

80th Birthday Party Is Planned For Dare

Dare County will be 80 years of age on Saturday, July 1. To celebrate the event which falls on the opening date of Paul Green's symphonic drama The Lost Colony, a gala and colorful observance featuring all who are octogenarians or over 80 years of age will gather in Manteo, the county seat, as guests of honor. The octogenarians will come from the counties of Tyrrell, Hyde and Currituck from which Dare was formed in 1870.

The celebration will feature, in addition to the various octogenarians, a street parade, a pageant of beauty, an address by a person of nationwide prominence (to be announced later) and the music of the famous Elizabeth City High School Band. There will be a picnic luncheon served on the historic grounds of Fort Raleigh during the day and in the evening the first performance of the season for Paul Green's great historical spectacle The Lost Colony will be presented.

Fresh Vegetables Top List Of Foods

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, announcing its plentiful foods list for July, called the attention of shoppers to the wide variety of fresh and processed foods abundant on Southern markets, the local county and home demonstration agent for the State College Extension Service, said this week.

Fresh vegetables listed for July, she said, include carrots, onions, Irish potatoes, fresh corn, snap beans, beets, cabbage, lettuce, and tomatoes.

The watermelon and cantaloupe season in the South will be in full swing in July and picnic planners can count on heavy supplies all during the month, the county agent said.

Broilers and fryers are still in the plentiful class, as are dairy products, hens, eggs, peanut butter, fresh and frozen fish, and rice.

Local availability of the foods on the July plentiful list may vary from area to area because of transportation and buying preferences, but most markets in the South, the home agent pointed out, will have abundant supplies of the listed foods.

Shoppers who buy seasonally plentiful foods will, as a rule, find them the most economical buys, he added.

Cancer Program In N. C. Will Be Told At Meeting In Paris

The story of the North Carolina State Board of Health's program to detect cancer will be told in a paper before the International Cancer Congress, which will be in session in Paris, July 17-21. The paper will be presented by Dr. Mildred Schram, in charge of the Cancer Section of the Personal Health Division, which is directed by Dr. George M. Cooper.

The subject of Dr. Schram's paper will be "An Experiment in Mass Screening of a Population for Cancer". Dr. Schram stated that she will be able to report on 14,600 examinations, which have been made by the State Board of Health since the program was activated in March, 1948.

The report will show that three and one-half per cent of those examined were found to have cancer in some form. Three-fourths of all examinees were found to have some condition for further diagnosis and treatment of which they were referred to their personal physicians. Dr. Schram will emphasize that no treatment is given in clinics and that all who were found in need of attention either for cancer or any other condition are referred to their personal physicians.

It will be brought out that more than half of all the cancers found were early and in persons under sixty years of age. Thirty-six per cent of the cancers were found in men, who constituted only seventeen per cent of all the examinees. This means, Dr. Schram says, that proportionately more cancers were found in men than in women.

been given wide publicity, through the medical and lay press, in health magazines and over the radio. North Carolina's place on the Paris program, however, will bring this State's cancer activities to the attention of an international group of scientists.

It was pointed out by Dr. J. W. R. Norton, State Health Officer, that the active support of practicing physicians in North Carolina gives added significance to this State's effort to detect cancer and bring it under control. "The North Carolina program," Dr. Norton said, "is based on legislation approved in 1945, but for which an appropriation was not made until 1947. This program has the approval and full cooperation of the State Medical Society, and the ten local centers are sponsored and operated by members of local medical societies."

Farmers Show More Interest In Geese

While commercial production of geese is not practiced to any great extent at present, many North Carolina farmers are showing interest in this fowl, says R. S. Dearstyne, head of the poultry department at State College.

Dearstyne says his department in recent weeks has received correspondence concerning geese from all sections of the State. This awakening interest, he adds, may lead to a new infant industry in North Carolina.

Geese usually are raised in small numbers on general farms. They are very hardy and quite resistant to disease. Since they are good foragers and thrive on pastures, their dietary requirements are easily met.

The birds commonly are known as "hoe hands" because they are extremely useful in clearing up the rows in cotton patches. The diet may be supplemented with home-grown grains or wet mash.

Dearstyne says a gander may be mated with one to four geese but pair or trio matings usually give the best results. Nests for geese are provided in boxes or barrels on range or in the house. The natural method of incubation is used on farms when three to seven eggs are set under a hen or 10 to 15 under a goose. The period of incubation varies from 29 days in the smaller breeds to about 35 days in the larger breeds.

District Dairy Shows Scheduled In August

Dates for the 1950 series of district uniform dairy shows in North Carolina were announced this week by John A. Arey, in charge of extension dairy work at State College.

The series will be held about a month earlier than usual, Arey said. The first will be held in Asheville on August 15 under sponsorship of the Asheville Merchants Association. The Belk Stores will sponsor one in Statesville on August 17 and another in Wil-
