

I suppose last week was one of the busiest weeks I've spent since I've been in the Senate. In addition to my usual duties, the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which I am a member, spent a total of almost 14 hours considering the appointment of James P. McGranery as Attorney General.

McGranery, you remember, was named by the President to succeed J. Howard McGrath, whom Mr. Truman fired after that sensational row between McGrath and Newbold Morris.

The appointment must be approved by the Senate before McGranery can take office. Our committee wanted to probe fully the rumors and charges against Mr. McGranery before approving him. The office of Attorney General is perhaps the most important cabinet post and I consider our time last week well spent.

Foreign Aid

Both the House and the Senate agree that at least a billion dollars ought to be slashed from the President's demands for almost $3 billion in foreign aid next year. I'm not so sure that two billion can't be taken off without hurting our Mutual Security program.

It's all very well and good to want to help other countries, but I think the President's request is entirely unreasonable. Last year, when I was sent overseas I saw how some of our money is being spent. I saw first hand that tremendous amounts are being wasted. On the other hand, I also saw the good that some of our money is doing.

A lot of folks don't realize that in the first 11 years of our foreign aid program (from July 1940 until July 1951), the United States had spent a total of more than $85 billion to help other countries.

If the cost of the foreign aid program is broken down on an average basis, here is what it means for the first 11 years alone:

Every person in the United States would owe $474.50 for foreign aid alone.

A city the size of Raleigh would owe $30,842,000—or almost $3 million a year. (That's more than Raleigh spent each year on its entire city government during that time.)

The State of North Carolina, during that 11-year period, had a responsibility of providing a total of nearly $2 billion dollars.

These figures are significant, I think, because the average citizen does not often consider how much of his own money is required to aid foreign countries. If he were closer to his federal government, he might feel more strongly about it.

For example, can anyone imagine the Raleigh city council appropriating $3 million dollars a year for foreign aid—or our State legislature appropriating $198 million a year for that purpose.

It all amounts to the same—except that the Congress has been doing the appropriating, and you have been doing the paying.

A foreign aid program undoubtedly is a vital necessity for our nation to protect our way of life, but I think all of us ought to be mindful of what it costs. We should also hesitate before we offer any blind endorsement to suggestions for wild expenditures.

On Controls

Last week, Regulation W was suspended by the Federal Reserve Board. That, as you know, eliminated the restrictions on installment buying.

I was glad to see that action. And I hope that by July 1, our people will be freed from many of the other controls which now exist for no justifiable purpose. I did not think last year that many of the controls passed by Congress were needed, or that they were workable. The confusion of the past 12 months, therefore, has not surprised me.

It is patently absurd for business men to have to worry with all sorts of regulations and red tape when most of their goods are selling far below ceiling prices anyhow. But that is the situation right now.

I hope the OPS will be stripped of much of its authority, if not completely abolished.

Russell in Florida

I have been asked several times for my reaction to the Florida primary, in which Senator Russell defeated Senator Kefauver by a margin of some 75 thousand votes at last count.

I was pleased—and I didn't expect a better showing. Senator Russell ran up against a highly-organized campaign in Florida led by former Senator Pepper who supported Kefauver with every bit of political power he had.

I believe you will find that the South is pretty solidly behind Senator Russell at the Democratic convention in July.

MRS. LENA EVANS FLANNIGAN

Funeral services for Mrs. Lena Evans Flannigan, 70, who died Friday morning at the family residence on Route 1, Hertford, after a short illness were conducted Sunday at 2 P. M., at Great Hope Baptist Church by the Rev. Mr. Phillips, pastor. Burial was in the family cemetery. The body lay in state at the church for an hour prior to the services. It is a well-known fact that the early tomato blossoms or blossom clusters often fail to set fruits. This may be due to a number of factors but is usually due to cool temperatures early in the growth season, when the first two clusters of blossoms appear.

It has been found that applications of certain plant hormones to the blossoms will cause fruits to set. In many cases these fruits are seedless or almost seedless.

Experiments have shown that, in the case of tomatoes, it is only worthwhile to spray the hormone on the first two or three clusters. These hormones are now available at any seed store under various trade names.

IMPORTANCE OF BABY TEETH

It is the duty of every prospective mother to learn and to put into practice everything that is possible to preserve her own health and that of her child. In the case of the child it commences before birth, and should be carried on until he is old enough to take over for himself. This he will do if properly trained by a careful and intelligent mother.

There are plenty of informative books on the market now that give sensible instruction on the subject. They will be studied by earnest, inquiring mothers. Diet of the pregnant woman is largely a determining factor in her own health and that of her child.

The expectant mother should keep in touch with her physician and dentist. They will gladly instruct her as to her method of preparation for the little stranger and tell her where she can find books and pamphlets that will give her reliable information.

Some mothers are amazingly ignorant and negligent about the importance of taking proper care of the first or milk teeth of their little ones. The mouth should be kept sweet and clean. The first set of teeth are very important and play a very useful part in the future welfare of the child.

In the first place, everything pertaining to the human body has a very definite and important function to perform. The baby teeth should receive the most meticulous care. Their presence is necessary for mastication of food and for proper development of speech. They are also necessary for the growth and development of the gums, the jaws, face and head.

They should be used according to the directions given by the manufacturer; otherwise they may cause damage or heavy wrinkling of the tomato fruits.

