Doc finally agreed on this point

We had a real old-time church supper the other night. Bert Childers played the fiddle, and the ladies brought refreshments. Of course, we missed the boys who were away—but all in all it was mighty pleasant.

Only sour note was Doc McGinnis. "Shucks," says Doc, "we oughtn't to be enjoyin' ourselves when American soldiers are over there fightin' a war."

Now from where I sit, Doc's absolutely wrong. All of us are working overtime to help the war. We've got our worries and troubles. It's a mighty good thing we can relax with a little wholesome enjoyment.

And I believe it's what the men over there would have us do... keep up the little friendly customs they remember—like the evening get-togethers, having a glass of beer with friends, and all the little pleasures they look forward to enjoying.

MAJOR GREGG CHERRY

Read What Gregg Cherry's Pastor Says

DR. C. E. ROZZELLE of High Point, pastor of High Point's Wesley Memorial Methodist Church and native of Gaston County:

"If he lives until next January, your fellow townsman and distinguished citizen, Robert Gregg Cherry, will be the next governor of North Carolina.

"Thirty-six years ago Gregg Cherry and I rode away together on a train out of this county of our nativity to old Trinity College at Durham, he to become a lawyer and leader, and I to become a minister and servant.

"The years passed and twenty-seven years later our paths crossed again when I became pastor of Gastonia's Main Street Methodist Church and found Gregg Cherry serving as an active member of that church and a member of its official board. For six years we worked together jointly in that church with the finest of fellowship and cooperation, until I moved on to another pastorate.

"Today, thirty-six years since that day we left for college on the train together, Gregg Cherry and I meet again on the same platform, he as your most distinguished citizen and leader, and I am present as a friend to speak a word of endorsement of his success and glorious achievement.

"Gregg Cherry grew up here in this community as an orphan, reared by his grandparents and uncle, over on Airline avenue, among the common people, without wealth and social standing, without the luxuries to which others were accustomed. He helped work his own way through school and college. He came home to take his place in his home community as a lawyer.

"Gregg rose by dint of hard and laborious effort. He was called away early in the development of his law practice to fight his nation's battles in World War One on a foreign shore. For many months he led his men on the battlefronts in Europe, facing day and night the hail of German bullets and the burst of shells when seemed to have no ending. At last, home again after the war, he took up his work in private and public life becoming mayor of Gastonia, member of the General Assembly, Speaker of the House and serving in numerous other important capacities.

"Gregg Cherry stands higher today in the knowledge of North Carolina's affairs than any other citizen. There is no one today anywhere more able to carry on the work of Aycock and Vance, of Morrison and Gardner, of Hoey and Broughton and our other leaders of previous and present administrations than our own friend and fellow worker, Robert Gregg Cherry.

"To him no man is a stranger. To the poor man at his labor, the rich man in his business life, the minister in his pulpit and the culprit standing before the bar in court awaiting sentence. To all groups and classes, parties and religions, Gregg Cherry will be the great common denominator for all men in their tears and tragedies and in their successes and joys. Let us march to the polling places and roll up an unprecedented majority for this man and make ourselves proud of our achievement in electing him to the highest office in North Carolina."
