The first act of warfare in the Atlantic Ocean, affecting the United States, occurred in the South Atlantic ruthless and illegal attacks. on May 21, when a German submarine, after hailing the freighter Robin Moor, flying the American flag, deliberately sunk the American the result of Germany's determined ship.

Russia, the impression has gone abroad that Finland is an ally of Germany. The Finns deny this and insist that their war aims are set but that they cannot, for strategic reasons, permit the Russians to know the limit of their objectives. It should be understood, of course, that any attempt on the part of Finland to conclude its war against Russia will probably cause Germany to take drastic action against the tiny demo-

Obviously, so long as Finland was engaged in recapturing territory taken from her by Russia, there was justification in Finnish action. Now, with this objective largely attained, continued Finnish participation makes the democratic nation an active ally of Germany and an impediment to the defeat of Hitler.

Jap Crisis Ahead? Tokyo Opportunist. U. S. Stands Firm.

Relations between the United States and Japan are to reach a crisis on November 15th, when the extraordinary session of the Japanese Diet assembles, according to reports from Tokyo.

While the implied warning may constitute Japanese pressure upon the United States for concessions in order to prevent Japan from positive action, there is much evidence that the Japanese Government is preparing the people of the Empire for an inevitable clash in the Pacific. The Japanese intimate that there is a time-limit to their patience and that the United States must abandon its objections to Japanese objectives or face the possibility that Japan will actively join the Axis group in the prosecution of war. The Japanese press does not bite its tongue, insisting that the United States must give up its policy of encirclement and abandon economic sanctions against Japan. The United States is pictured as a nation motivated by a warlike puipose and, of course, Japan is presented as the champion of a New Order which is to include world peace. Regardless of the absurdity of the Japanese official position, the people of the United States should not under-estimate the threat that exists in the Far East. With our Navy divided between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, and, excepting only battleship strength, the Japanese Navy is numerically stronger than that of this country. Every cruiser, destroyer and submarine in the Atlantic increases the marginal superiority of the Japanese fleet. It has been noticeable that the Japanese attitude toward the United States in the Facific fluctuates with the success or failure of German campaigns in Europe. When the Germans are sweeping their foes before them, Tokyo talks boldly, but when the war psychology turns against Germany, the Japanese begin to speak more peacefully. Obviously, the Japanese are watching world events very closely and intend to auter their policy to fit any opportunity that presents itself. That the United States will find it impossible to meet the Japanese demands is obvious to anyone who understands the course of Japanese conduct in recent years. The price that Japan demands for peace in the Pacific includes the abandonment of China, the recognition of Manchukuo, recognition of Japanese superior rights in the Far East, and the end of encirclement and the abandonment of economic restrictions. Should the United States attempt to buy peace at this price, there is no reason to suspect that Japan would be natisfied and every reason to expect additional Japanese demands.

Funeral Services For A. J. Broughton

Although farmers are asked to sell' their scrap metal as a service to the ing money, they are not expected to give it away, says Dr. I. O. Schaub, director of the N. C. State College sonic Lodge in charge. Extension Service.

Price ceilings have been set for iron and steel scarp by the Government as a means of preventing proof defense. For a farmer to know what a fair price would be locally, mary points, the differentials between these points and his area, and he must understand how the metal is handled.

Dr. Schaub explained that scrap collected by dealers must be "prepared." Different kinds of scrap have different uses, and, therefore, must be sorted and graded by experienced men.

Then it must be put in a form convenient for shipping and handling at the mill. For example, bulky scrap is compressed into bales, and heavy awkward shapes are cut by torches and shares into materials that can be bundled and shipped. The average cost of this preparation is $2.50 per gross ton (2,240 pounds).

> The Office of Price Administration has established that the maximum price of unprepared scrap is the maximum price for the corresponding grade of prepared scrap minus $2.50 per gross ton.

Farms have long been one of the most important sources of scrap supplies, the Extension director pointed out. It is especially important now, he went on, that the flow of scrap from farms be increased to the highest possible point.
