Guy Newby, Jr., Weds Charleston Girl

In a ceremony performed February 22 in the appropriately decorated chapel of the First Presbyterian Church at Charleston, W. Va., Miss Frances Hefner Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hefner Davis of Charleston, became the bride of William Guy Newby, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Newby of Hertford. Dr. George H. Vick officiated. Several selections were sung by Miss Alice N. Harmon of Cleveland, Ohio, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. John B. Hoover.

A navy blue taffeta ballerina frock and matching accessories were worn by the bride, whose nosegay was of violets and pink roses. Her only attendant, Mrs. Sanford Doremus, was attired in gray alpaca crepe with pink accessories and carried a nosegay of pink carnations. Mr. Granville deWitt was best man and ushers were Messrs. John McClung and James Davis, brother of the bride.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Charleston Woman's Club. Assisting at serving were Mesdames Charles Slack, L. E. Ballance, E. R. Custer, Glen Gillingham, Granville deWitt and Miss Jacqueline Gamst. A cluster of jonquils surmounted the bride's cake and the punch bowl was festooned with smilax. Among the guests were Mrs. E. C. Driscoll, the Misses Hattie and Virginia Driscoll, of Covington, Va., and Miss Mary Alice Cahoon of Columbia, N. C.

Mrs. Newby attended Marshall and Morris Harvey Colleges after her graduation from Charleston High School. She has a position with Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Corporation. Mr. Newby has a B.S. degree from the University of North Carolina and is in the advertising department of the Charleston Daily Mail. He was discharged from the Army with the commission of first lieutenant after five years' service and was stationed with the Caribbean defense command. Mr. and Mrs. Newby will reside in the Neal Apartments, South Charleston, when they return from a trip to New York City.
