

Important Factors In Curing Potatoes

The two most important factors involved in the successful curing and storing of sweet potatoes are control of moisture and uniformity of temperature, says J. Y. Lassiter, Extension horticulturist at State College. When the house is filled with potatoes for curing, raise the temperature to about 80 to 85 degrees and at the same time give the house all possible ventilation. This temperature of 80 to 85 degrees should be maintained during the curing period, which usually lasts from ten to fourteen days, depending upon the weather and the condition of the potatoes. Proper curing can be determined by the velvety feel of the potatoes and signs of sprouting throughout the house. When the curing period is completed, reduce the temperature as soon as possible to around 50 degrees. Lassiter says that it is most important to keep the temperature from dropping below 45 degrees during the storage period. Sweet potatoes are very easily damaged by temperatures below the 45 degree point. Lassiter suggests that the sweet potato storage house be supplied with a number of standard thermometers. One should be placed near the floor and one near the top of the house so that observations may be made on heat and ventilation in the different sections. He also suggests that only one man be placed in charge of the storage house.

Sweet potatoes are best stored in crates or bushel tub type baskets with lids. They should be stacked just as in a box car for shipping. It is a good plan to keep the different grades of potatoes separate.

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and irregular habits, improper eating, drinking—in risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up at night, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Songs for a Better World

We were sitting around the embers of Ed Crumplit's barbecue last Saturday night, finishing our beer and hot dogs while Ed strummed the guitar... picking out old, friendly songs.

Soon everyone was singing. The harmony wasn't too good... but the spirit was—a spirit of friendship and good humor.

And it made me think how music—music of the people—overcomes barriers of prejudice and intolerance. A Yankee folksong or an English carol or a Southern melody—they all speak a common language of the heart... bind folks together... help us forget our grudges.

From where I sit, music can help to make the whole world kin. Maybe we ought to have a lot more of it... informal sings around the fire, and in the home. And it's sure true that a mellow glass of beer fits into the picture. It just naturally goes with that kind of music.
