Salute To Firemen

This being fire prevention week we pause to doff our hats to that group of fellow citizens who give of their time and effort to provide fire protection to the community 52 weeks in the year. We are speaking, of course, of our volunteer firemen, who have joined with other departments over the nation urging people to give more thought to fire prevention, and thus aiding in cutting the huge loss resulting annually from fires.

Fire prevention is a year around problem but most of us forget many of the minor rules and sometime wind up needing the assistance of the firemen. Our Hertford firemen, over the years and in all kinds of weather, have stood ready to aid the residents of the town and county, and in rendering their assistance, in times of fire, have provided a real service to the community.

The efficiency of our firemen is one that the entire county can point to with pride; for the record shows excellent results for the number of fire calls answered by the local department.

In recent years the local fire department has undergone some changes both in rules and personnel but the firemen are working consistently to give us a better department and greater safety, for all of which we should be thankful and proud.

This is fire prevention week . . . let's give some thought to work for prevention of future fires and also take time to thank the firemen for their efforts in the past.

Profits Must Live Even If Men Die!

With billions of dollars in military contracts to be let in the next few months, industrial leaders and governmental officials are somewhat concerned over the fact that there are virtually no reserves of skilled labor in the country, even though the volume of production for the armed forces is still very small.

There is the suggestion that manning our war industries may be as hard a job as manning the tanks, planes and other military equipment. This is, of course, nonsense. If the occasion requires, the supply of labor can be shifted from non-essential to essential jobs. This will mean, of course, that some civilian production will have to be curtailed.

Meanwhile the heavy industries, which will handle much of the war contracts and other producers of war material, are looking hungrily for the contracts occasioned by the national emergency. The scent of war profits is in the air. Every producer knows that the billions to be spent for preparedness will mean tremendous profits to business. So far, no business man has suggested that any corporation make a contribution toward the safety of the nation.

With young men being called from their jobs and families to be trained for war and with other young men being wounded and killed daily in battle, it is not too much to expect that business should make some sacrifice along with the rest of the country. It is not a foolish idea to expect business corporations and individual enterprises to do something for the general welfare without putting the emphasis upon large and unusual profits.

We do not see anything wrong with the suggestion that every producer of articles needed for warfare be required to turn over a part of its production without profit. In fact, the opportunity exists for some smart corporation official to set a patriotic example by making an offer to serve the needs of the country without exacting a profit. It would not hurt most of our producers to devote a fourth or a fifth of their working time to the production of goods and equipment for war without any profit whatsoever.

We are not against the corporate form of organization for business enterprise. Moreover, the courts of the country have ruled that corporations are persons insofar as certain legal rights are concerned. No court has yet been able to figure out, however, that a corporation owes the nation more than of service. The corporation that can give, in times of war and national emergency, is to perform better services without exacting profit.

If men must die to protect the nation, its people and its economic order, it is not too much to expect the large segment of that order, represented by corporate enterprise, to make a positive contribution to the national effort and in behalf of the national good.

Williamston Harvest Festival Oct. 17-18

Describing Williamston's Third Annual Harvest Festival in an interview, Al Sweat, manager of the Williamston Boosters, stated that "It's to be more fun than a circus!" The annual event will get underway on Tuesday, October 17 and will continue through Wednesday, October 18.

On Wednesday a big parade will be held at 2 o'clock. Entered in the parade will be the Williamston Motorcyclists Club, the Boy and Cub Scouts, the local unit of the National Guard with a good portion of their equipment, many floats, the Rhythm Band from Farm Life, high school bands from Edenton, Roper, Tarboro, Scotland Neck, Washington, Williamston white and Williamston colored.

Pray to God only for those things which you cannot obtain from man. —Pope Xystus I.

America's Utmost in Tire Rubber Economy

ROYAL

Their longer life and greater rubber economy prove them the essential tires of the car. Every ounce of them is working rubber, without a fraction of waste or excess.

Each of them can give years, instead of miles, of extreme safety and comfort. They are supported by large community investments in dealer service and maintenance equipment.

All of their original safety-mileage is continuously renewed and renewable, without recapping or anything of the sort.

With Skidwells, or Whitewalls, they bring every owner their Mid-Century Cutguard, to protect their sidewalls and end all grinding, curb scuffing and abrasion.

They also bring their incomparable Safety Tread (ROYALTEX)—for Skid Protection, Stopping Power, and Life Protection never possible before.

These Royal Master qualities are entirely exclusive. They serve and save at the very heart of the National Economy. They remain fresh and new in safety, when other tires are giving up their lives.
