Boy Scouts Practice Many Useful Acts

A review of hundreds of news photographs in "Boys' Life," monthly magazine of the Boy Scouts, shows that Scouts in all parts of the nation are resourceful in their every-day activities and by their daily good turns, unconsciously show their capacity to be helpful to their fellow citizens.

Only recently, a large number of Scouts responded for emergency service within a matter of minutes after the powder plant explosion at Dover, N. J. At Huntington, West Virginia, recently Scouts constructed a sand bag dam when high waters threatened serious damage to residential areas in a recent flood. Sea Scouts who drill in the use of the breeches buoy in rescue work, never know when that skill may be put to actual use but through the years they have been able, because of their training, to save many lives and be helpful at critical times when trained hands are sorely needed.

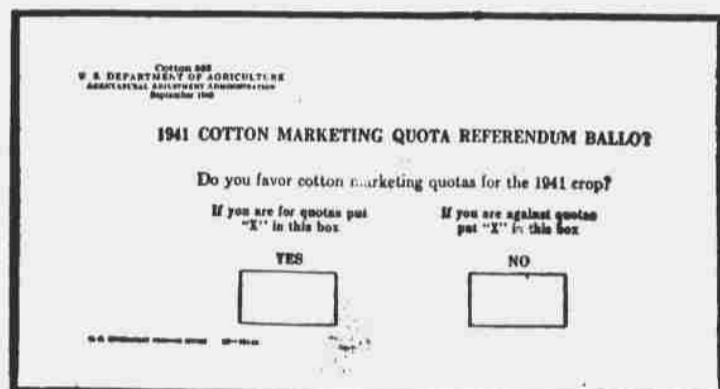

Twenty-two Scouts, all good swimmers, used a swimming pool at the University of Minnesota, to demonstrate that by holding on to a boat completely filled with water, that they could remain afloat until aid comes. These Scouts safety demonstrations have enabled countless spectators to use the same tactics when accidents occur, and thus avoid serious consequences.

Through Scouting boys acquire useful skills and much informal education. Sea Scouts have converted old, unseaworthy boats into safe vessels. They also construct hundreds of new small craft each year. Many Troops of older Scouts are quite adept at erecting wooden bridges and towers that can sustain heavy weights and serve a useful purpose. The Scout Program has made hundreds of thousands of Scouts handy with tools and ropes. The Merit Badge Program with its more than 100 different hobby and vocational subjects has guided many boys into their life work and has given them skills which makes them better citizens because of their ability to take care of themselves and others.

Vote! IN THE COTTON MARKETING QUOTA REFERENDUM, DEC. 7

Cotton producers will have the opportunity on Saturday, December 7, to decide whether cotton marketing quotas, which have been in effect during the past three years, will apply to the 1941 crop. Every producer of cotton should go to his community polling place where he will be given a ballot, like the one shown above, on which to express his opinion. It is both a privilege and a duty of each producer to cast his ballot in the referendum. Whether the referendum is really representative of the farmers' thinking depends upon the number of producers who vote on December 7.

Scouts were hosts at a Scout Camporee to the Hon. Owen J. Roberts, Justice of the United States Supreme Court. He ate the Scout-prepared meals and handed down a favorable decision.

Scouts take part in community projects. They distribute literature for worthy causes, help the Red Cross in numerous ways in their annual Roll Call and the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal campaign and countless other deserving projects.

One Troop of Scouts of a particular religious faith raised several hundred dollars to enable a blind young man, not of the same faith, to receive training with a Seeing Eye Dog. Scouts at Newport, R. I., as a Good Turn Project, have escorted a blind man to his place of business and home again each day for the past four years.

Scouts have a reputation for paying their own way. A Troop at Houston, Texas, earned its camp expenses by operating a dog laundry. When Troop 101, of Story City, Iowa, wanted to raise funds for expenses its members obtained the use of some farm land and planted both sweet corn and pop corn. The proceeds from these products brought enough money to pay the Troop's annual registration dues, finance a summer camping program and enable the boys to build a fine Troop cabin.

This is a cross section of Scouting in America as seen in "Boys' Life," which dedicates itself 'to the entertainment and service of the boys of America, to help them, through good reading, to learn how to do things for themselves and others, to train them in Scoutcraft, and to teach them patriotism, courage, self-reliance and good citizenship, on the basis of the Scout Oath and Law."

Charlotte Man Heads Infantile Paralysis Campaign In N. C.

New York, Dec. 5.—North Carolina will launch its 1941 "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign under the leadership of Dr. Julian S. Miller, Editor of the Charlotte Observer and a leader in the State's social service and education fields.

Dr. Miller will maintain campaign headquarters at the offices of the Charlotte Observer.

In a message to Keith Morgan, National Chairman of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, Dr. Miller accepted the State chairmanship and assured Mr. Morgan that no effort would be spared in this year's campaign against the crippling disease.

Gratified by the prospect of an enthusiastic drive for funds in North Carolina, Mr. Morgan declared: "Our slogan, 'Help the Youngster Around Your Own Corner,' will be a popular one with the people of North Carolina who always have taken care of their own."

"At National Headquarters, we deeply appreciate the generous support which North Carolina has given in the past, and we are confident that the 1941 campaign will call forth the same whole-hearted response as those which have gone before it."

"What we need right now is an army of volunteer workers who will rally behind Dr. Miller and organize the State of North Carolina as it has never been organized before."

Teacher—Now if I lay three eggs here and five eggs there, how many eggs will I have?
Skeptical Pupil—I don't think you can do it.

ABC'S OF WINTER LAYING

Inasmuch as the approach of cold weather often taxes the farmer to keep his hens laying at a high rate, perhaps the following ABC's will help:

- Give the hens warm water on cold mornings.
- Reduce the morning feeding of grain.
- Feed a moist mash at noon each day consisting of laying mash moistened with buttermilk or skim-milk. Three pounds per hundred hens is usually enough.
- Soak three pounds of oats in half gallon of milk for 24 hours and use in place of the regular morning feeding of grain for each 100 hens.
- Feed a few pounds of laying mash pellets late in the afternoon following the regular grain feeding.
- Use artificial lights to lengthen the day.

HANDLE EGGS CAREFULLY

These few precautions about packing eggs will often result in increased profits:

- Clean dirty eggs with a damp cloth dabbed in soda.
- Place eggs in cases with large ends up.
- Pack white and brown eggs separately.
- Don't pack oversized and weak-shelled eggs in cases.
- Deliver eggs at least twice a week.
- Handle eggs carefully in gathering, casing, and marketing. Cracked eggs and broken air cells mean lower prices.—Progressive Farmer.

WINDOW FLOWERS

Try window garden plants for winter cheer. Nasturtium seed may be planted in five-inch pots and set in a sunny window. Oxalis potted now will bloom in six or seven weeks and continue blooming straight through the winter. Other suitable plants are sweet alyssum (set two or three to a six-inch pot) and double camellia-flowered balsam. — The Progressive Farmer.

SOFT GINGERBREAD

Back in the days before war baking day was a gala event on the Southern plantation. Fine breads and cakes galore were put into the hot oven, brought forth to grace heavily laden tables. A favorite then as today was Soft Gingerbread

1/2 cup margarine
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
2 1/2 cups flour
1 cup molasses
1 teaspoon soda (dissolved in one cup boiling water)

Cream the cottonseed oil margarine, add the sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add the well-beaten egg yolks. Sift the spices and flour together and add alternately with the molasses and soda water. Fold in the beaten egg whites. Cook in deep pan that has been well greased and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) until done (about 45 minutes).
