

A REPORT ON FRIENDS CONFERENCE

By Mrs. L. J. Winslow

For the benefit of members of the North Carolina Yearly meeting from this area who did not attend the Conference, and for others who might be interested, I write this account.

The Woman's Missionary Union of Friends in America held its twentieth general conference at Guilford College June 2 to 6, with officials and representatives from Maine to California. The Eleven Yearly meetings sending delegates were: New York, New England, Baltimore, Indiana, Wilmington, Ohio, Western, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, California and North Carolina.

The setting for the occasion was ideal. At this time of the year the Guilford College campus is at its best in colorful array, with its giant magnolia blossoms, variegated roses, beds and borders of larkspur, blooming geraniums, etc.

The weather was somewhat hot, but there was plenty of breeze. And the cats—well, with our rationing books and extra coffee and sugar, the daily meals were adequate and sufficient, and numerous teas were thrown in for good measure.

The fellowship, messages of song, word and deeds, gave abundant spiritual food.

The first session of the conference included welcome addresses by Mrs. Ruth Buttel, president of N. C. W. M. U., and Mrs. Angelina Wood, president of New Garden W. M. U., both of Guilford College.

Amy J. Marvel, of Richmond, Ind., National president, in her gracious and courageous manner, announced the conference theme, "Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord. Make His Paths Straight."—Mark 1:3, and gave the opening address.

It is impossible to write of all of the good things by all of the good people on the daily programs, so I will attempt only to touch some of the high spots.

Dorothy Pittman, for 14 years a missionary to Western Indiana, now editor of the "Missionary Advocate," spoke of the delights of being the first to see and analyze the fresh reports and the dependence of any paper upon the reports of its various correspondents. After she had finished her verbal report she said "any one wishing a fuller and written report could get it by sending 75c to the editor."

Since our Study Book the past year has been Latin America, Merle Davis, executive secretary of Friends Board of Missions, presented technical pictures of Mexico and Cuba.

May Jensen, of Eau Claire, Wis., Education honor roll leader, mentioned as a special reader Marian Kelsey, now of Rami Allah, Palestine. She said the increasing vigor of the books selected for the reading list was a compliment to the intelligence of the readers.

Dean Beittel of Guilford College, spoke forcefully on "Highways of the King in U. S. A.," and based his thought on Isaiah 40. He told of our lack of National unity, of the unequal distribution of wealth, of injustice to small minorities, of race discrimination, and warned against danger from dissensions within. He said a nation can withstand an enemy from without. It is the inner enemy that destroys it.

Dr. Ruth Hull Bennett, of Ohio, former Missionary to India, had with her a large collection of saris, and around them she wove a story of the lives of the women of India. With one of these, a gorgeous crimson, one and one-half yards wide by six yards long, she showed the conference how to make of the one piece of cloth a skirt, waist, head covering, veil a lovely pair of loose trousers, or a blanket. Then she draped on living models eight other types and colors.

Mildred Volow, of Indianapolis, Ind., in the Junior and Primary work, emphasized the close relation of adult conduct with childhood impressions, and so stressed the importance of teaching children to respect the ideas and customs of other nations and races. For example, the Chinese invented printing and they read up and down, while we read sideways—it is we who are backward.

Representing the United Council of church Women, Anita Kelsey Douglas of Detroit, Mich., told of the work done among the uprooted citizens of Detroit. Four hundred churches of the city cooperate with the USO in this work.

Gracia Booth's address "Extending a Helping Hand to our Japanese American Neighbors," led her hearers into the souls and spirit of these people. The Friends Church of Cincinnati is sponsoring this movement in the hostel of 28 at the present.

Edward and Violet Linton and Arthur and Westine Shufelt are interesting young people who are working in Tennessee and Oklahoma and doing what they can to turn the Indian trails into a Highway of the King.

Jennie Collister, secretary of the Home Missions Council, with interest and enthusiasm, used blackboards and explained the migrant work. First by Inter-church agencies, through the development of migrant problems and how solved. She said in Arkansas 50,000 migrants are needed for strawberries.

In one county in California are

40,000 acres of potatoes, hence the need of a large number of migrants. Florida has 30,000 bean farms which draw the Mexicans and Bahamans. Last she showed the development of the Council program for migrants; and now in 19 states a year-around and varied program is provided for the whole migrant family. Ministers in trailers with their families go from place to place to help them. She said sing the migrant hymn, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life and Thirst of Them."

A most enjoyable feature of the entire delegation to Springfield Meeting, near High Point, where on that quiet hilltop overlooking the field of seven springs a meeting was first held in 1773. They got out their old "photograph album" and showed us pictures of loyal ancestors of whom the present members are direct descendants. Pictures of five little girls were shown from the album, who after 70 years are still active members. These "girls" were asked to stand and the twins, Ada and Emma Blair, were that day celebrating their birthday anniversary, so all sang "Happy Birthday, Dear Twins." After a visit to the "Old Domestic Art" museum and to the new minister's home, a sumptuous supper was enjoyed on the lawn.

Another pageant "In Faith and In Unity," three scenes in the life of Guilford College and N. C. Yearly Meeting, written by Dorothy Gilbert of Guilford teaching staff, was ably presented during the conference and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Other prominent speakers of the conference included James Coney, executive secretary of New England Y. M. C. Norvel Webb, pastor First Friends Church, Richmond, Ind.; Melton Hadley, director of Quaker Hill, Ind.; Dr. Clyde Milner, president of Guilford College.

This was indeed a great conference, and will long be remembered by all who were present.
