Here's Why You Need Low Cost Crop Protection

1. It costs more now to produce a crop of corn, cotton, soybeans and peanuts than ever before. It is simply good business to protect your investment...
2. Most farmers carry insurance on their investments in barns, equipment and homes. Why not protect your investment in seed, fertilizer and labor to produce a crop?
3. On an average it costs only about 2 1/2% of your total coverage. This means an average of $2.50 cost to you for $100.00 protection, or $25.00 on $1,000.00.
4. This cost is deductible on your income tax returns as cost of farm operations.
5. The protection offered on Multiple Crop Insurance in Perquimans County is: Soybeans, $15.50 per acre; corn, $21.25 per acre; cotton, $50.75 per acre; peanuts, $67.00 per acre.
6. This Multiple Crop Insurance is a Perquimans County business in that premiums paid by Perquimans County farmers do not go to pay losses in other counties or states.
7. Perquimans County must have 200 units to carry the program another year.
8. We have only about 30 days in which to build this Perquimans County business for Perquimans County farmers.
9. We have a Soil Conservation Program to help build our soil, price supports on corn, soybeans, cotton and peanuts to help get a better price, provided we make a crop. We now need insurance to protect our investment in case we do not make a crop.
10. The insurance contract is for 3 years unless cancelled by the farmer or the corporation.
11. All crops of corn, cotton, peanuts and soybeans are protected collectively in the Multiple Crop Insurance Program and not as separate crops.
12. Where needed it can be used as collateral for securing loans for payment of fertilizer, seed, etc.
13. For seven consecutive years if no losses occur a policy holder is entitled to a 25% reduction in his premium.
14. In determining whether or not you have a loss, your production is figured at the following prices: corn, $1.40 per bushel; cotton, 27c per pound; peanuts, 9c per pound; soybeans, $1.90 per bushel.
15. All land farmed by policy holder is included in contract.
