

Britt-Keaton Vows Spoken December 22

The marriage of Miss Eloise Keaton, daughter of Mrs. Mary B. Keaton and the late Robert R. Keaton, of Hertford, to Edward Britt, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Britt, of Wilmington, took place on December 22 at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the Chapel in the Woods, Norfolk Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va.

Chaplain Seldomridge heard the vows and performed the double ring ceremony at the altar which was decorated with palms, candles, evergreens and white gladioli. The program of wedding music was rendered by the chapel organist and soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, F. T. Mathews, wore a wedding gown of white slipper satin fashioned with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, long sleeves tapered to a point at the hand and a full bouffant skirt forming a circular train. She wore a finger tip veil of illusion and carried a brides' bouquet of white rose buds centered with an orchid.

Miss Katherine White, of Richmond, Va., was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a gown of yellow chiffon dotted swiss fashioned with high round neck, long full sleeves and full skirt. She carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses.

Johnnie Spivey, USNR, of Richmond, Va., was best man and the ushers were Floyd Benton, of Hertford and Dee Mickey, USNR, of Norfolk, Va.

Following the ceremony a reception was given in the Monroe Room at the Monticello Hotel. The bride and groom cut the three tiered wedding cake. Miss Katherine White presided at the punch bowl and was assisted in serving by Mrs. E. H. Cannon, Jr., of Hertford and Miss Lois Asbell of W. C. U. N. C., Greensboro, N. C.

Traffic Cop — "Now, Miss, what gear were you in at the time of the accident?"

Demure Miss — "Oh, I had on a black beret, tan shoes and a tweed sports dress."

DDT Not So Deadly To Bees As Feared

DDT, highly effective supplement to nature's own method of controlling insect pests, is still under intensive study by researchers and the results of tests made to date are encouraging, according to specialists of the State College Extension Service.

One of the early fears—that DDT would destroy too many bees which are useful as honey collectors and particularly valuable as pollinizers of crops such as legumes and fruit—has been virtually eliminated by the discovery that DDT is actually less deadly to bees than the arsenical sprays now commonly used. Beekeepers now are beginning to regard DDT as a promising relief for bee losses by arsenic poisoning.

Usual objections to the new pest control have been predicated upon the contention that it would "upset the balance of nature," a theory that beneficial insects, birds and other predators can sufficiently control insect pests. So, intensive tests of DDT are being made to determine its effect upon fish, birds, beneficial insects and other wild life.

In regard to the widespread use of the chemical, it now appears for the first time as a practical control for some forest insects.

The current "crop" of beetles and other injurious pests in North Carolina has been described by Extension specialists as normal with no dangerous outbreak indicated.

Many Changes To Come In Farming

Now that the war is over, many changes in farm production in North Carolina will be necessary if heavy losses, similar to those suffered after the last war, are to be avoided, says the sixty-seventh annual report of the Agricultural Experiment Station, recently released by Director L. D. Bayer.

The report cites the 30 per cent increase in peanut acreage as compared with pre-war years as a good example of what has taken place in many phases of crop production. The acreage devoted to truck crops has been increased by about one-half.

The increase in hams and pullets has been considerably more than 50 per cent, and indications now point to a large surplus of eggs and poultry meat during the coming year.

"Tobacco growers should be on the alert for ways of increasing the quality of the crop and of reducing production costs," the report suggests. "This holds true not only for tobacco but also for all crops and livestock products."

"At the present time, additional attention must be given to producing that quality of cotton most needed by the domestic market."

The report calls attention to the need for more dairy cows in North Carolina but suggests that a large portion of the increase in the number of animals be used for family milk cows to improve the general diet of the farm population.

"Vegetable crops will have to be adjusted to domestic demands, which may mean a marked decrease in acreage," the report says.

More Canned Foods Now In Prospect

Now that the postwar era has become a reality with the downfall of Japan, citizens of Chowan county can look forward to dramatic developments in canned foods, many of which were first packaged for the armed forces, according to W. C. Stolk, vice president of the American Can Company.

Mr. Stolk said that the approximately 937,000 cans of food opened annually by residents of the county undoubtedly will be largely increased with the arrival of the new postwar items. It will be no trick at all, he said for a housekeeper to put together a three or four course meal by making use of the canned foods she should shortly find on grocery shelves.