The material should be sprayed on the open blossoms with an atomizer or fine sprayer. Since all the blossoms on a cluster do not open at one time it will require at least two applications for each cluster. Many commercial growers are now using fruit setting hormones successfully and there is no reason why they should not be successful in the home garden especially in cool growing seasons. The fact that main fruits would be seedless would be an added attraction or incentive.

If they did not serve a necessary purpose, they would not exist.

The loss of a single baby or foundation tooth, until it has been absorbed into a permanent tooth, and nature is ready to cast off the shell, is a misfortune. Some ignorant mothers actually allow the foundation teeth to decay in the helpless child's mouth, and they do nothing to prevent it.

The development of the foundation teeth require good, nutritious food. All babies need plenty of milk to furnish calcium with which to build teeth and bones.

Every one of the twenty foundation teeth should be in the mouth by the time he is 2½ or 3 years old. They are necessary for properly chewing the food and the maintenance of health.

If several of these baby teeth are lost, nature cannot properly carry out her designs. The face and jaws will lack the assistance that would have been afforded by healthful, well-developed, properly functioning baby teeth. Crooked, crowded, unsightly permanent teeth are often caused by neglect and consequent loss of foundation teeth.

"Behind Before"

Henry and Oscar, two old fellows, were partners in a barber shop. Each morning it was Henry who opened the shop for business and, as usual, about 10 minutes later Oscar would arrive.

One morning Henry went to the shop and, to his surprise, found Oscar there. This went on for several days. Each time Henry went to the shop, there was Oscar.

Man of the People...

This is the story of HUBERT E. OLIVE, who is asking YOUR support and YOUR vote in his campaign for Governor, subject to the Democratic Primary May 31 ... We think you'll like him—and the things for which he stands ... You couldn't cast your vote for a finer man ...

Olive was born in Randleman, Randolph County, on August 25, 1895, the son of A. J. Olive and Emma Beckwith Olive. He has strong family connections in Western Wake County and in Chatham. While young Olive was growing up, his father farmed, ran a sawmill, and later operated a general store in Randleman and in Thomasville.

As a boy and young man, Hubert farmed, helped his father in the store and worked in cotton mills. He worked as a carpenter, painter, and as laborer in a furniture factory. He also worked his way through college. He understands, and is sympathetic with, the problems of the working man. He is one of them ...

Hubert attended public school in Thomasville, then went to Mars Hill Junior College for two and a half years ... He obtained the remainder of his education at Wake Forest College, where he received the B.A. degree and, in 1920, the Bachelor of Laws degree. He was admitted to the Bar in February of 1920, and has been practicing in Lexington since ...

Olive is a past president of the Wake Forest College Alumni Association. He is now president of the College's board of trustees ...

His wife is the former Miss Anne Southerland of Henderson. They have two daughters, Mrs. Lewis Hartzog of Lexington and Charlotte Anne Olive of the home; and a son, Hubert E. Olive, Jr., a law student at the University of North Carolina.

Olive is a member of the Junior Order and the Patriotic Order of Sons of America.

"Christian Gentleman"...

Hubert Olive is regarded as one of the outstanding Baptist laymen in North Carolina. His active interest in the church goes back to his early boyhood days ... For the past 31 years he has taught a Bible Class of young men in the First Baptist Church of Lexington, where he is chairman of the Board of Deacons ... Every Sunday finds him in church ... He is invariably described by his friends as "a Christian gentleman" ... That's a title of which he is most proud.

Never a Lobbyist...

Most of the hired lobbyists for special interests in North Carolina are opposing Hubert Olive ... That's to be expected ... For Hubert Olive has NEVER been a lobbyist in the State Legislature, and it's natural that the hired representatives of special interests would flock to one of their own ... As a successful attorney, with a large practice, Olive has been approached time after time to become a lobbyist. He has always turned down such offers ... Because, with Hubert Olive, THE PEOPLE COME FIRST! ... And he believes THE PEOPLE WILL JOIN HIM IN REPUDIATING THE SELFISH GANG OF LOBBYISTS OPPOSING HIM.

Friend to Veterans...

Within a few days after the United States entered World War I, Hubert Olive enlisted in the Army as a private ... He served overseas with the 317th Field Artillery of the famed 81st "Wildcat" Division ... He was a lieutenant when he left service on August 15, 1919 ... Since his Army days, Olive has been intensely active in veterans' affairs ... In 1934-35, he was commander of the American Legion in North Carolina ... He FOUGHT SUCCESSFULLY AT THAT TIME FOR IMMEDIATE CASH PAYMENT OF ADJUSTED SERVICE CERTIFICATES ... He is for a square deal for veterans NOW ... Olive continues active in the Legion Post at Lexington and in 40 & 8 ...

Public Service...

Hubert Olive has a long and notable record of public service ... He represented Davidson County in the State House of Representatives in 1933 ... In 1936, he was the State manager of CLYDE R. HOEY'S successful campaign for Governor ... Hoey appointed Olive to the Superior Court bench, on which he made an outstanding record as a judge ... GOVERNOR BROUGHTON reappointed him twice ... After 10 years as judge, Olive resigned to resume his law practice ... He was too good a man to be lost to public service, however, so in 1947 GOVERNOR CHERRY appointed him chairman of the State Board of Elections, a post he held for two years ...

As chairman of the Board of Elections, Olive stood for clean elections, fairly and honestly held ... He has always stood for Christian statesmanship, detesting crookedness and corruption wherever it might be found.
