

Benefits Mount For Veterans Of Korea

More Services Requested From Veterans Administration

More and more veterans disabled since the beginning of the Korean conflict are turning to Veterans Administration for medical care and other disability benefits, VA announced.

The latest figures available are for the months of January and February, 1952.

At the end of January, a total of 2,075 such veterans were being hospitalized by the VA. This is an increase of nearly 200 over the previous month's total of 1,879.

In addition, 2,042 such veterans sought a variety of services at VA outpatient clinics during February, such as treatment for service-connected disabilities, examinations for disability compensation or pension, and examinations for hospital or domiciliary care. This is the first time VA has compiled such figures for the since-Korea veterans.

A total of 6,890 since-Korea veterans were drawing VA disability compensation or pension at the end of February. This is an increase of nearly 1,500 over the previous month's total of 5,351.

Also, at the end of February, 262 veterans, disabled in service since Korea, were training at VA expense in schools, on the farms, or on jobs to overcome the handicaps of their disabilities so they may become employable again. This is an increase of almost 100 per cent from the January figure of 135.

The VA load of death claims stemming mainly from the Korean conflict also is increasing. At the end of February, the dependents of 10,388 such deceased veterans were drawing death compensation or pension from VA. This is an increase of 666 death cases over the previous month's total of 9,722.

Approved indemnity claims, up to $10,000 each, for deaths in service or as a result of service since the Korean conflict started totaled 5,975 to the end of February—an increase of 654 over the previous month's cumulative total of 5,321.

State Patrolmen Now Equipped To Give Tourist Information

State Highway Patrolmen will become individual information bureaus within a few days according to a directive from Commissioner L. C. Rosser of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The 500 men of the Patrol will get two booklets published by the State Travel Bureau describing various points of interest within the Tar Heel State. The booklets will provide a handy source of information for inquiring tourists who are expected to flood the state in record droves this year.

Commissioner Rosser suggested that the booklets be kept in the patrolman's car at all times during the vacation season.

Scott Praises Home Demonstration Work

In a statement released in connection with the observance of National Home Demonstration Week, April 27-May 3, Governor Scott has congratulated North Carolina home demonstration club women on the "fine contribution" which they are making "toward strengthening American home and community life."

"National Home Demonstration Week," said the Governor, "affords an opportunity for me to express my appreciation of the fine job of adult education which is being done through home demonstration clubs."

"I congratulate the 69,481 women in the 2,536 clubs in the State for the fine contribution home demonstration work is making toward strengthening American home and community life."

"In studying the background of the great men and women of America, one finds that in most cases there was a good home—a home in which were developed and maintained those qualities we value in a democracy. The wife and mother sets a pattern for the home, and her training develops the citizens of tomorrow. It is here that we learn understanding, tolerance, and cooperation which are so essential to the welfare of the home, the community, the nation, and the world."

FABRIC FINISHES

Some fabric finishes improve material in more ways than one. A permanent crisp finish may also give a fabric soil resistance. Remember though, a good textile finish can not turn an inferior fabric into a good one.

Special finishes add to the price of fabrics or garments due to the extra processes needed and further expenses for labor, equipment, and materials. However, this added cost may be well worth its price to you for a good finish can mean that a fabric or garment will serve its purpose better and decrease the time, energy, and money needed to keep it looking well.

SHRINKAGE CONTROL
Shrinkage is the reduction in size that takes place in a fabric after washing or dry cleaning. Residual shrinkage is the percentage of shrinkage remaining in a fabric after it has been treated to decrease shrinkage.

"Sanforized" is a label found on cotton, linens, spun rayons, or blends in all types of garments and yard goods. Fabrics so labeled have been compressively pre-shrunk and will not shrink more than one per cent in either length or width during the life of the fabric according to standard government tests. "Pre-shrunk" is a term used to designate fabrics that have a minimum amount of shrinkage. Be sure to note the amount of residual shrinkage you can expect. Otherwise the word is meaningless.

MOTH RESISTANCE FINISH
There are chemical treatments for wool to make it resistant to moth attack. Various processes differ in their resistance to laundering and dry cleaning. Some remain effective through repeated washing and dry cleaning, others are more resistant to dry cleaning. These finishes are applied in the finishing plant and are now being used in greater quantities than ever before.

HOME OWNERSHIP

The real pillar of our national existence is a stable society. One of the greatest factors for creating a stable society is home ownership. The more home owners possessed by a city or community the more permanent will be its business. Home ownership creates an interest in schools and churches. Floaters rarely take much interest in the upbuilding of their surroundings. No man cares to fight for a dilapidated shack for which he is paying an exorbitant rent. He would gladly retreat and leave it in the hands of an enemy. But the most humble home owner feels that he has a part in the nation. The greatest inciters to destruction are those who have no stake in a home and stable community.

There is need for insistence that every person possible own their own home. Too many sacrifice for things of much less value.

The first line of defense for America and democracy is the people who have established themselves in a permanent abode. They have a home to defend.

Youth May Apply For Scholarships

Four scholarships valued at $200 each—two in agriculture and two in home economics—are available this year to North Carolina high school seniors or graduates under the Kroger Scholarship Plan.

Announcement of the awards was made by Dr. C. H. Bostian, director of instruction in the School of Agriculture at North Carolina State College, who said applications must be filed by June 1, 1952.

Recipients of the awards, Dr. Bostian said, will be announced on or before August 1. The scholarships will be available this fall.

Winners of the agricultural scholarships may enroll at State College, and winners of the home economics scholarships may register at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Requests for application blanks and other information on the home economics awards may be obtained by writing Scholarship and Loans Committee, Woman's College, Greensboro, North Carolina.

Students desiring application blanks and other data on the agricultural scholarships should write Dr. C. H. Bostian, School of Agriculture, North Carolina State College, Raleigh.

The awards, Dr. Bostian explained, will be made on the basis of scholarship achievements in high school as well as leadership qualities demonstrated in school, church, and youth organizations. Need for financial aid will be considered.
