Well Done, Neighbors

It would be amiss for The Weekly to go to press this week without offering congratulations to the residents of Perquimans and to the County's War Finance Committee for the splendid response in the Third War Loan.

Perquimans County met its $261,000 quota on last Saturday, the second County in the Albemarle to meet its goal, so far as we know, and now the figures in the drive are climbing to a new high.

It is indeed a splendid achievement and one that bond buyers as well as bond sellers can be proud of. . . it's a message to the boys from this county now in the armed forces that the folks at home are backing them in the fight to victory.

We salute those who participated in the drive, either by selling or buying bonds . . . and say, "Another job well done, neighbors."

What Germans Hear

Here is a sample of what the German people are told by their Government in connection with present war operation:

An official communique, issued in Berlin, refers to the eastern front saying, "Our own movements are proceeding according to plan."

About the two weeks' fighting in the Salerno area, Berlin says this "did not result in the expected operative success to Anglo-American landing formations" and that the "Anglo-American plan of operations based on Badoglio's treason has thus been fully frustrated."

It may be presumed, however, that the German people know that the Red Army is making continuous progress in the East and that the Anglo-Americans are extending their possession of Italian territory. Gradually, the Nazi populace will understand what these gains mean to the German home front.

Strategy Justified

Heavy fighting between American and British and German troops in Italy ought to be the answer to those Americans who have thought that a second front could not be opened except across the English channel.

The presence of Anglo-American soldiers in Italy, the heart of Europe, has compelled Germany to regroup her entire military strength and, when all the facts are revealed, will go far to explain the steady retirement of Nazi troops in Russia.

The success of the Mediterranean strategy of the United Nations proves the soundness of the judgment of our military leaders. It justifies Winston Churchill who, when England stood alone, courageously shipped men and guns and tanks and planes, via South Africa, to build up an army in Egypt.

A Brighter Farm Outlook

In estimating the reaction of Congress to the food problems of the day, it is often rewarding to study the attitudes of the leaders of the various large farm organizations. For, if labor still rules the White House, the Farm Bloc still largely swings Congress.

For that reason the meeting of President Roosevelt with the heads of the Grange, the Farm Bureau, the Farmer Co-operatives, and the Farmers Union is interesting. The general tone, from all reports, was harmonious.

The chief item of reconciliation appears to be a change in the President's attitude toward subsidies. Heretofore he has looked upon them chiefly as a means for lowering of food prices. This has meant that the subsidy might be given at some level of distribution, the amount reaching the producer being problematical.

Now, goes the Washington report, the President recognizes the need for greater production, and is thinking of subsidies in terms of getting the sort of production needed not only to lower domestic prices but to supply a larger part of the world requirement.

In view of subsidies, the farm

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS AND THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

International Sunday School Lesson For October 3

Golden Text: "Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets; I came not to destroy, but to fulfill."—Matthew 5:17.

Lesson Text: Matthew 5:17-20; 19:16-22; John 5:39-40.

It is a splendid course of lessons which we have during these last three months of this year—the Ten Commandments and Jesus' expansion of each law; the Old Testament legislation and the New Testament interpretation; the morality of the Old Testament and the Christianity of the New Testament.

The law was given to Moses by God; grace and truth by Jesus Christ. The Ten Commandments are an attempt at expressing in words God's code for man's conduct, but only Jesus can tell us how to live rightly with one another. Jesus goes behind the outward act to the inward motive, and it is, after all, the motive that counts. Standards of morality have differed from age to age; the Christian's privilege is to look above all other standards to Christ's standard of absolute righteousness. The goal of His teaching is Christ-like living.

Nothing which Jesus ever said in all of His teaching could ever be rightly construed as contrary to the law which God had established. In the words of our Golden Text, Jesus declared, "Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets; I came not to destroy, but to fulfill." Jesus was fully aware that the Pharisees would accuse him of doing just that—destroying the law.

A study of the verses 20-48 shows us that they are a series of illustrations of the way in which he would have the law and the prophets fulfilled, for he would have his followers go much farther than the Old Testament law required. While Moses and the prophets had laid a firm foundation on which to build, God's revelation to them was not final. It was necessary for Jesus to emphasize that obeying the letter of the law was not enough—that one should also obey the spirit of the law.

Jesus also declared that, "Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law, till all things be accomplished." The jot was the smallest of the Hebrew letters, as iota was of the Greek. Tittle is the leaders are apparently in accord. If Congressional support develops, as we hope it will, there may be time to correct and greatly enlarge the inadequate 1944 farm planning plans.—Christian Science Monitor.

Income Taxes Simplified

Some fifteen million Americans, who had to make an income tax return in September are now thinking backward to the good old days when you made one return a year and then struggled for the next nine months to get the money for the three installments as they fell due.

The reader will recall that, early in 1943, there was a great agitation for a "simpler" form of tax returns and much propaganda about a "pay-as-you-go" system that was destined, so we were told, to make income tax payments practically painless.

Whereas last year most Americans, who paid income taxes, made one return in March, the new, simplified system calls for returns in September, December and a final report in March of next year. The taxpayer has to guess at his income, his tax and then at his bank account which, he hopes, will take care of the present installment.

projecting point in some of the Hebrew letters. "The small strokes that distinguish from one another otherwise similar letters of the Hebrew alphabet." In other words, God's law is immutable and everlasting, and it is as necessary that we obey this law now as it was in the days of the prophet Moses.

However, in his conversation with the rich young man, Jesus showed that just keeping the Commandments is not enough. In questioning the young man, Jesus learned that he had kept all the Commandments from his youth up and yet he realized that something still was lacking. "What lack I yet?" he asked, in his quest for eternal life.

Realizing what was wrong, Jesus counseled the young man to go and sell all his property, give the proceeds to the poor and, then, to come and follow him. Ordinarily, it would not be wise for a wealthy man to give away all of his property, rather it would be best for him to manage it wisely and spend generously for the welfare of others. But Jesus realized that this young man was so wrapped up in his possessions that they kept him from God; and, in order to get into right relations with his Heavenly Father, it was necessary to part with all of it.

Paul wisely said, "The love of money is the root of all evil," and Emerson also declared that the worst thing about money truly is that it often costs us so much. Faced with the choice between earthly wealth and "treasure in heaven," the young man turned his back on the very thing which would have given him the most real contentment.

In our last reference, taken from John's gospel, Jesus declared, "Ye search the scriptures, because ye think that in them ye have eternal life." He is not condemning the "searching of the scriptures," but he is declaring that the scriptures are only a guide, a map along the journey of life—that the only way to "eternal life" is by acceptance of Christ, who is the only way. F. B. Meyer advises: "Christ is the Way; love Christ, trust Christ, obey Christ, be concerned with Christ, and all else will be added. Christ is the Way."

Frederick F. Shannon declares: "Any man who reads his Bible without going beyond the written words to the Saviour of whom they tell, is simply a Pharisee living two thousand years later than his religious ancestors in old Jerusalem. Study your Bible; commit it to memory; teach it to others; feed upon it morning, noon and night. But always remember, because very good people sometimes forget it, that the supreme purpose of the Bible is to bring you into first-hand, heart-to-heart, spirit-to-spirit communion and fellowship with God."
