righteous principles, John realized his own position in regard to the expected Messiah. He had no pride nor false conceit when he spoke of the One who would follow him. The Sanhedrin could ask if he was the Messiah, the crowds could throng around him to hear his message, but John made no pretense to be anything except one who made ready the way for the King to come.

C. R. Erdman, in an Exposition of the Gospel of Matthew, declares, "There is something strikingly majestic in the appearance of Jesus as, for the first time, in this Gospel of Matthew, he steps upon the scene; yet something equally humble. He unexpectedly presents himself before the great herald who has been proclaiming his coming and offers to submit to the baptism John is administering. His kingly superiority is shown by the surprise and hesitation of John and by his own word of command, 'Suffer it now: For thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness.'"

Jesus' answer to John's objection marks the Master's high opinion of the work of his forerunner. Acceptance of John's baptism meant a public declaration of allegiance to the Kingdom that was coming, a pledge of complete devotion to its service, whatever that service might involve for the dedicated individual. For Jesus, already waiting for the call in unquestioning devotion to his Father's will, there was no question of repentance. Baptism was simply the next step in the long process by which he had been growing in power to understand and to obey the plan of God for his life.

When he took that next step, there came a great clearing up in his own mind and soul, a new self-understanding, a new conviction of his livine commission, a new sense of supreme power as he felt himself filled with the Divine Spirit, the life

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!
