

Get Extra Feed By Temporary Grazing

Temporary grazing crops for late fall and early spring grazing offer one of the best methods of increasing feed supplies, say Extension Agronomists at N. C. State College.

There are various combinations that may be used and the following rates of seeding are recommended: 10 pounds of rye grass and 15 pounds of crimson clover; 20 pounds of crimson clover and 1 bushel each of barley and rye; 2 bushels of oats and 1 bushel of wheat; and 20 to 30 pounds of crimson clover.

Heavier seedings of small grains than usual will furnish both grazing and grain. The recommended seedings are 3 bushels of barley, 2 to 2 1/2 bushels of wheat, or 2 bushels of rye.

Where a grower is in doubt as to the best variety of crop to be grown, he should consult his county agent and ask for information as to which varieties are producing the best grazing for the particular section.

Dates of seeding are very important and these will vary over the state. Earliness of seeding and relative heavy fertilization to speed up the production of a good soil cover before cold weather are two of the most important factors in producing successful grazing crops, according to farmers' reports and Experiment Station tests.

During the 1943-44 season exceptionally fine temporary grazing crops were reported from all sections of North Carolina. Some almost unbelievable records were established, with very large numbers of animals being grazed on comparatively small areas where thick sods were obtained.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them! Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feeling tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help in the removal of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed by the majority of our best hospital doctors. Sold at all drug stores.
