Question—What is the best way to control Fusarium and bacterial wilt in tomatoes?

Answer—The only practical control for Fusarium wilt, according to D. E. Ellis, plant disease investigator with the North Carolina Experiment Station, is to plant resistant varieties. Several varieties usually listed as wilt-resistant are Pan American, Southland, and the new variety, Jefferson. For the control of bacterial wilt, the only practical method is to plant in disease-free soil, practice crop rotation or treat the soil with certain chemicals such as chloropicrin and urea.

Question—How can egg quality be maintained in warm weather?

Answer—One good way to help solve the problem, says Poultry Specialist T. B. Morris of the State College Extension Service, is to collect eggs often. This will help prevent loss in quality as well as soiling and breakage. Morris says collecting should be done at least three times and preferably five times a day in warm weather. A wire basket should be used, to allow better air circulation so the eggs will cool as quickly as possible. The more quickly eggs are cooled after they are laid, the better the quality will be. Another factor that is important in removing animal heat quickly is a good egg holding room, with the temperature around 50 degrees and relative humidity about 85 per cent.

NOW - Better Control of ROOTWORM ON PEANUTS -at low cost

Now—with aldrin—you can stop southern corn rootworms on peanuts before they damage your crops. This powerful worm-killer is ideal for heavy soil where rootworms do the most damage.

Virginia growers prove aldrin boosts peanut yields—A Surry County grower jumped his yield from 1,730 to 2,110 pounds per acre. These 380 extra pounds of better peanuts brought $65 more profit per acre!

A Nansemond County grower used aldrin and got back 973 extra pounds of peanuts per acre from heavy soil! His yield went from 1,617 pounds on untreated land to 2,590 on aldrin-treated land. In dollars, that meant $172 more profit per acre. Just two pounds of aldrin are required per acre and aldrin's cost is only a small fraction of the increased profit it brings!

TWO EASY WAYS TO APPLY ALDRIN:

1. To get maximum benefits with aldrin, spray before planting or before June 15. After spraying aldrin, harrow the soil.

2. Spray after plants are up, just prior to cultivation. Use any standard spraying equipment—even an ordinary weed-sprayer. The low concentration of aldrin used means less clogging of spray nozzles.

Land treated with aldrin produces a better peanut crop with higher quality. And that, of course, means more profit to you. Ask your county agent about this record-breaking insecticide.
