to build planes and sell them to the Allies. Still another authority holds that we cannot possibly do both. And back in North Carolina, a candidate for Governor is gaining (or losing votes) with popular Hitler-Hating tactics. While news from the warring nations is "censored" and is not supposed to arouse "emotionalism", and while Colonel Lindburgh holds that "no one wishes to attack us, and no one is in a position to do so," the gubernatorial candidate spellbinds h is listeners with tidings that the menace of Hitler, who, he declares, is trying to

All of which brings us back to the original point . . .

With so many superior persons airing so many authoritative opinions, all entirely different, the danger of our becoming victims of "emotionalism" and panic is much greater from within than from sincere reports of developments in Eu rope.

The little notice which begins with "War News Is Censored," does not go far enough. Added to it should be: "Few of the opinions attributed to superior sources are worthy of your concern. If they were conclusively authoritative, they would all be alike. So read them if you wish, but without placing a great deal of confidence in the sources from which they originate. Your opinion is probably as worthy of consideration anyway."

Mr. Horton, during his years as a public servant has constantly and consistently worked for a safe, forward program of public service. This program included measures for the advancement of: PUBLIC EDUCA-TION, ALL WEATHER HIGHWAYS, AGRICULTURE and SOCIAL SECURITY.

He has to his advantage the benefit of proper training for the position, which he received while ably serving this State as Lieutenant Governor-neither too radical nor too conservative. He has no fantastic promises to make, or new philosophy of government to propose.
