KEEPING UP ON FARMING

With Uncle Walt

Settin under the shed the other day mendin my harness, I got to studyin about somethin that sorta had me baffled. I had heard somebody say that mornin that us farmers broke a record a growin out broilers last year. When I heard it, I didn't give it a second thought 'cause I ain't never been one to take after figgers—the ones on paper, that is.

But somehow or other, that figger of over 32,000,000 broilers which they said we raised here last year sorta came back to me. The more I thought about what a dern big bunch that was, the less I believed it.

Take me, for example, I consider myself a pretty dang good farmer and I try to keep up with things. But somethin must of happened, 'cause I had got mighty far behind if I and the other farmers was turmin out that many chickens a year.

That night after I finished feedin up, I went to the house for supper. Fannie was there on the porch strainin the milk while I was washin my hands. So I turned to her and said, "Fannie, what about let's runnin over to Raleigh in-a-mornin?"

She looked at me as if I had said, I believe I'll go shoot my mule after I finish eatin supper. Then she said, "What in the world business have you got in Raleigh?" To which I spoke back and said, "I want to go see if we raised anything like any 32,000,000 broilers here last year, that's one reason. Another one is that I want to find out what in the heck is becomin of them chickens and, by Ned, I just want to go to Raleigh and see what it looks like. Now, is that enough reason, or do you want to be stubborn about it," I said to her.

Well, she slept on the idea, and she was all set on goin by mornin. We left home about 5:30 and got to Raleigh about 9 o'clock.

Fannie 'lowed she'd just wain in the car while I went in the Agriculture Building and found out about the chickens. When I walked in, a wonderin which way to go, up, down, or just wait there, some pretty little miss saw my perdicament and asked if she could help me. I told here I wanted to talk to someone about chickens, so she told me to go up to the third floor and see Mr. Ralph Kelly in the Markets Division.

Well sir, I found him right off, and I must say he really knows his stuff about the chicken business. I told him about what I heard and that I didn't believe it. He started right out to talkin and in a very few minutes he had me believing that we must've raised them. He also made me feel pretty ignorant without meanin to, when he told me that some of our farmers was a raisin over a hundred thousand broilers a piece every year.

But what I really enjoyed was his talkin about this poultry processin industry that we got right here in our own state. I reckon from what he says, we got the best one in the country. Accordin to him, there's 140 of these plants located all about over the state and some of 'em are dressin 50 to 55,000 chickens a week. And, besides that, they are puttin a chicken on the market that them city folks really go for. He went on to say that if it weren't for these processors we wouldn't be raisin nearly as many chickens and the ones we did raise would have to be sent up north and dressed and then brought back here for resale. "Naturally," he went on, "this would mean less profit to the grower." And that one thing was enough for me to be mighty thankful for our fine poultry processin industry.

He told me a lot more about where our chickens was goin—some of 'em are bein dressed and sent all the way to Korea. That made me feel pretty good too, 'cause some of them chickens I raise might be amongst them those fightin boys are eatin.

Well, we talked on for another hour, I guess, him tellin me that before too long we might be raisin 50 million broilers here a year and me a believin ever word of it. He carried me down to the second floor where I met the fellers in the Crop Reportin Service. They're the ones who put out figgers

Pleased

An elderly woman bought a cottage on the American-Canadian border. Both governors sent surveyors to find out which country she was in. One surveyor finally said, "I'm positive that your cottage is on the American side by three inches."

"I'm so glad," replied the woman. "I've heard that the winters in Canada are so severe."

Kidney Slow-Down May Bring Restless Nights

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, head-aches, dizziness and loss of pep and energy. Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While often otherwise caused, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Staying Alive

With the peak of the travel season near at hand, this is a proper time to remind readers that vacations are enjoyed most when the vacationers return home alive. Each year thousands of Americans start out enthusiastically on summer vacations and never return to their homes, having become victims of their own carelessness or some other drivers' carelessness on the highway.

This is one of the great tragedies on the American scene and the death toll resulting must somehow be cut down. The annual death rate on the highways exceeds the rate in Korea.

Before leaving on your 1952 vacation, it is suggested that you determine not to hurry, even though your time may be limited. Haste, carelessness, and defective automobiles cause most highway tragedies. If you will practice patience and courtesy on the highway, carefulness, and be sure your car is mechanically sound, chances are you will return from this year's vacation sound and refreshed.

The Month of May

To many the month of May is the best of all months. Originally the third month of the ancient Roman calendar, May became the fifth month in the revised calendar. The theory of the origin of the name most widely accepted is that it comes from the word Maia, the Mother of Mercury. To later generations May means many things.

In the United States May means May Day and many May Day celebrations. It means the last month of school. It is the last month of the calendar year at Annapolis and West Point, is the month which brings young people thoughts of the future and the first hints of summer.

A number of historic events have taken place during the month. The battle of Manila Bay was fought on May 1st, 1898. The famous words of Admiral Dewey—"You may fire when ready, Gridley"—were spoken (if reports were accurate) at about five A. M., May 1st, 1898.

May also brings us Derby Day in Kentucky, where the Kentucky Derby is run at Churchill Downs. This is the sporting event of the year to many turf fans. May brings back thoughts of the sinking of the Lusitania, which occurred May 7th, 1915, off the coast of Ireland. This action by a German submarine, was influential in bringing about a state of war between Germany and the United States. The first transcontinental railroad was completed in May, 1869, at Promontory Point, Utah. The first permanent English settlement in America was founded at Jamestown on May 13th, 1607. The valor of Captain John Smith enabled the colonialists to resist the many attacks of Indians. More recently, thoughts of May bring back memories of Charles Lindbergh's flight from Roosevelt Field, New York, to Paris. He landed in Paris on the evening of May 21st, and this event electrified the world and popularized Lindbergh.

The career of the famous pirate Captain William Kidd came to an end on May 23rd, 1701, when Kidd dangled from the end of a rope, at Execution Dock, London. Perhaps the saddest of thoughts aroused by the arrival of May come to mind in connection with Memorial Day, which is May 30th in most states of the Union. The tender thoughts of millions go back to heroes of our country, who gave their lives to protect it and its traditions, in the month of May.

Perhaps above all else, however, the month of May brings a beauty to the countryside few of us fail to appreciate. The beauty that is May is a new miracle every year, which somehow grows more impressive with the passing years.
