WEDDING TRIP ENDS WITH TWO NORFOLK YOUTHS BEING JAILED FOR CAR THEFT

Melvin Prince and Italo Resurrection, 16-year-old youths from Portsmouth, Va., were arrested here this week by Policeman Tommy Miller, after investigation revealed the youths were traveling in a stolen car.

The youths, accompanied by Italo's fiancée, left Norfolk early Monday evening to come to North Carolina, where Italo and his bride-to-be expected to be married. According to the youths, they stopped in South Mills, but the parents of the young lady had phoned officials there not to marry the couple, so the three proceeded to Hertford.

On arrival here late Monday night their actions aroused the suspicion of Officer Miller, who asked Prince for his driver's license, when Prince could not produce these he was placed in jail for investigation. Meanwhile the bridal pair was united in marriage here Tuesday morning after having obtained a marriage license.

Prince broke jail shortly after Morgan Hudson, another prisoner, had escaped, and picked up Italo and his bride, recovered the stolen car and started back to Norfolk. Near Winfall they ran out of gasoline and ditched the car, then started walking up the railroad track toward Elizabeth City. Patrolman Charles Payne, on the lookout for the escaped prisoner, took them in custody a short distance from Winfall. On his return to jail Prince told local authorities that Resurrection had stolen the car and picked him up to drive to this State. Resurrection was then arrested and placed in jail but denied all charges.

Meanwhile local authorities notified the Virginia police about the prisoners and officials from Norfolk came here Wednesday to return the youthful pair to Norfolk.

Evidently the pair had gotten together during their night's stay in jail, for on Wednesday morning Prince told local police that he had unjustly accused Resurrection, and that it was he, Prince, who had stolen the car. This statement was somewhat supported by a statement of the young girl, who said that Resurrection was at her home when Prince came driving up in the car before they began the wedding trip.
