Tyrrell Not Official, According to Washington

The Weekly learned from high auority on Thursday morning that the Navy Department has taken no action in regards to the establishment of their new $5,000,000 air base the opposite direction. in Tyrrell County.

Our informant talked with Conbefore the Board with the request gressman Herbert C. Bonner Wednesday evening and was told that Captain C. E. Rosendahl, Naval official who inspected the sites, has been out of Washington all week and that the Naval Department would notify all concerned when the site was definitely chosen.

According to information given out on Wednesday it was stated that the North Carolina Highway Commission has been informed that the Navy will probably choose Tyrrell County for the site, and as the result of this gossip the Commission pledged themselves to build a hard surface road to the site offered in that county.

Norman Trueblood, acting in be half of the Hertford Lions Club and other interested citizens of the county, submitted a prospectus of two land sites available for the proposed Naval Air Base to Captain C. E. Rosendahl for his consideration in choosing the location of this new Naval base.

Practically every county in eastern North Carolina is making a strong hid for this new project and it is not known as yet just where the base will be located, but The Weekly has learned from a high authority that Captain Rosendahl favors some site between the north of the Albemarle Sound and the Virginia State line.

Time for the definite choosing of the site has not been learned, but from indications it is believed that! Naval authorities are anxious to bein the construction of the base soon.

The sites in Perquimans County submitted by Mr. Trueblood were the Nixon farm located between Hertford and Winfall on Route 17, and the J. H. Newbold farm located on the Pender Road. A complete prospectus of these properties was drawn up by Mr. Prieblood and mailed to Captain tosendahl on last Friday.
