Parrot Buried 3 Days Swears at Rescuers

LONDON. - Rescue crews who had dug through the wreckage of a bombed-out London house for three days searching for a parrot got the bird recently.

The acid-tongued parrot emerged from the debris swearing lustily at his rescuers and was turned over to his owner, still muttering unprintable words.

Russ Girls Learn Fineries of Life

Campaign Started to Teach Them to Be Ladies.

MOSCOW. - The Russians, who have been so busy winning the war that they have had little time to deal with some of the fineries of life, are starting a new campaign to teach girls how to be little ladies.

The campaign is headed by Maria Butkevich, director of school No. 516, Moscow, who invented the slogan, "There ought to be a corner of order in every school." Soviet schools, factories and clubs all have different kinds of corners, some devoted to literature, some to the Red army, some to political education, etc. Corners of order will include soap, towels, needles and thread.

In recognition of differences in capacities between boys and girls at certain ages, the Russians opened separate schools for boys and girls last September, and they now are past the experimental stage. They have worked out well, and authorities are of the opinion they should be continued. The primary purpose of the girls' schools was to make them better patriots and prepare them for society and for motherhood.

For years, of course, the Russians have been one of the most polite and gracious people in the world. Their old society was one of the lushest in Europe, and under the Soviets official life has continued the same with great emphasis on formalities.

With the coming of the war, evacuations, and with virtually everyone working for the front, the attention which the authorities would have liked to give this aspect of life had to be devoted to something else.

But now new courses will include thorough instruction in discipline and morals, says teacher Butkevich, will show the youngsters how to behave in the company of adults as well as other children, and how to behave in such public places as theatem, restaurants and stores.

Cling to Broken Vessel 33 Hours, 61 Tars Saved

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT.-Rescued after clinging 33 hours to the after section of a torpedoed ship in an Atlantic blizzard, 61 Allied seamen have been brought to this port aboard a rescue vessel. Besides the sailors landed here, 11 sel have been taken to an American be properly installed. port by a British cargo ship which after they stood by the tossing remnant of their ship in seas too rough a closed building because of the for a transfer. All crew members danger of monoxide poisoning. The were saved and none was injured tractor operator should use the seat seriously.

The sailors recounted how their vessel broke cleanly in halves two minutes after the torpedo hit. The forward half, with no men aboard, was whisked away by the high seas.

Charlie Cleveman of Boston, 21year-old utility boy, jumped from the after section onto a tossing raft, holding the ship's cat, Backout, in a pillow slip. The cat was saved.

485 Sought Part of Big Estate; Three Receive It

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. - A jury decided that three first cousins, one deceased since his claim was filed, were entitled to the estate of Michael Francis O'Dea, estimated at $4,000,000 and contested by 485 litigants for six years.

O'Dea, recluse real estate man, died intestate in 1938. The cousins are Mrs. Bridget Lynch Woulfe of County Claire, Ireland, and Mrs. Mary Lynch McCarthy of Limerick, Ireland. The cousin who died was James Lynch. The jury ruled that his four sons in County Claire should receive his share.

Lucy Fay Bales, who claimed she was Q'Dea's daughter by a dancer, was declared by the jury to be un-related to him. Relationship of 35 second cousins was recognized by the jurors, and they will share in the estate through an out-of-court agreement with the first cousins.

Children Continue Game

While Playmate Drowns

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y.-Six-year-old Jean McCormick led her young house-guests, Arne Johnson, 7, and his brother, Daniel, 4, of Branchville, Conn., to a nearby pond for an afternoon's fun sliding on the ice. Later, the Johnson children returned to the house, began playing games. Members of the household vondered where Jean was.

When the youngsters were asked, they replied: "She fell through the ice on the pend."

James McCormick ran to the pond, there found his daughter rowned under the ice.

Farm Land Shows Increased Value

The value of North Carolina farm real estate is now approximately $55 per acre, around 55 per cent higher than the average of $35-per-acre value from 1935 to 1939, Frank Parker, chief statistician, State Department of Agriculture, has announced

Parker said that farm real estate values in South Carolina., Tennessee. and Kentucky have increased from 60 to 100 per cent in the past six

In the Nation, he said, the increase in values was about 15 per cent from Fields, E. M., 1 Grubb St. lot July, 1943, to July, 1944, with the Goodwin, J. R., 30 acres Perry land; 13 acres Goodwin land; 23 acres increase during the past four months around one third as large as that from November, 1943, to March,1944.

While the value of farm land in the South Atlantic states is 48 points above the United States index of 100 set up in 1912-14, the increase for the Nation is only 17 points above this average, according to Parker.

"The volume of voluntary sales during the 12 months ended in March was up one-fifth from the previous year and the highest on record, going above the 1919 peak by about 10 per

"The proportion of sales by owner operators has increased to just over two-fifths of all sales, farmers bought approximately two-thirds of all tracts transferred, and a substantial net movement of land into owner operation continued. The volume of farm resales after a short period of ownership remained at a significant level, indicating that there has been quite a bit of speculation in farm land," said Parker.

He added that the national survey showed that the proportion of sales made by owner operators and retired farmers continued to increase, but sales by credit agencies again de-

"Owner operators as a class appear to be selling about one-fifth more land than they are buying. As the result of purchases by tenants, however, a substantial net movement of land into the hands of farmer operators continues. As a group, active farmers are buying somewhat over 50 per cent more land than they are selling," asserted

Operate Your Farm Machinery Safely

According to national safety authorities about 29 out of every 100 accidents on the farm are caused by careless use of tractors and other farm machinery.
