

Farm Bureau Opposes Ceiling Prices On Raw Ag Commodities

E. G. White, president of the Perquimans County Farm Bureau, said today that the board of directors of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, at a special meeting last week voted unanimously a resolution designed to further emphasize the Farm Bureau's position with reference to controlling inflation:

The North Carolina Farm Bureau maintains that inflation cannot be controlled by price ceiling on raw agricultural commodities for the following reasons:

1. Farmers cannot afford to produce agricultural commodities under a ceiling price when the cost of production is rapidly increasing and will ultimately result in the farmer producing his commodities at a loss.

2. Records show that since 1947 the farmer's net income has decreased from 13 billions to 13 billions. This is a decrease of over 30 per cent.

3. Last year the farmer received an average wage of only 69 cents per hour in comparison to the industrial worker's wage scale of $1.50. No consideration was given for the farmer's managerial ability, and a scant 5 per cent was allowed on his investment.

The North Carolina Farm Bureau maintains that the only possible solution to the inflation problem is to increase production; eliminate non-essential governmental expenditures; provide non-inflation handling of monetary and fiscal policies; strict credit controls; and a pay-as-we-go system of taxation.

This program will increase production, keep our free markets and ultimately put food on American tables at a reasonable price.

Mr. White said that R. Flake Shaw, executive vice president, NCFB, compared the farmer's decreasing margin to a "hay-bale press," with the cost of living converging on him from one side, and price ceilings from the other side, thereby "squeezing" his meager margin of profit. Shaw pointed out that "Farm Bureau is going all out to get the price control provisions of the Defense Production Act eliminated." This act is scheduled to expire June 30, and it is up to the Congress to determine its fate.
