IT'S A SMALLER WORLD

Not very many years ago, a farm family was a pretty isolated and self-contained unit of civilization. The problems of that family, and the solution of those problems, were fairly well confined within the fences of the farm itself.

That has been changed by modern inventions.

First came the automobile, with its traveling companion, the hard-surfaced road. That made the farmer a better and closer neighbor. It became an hour's trip to town and back, instead of a whole day's journey.

Then along came the RFD, which brought the farmer his mail, and his daily paper, right to his front gate every day. He began to know what was happening, not only in the county seat, but in the nation and the world.

And finally the radio arrived, with the effect of making the whole world a group of neighbors. There was a time when there could be a war in China, and we wouldn't know a thing about it for six months. And every school boy knows that the battle of New Orleans was won by "Old Hickory" several weeks after the war was over and peace declared!

That can never happen again. We know about battles in Europe, or torpedoes in the Indian Ocean, actually while they are taking place. Truly, it's a smaller, more intimate world.

The benefits we have all enjoyed from modern transportation and modern communication must not be regarded as one-way tickets to better fuller living. If we have more neighbors, we must have more neighborliness.

A drought, or a war, on the other side of the world, which used to seem a million miles away, now takes place, so far as effect is concerned, in our own yards. We have become a part of the world. Perhaps we still live off the main highway, but our individual farm, large or small, is itself a part of the world, with a full share of responsibility toward the millions of neighbors we now have.

We can no longer tell ourselves "Let those foreigners settle their own affairs; we got troubles of my own." That doesn't work any more.

Look at the present world-wide struggle if you want a case history. We didn't make the war; perhaps we didn't contribute a single factor to its underlying causes. Definitely, it's not our war. We don't want to be in it at all. But we feel the effects of it, whether we like it or not. If you need any further evidence that we have a responsibility in this war, just think of what your tax bill will be next year, and for all the years to come.

We are neighbors of the whole world. We have to be neighborly.

Cows Help Increase Total Farm Income

The farmer who keeps five to ten cows and pays strict attention to their feeding, breeding, and management knows the meaning of balanced farming and permanent security, according to Fred M. Haig, professor of animal husbandry and dairying at N. C. State College.

Within less than 50 years, the production and utilization of milk have so increased that today the United States is the greatest of the dairy nations. Around 25,000,000 cows are milked daily on three-quarters of the country's 6,000,000 farms.

Although dairying has made steady progress in North Carolina, especially during the past 15 years, there are still far too many farms not owning a single dairy cow. This is especially true of cotton and tobacco farms, Haig said.

The State College professor said he doesn't advocate getting rid of tobacco and cotton on most farms but that he does advise strongly the addition of a few cows as a sideline to the cash crop income.

On thousands of these farms, he pointed out, sufficient feed for five to ten cows could be raised without interfering with the production of the regular cash crops.

He also explained that the dairy industry is closely related to the maintenance of soil fertility, and the farmer must consider this an indirect profit. In other words, the livestock farmer gives back much of what he takes from the land. Then, too, he anchors the soil. Valuable top soil does not wash or blow off in dust from hillsides where grass is green and cattle graze.

UNCLE SAM'S MEN-O-WAR'S MEN PUSH LEATHER WITH THE BEST

When Richmond Pearson Hobson sunk the Merrimac in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba in an attempt to bottle up Cervera's Spanish fleet, the handful of United States Navy heroes aboard the Merrimac were pitched into Morro Castle prison. Their Spanish captors dug up a couple of old sets of boxing gloves for the U. S. seamen, indicating that even years ago the reputation of Uncle Sam's fighting Navy men was recognized the world over.

Today, under the direction of Lieutenant Commander Gene (retired heavyweight champ) Tunney, U. S. N. R., and hundreds of other seasoned coaches, leather pushing continues to top all Navy sports in popularity on shipboard.

With the addition of thousands of new recruits for our new "Two-Ocean" Navy, the old game of swat and duck is destined to turn out some new champions in addition to whipping our sailors into keen fighting condition.

In the past the Navy has turned out a great array of champions and near champions. Outstanding Navy fighters whose early Navy training pointed the way to the big time in later civilian life include such names as Jack and Tom Sharkey, Gunboat Smith, Sailor Burke, Yankee Sullivan, George Gunther, Frank Moran, Sammy Robideau, Charley Grande, Billie Walters, Denny Tighe, Eddie Roberts, Sammy Whalen, Heinie Orchard, Frankie Kirk, Sailor Leo Lomski, Honey Boy Finnegan, Joe Fisher, Eddie Huffman, Eddie and Billie Shevlin, Sammy Truikle, Young Sailor or Boy Dencio, Danny Duarte and a host of others not to mention the Navy Marine Corps' Gene Tunney and George LaBlanche!

Some of you old timers may remember LaBlanche as the punching sailor of 1890 who flattened the original Jack Dempsey, then middleweight champion of the world, in the 32nd round of a fight that had been all Dempsey's for 31 rounds.

Others of you may recall colorful ringster Sailor Billy Jordan who started his boxing career as a middleweight on the U. S. S. Hartford. Billy in his later announcing days was the one who named Stanley Ketchel the Michigan Assassin and Joe Gans the Old Master. The names stuck and when old Sailor Jordan passed away one of the Navy's pioneer boxers and one of ringdom's favorites was lost to the boxing game.

Today in the Navy boxing is a steadily growing sport. Inter-ship and inter-division competition is keen. Practically every ship in the U. S. Fleet has its stable of boxers and from our fleet may come the man who will beat Joe Louis.

Recently enlisted professionals include Steve Belloise, George Abrams and Cal Cagni. All three have joined the Naval Reserve and are stationed at Jacksonville, Florida.

One of the most versatile Navy leather pushers at the present time is young Bud Adams, present All-Navy champion in the middleweight division. In addition to his boxing prowess Bud is also the present middleweight and lighthweight wrestler on the Mississippi, the ship on which he serves. Adams handles the Mississippi boxing stable and has made quite a name for himself as a coach.

All Navy bouts are run according to A. A. U. rules as to time of bouts and weights. Selections of fights between divisions are made according to Golden Gloves arrangement. Prizes are offered to individual champions and to winning divisions. One of the best chances for any youngster to show his stuff is in the U. S. Navy roped squares. It is our private opinion that if the Navy lads were to put on the gloves with the average fighter appearing in professional club bouts, the sailors would carry off most of the honors.

All told, we have a world of respect for the training and opportunities offered by the U. S. Navy and recommend that every patriotic young man give thought to this branch of our armed forces as his means of serving his country and protecting his future.
