

SPRING CLEAN-UP AT HOME

Safety experts say every farm family should have a spring clean-up campaign at home, inside and out. Such a campaign would go a long way toward eliminating fire and accident hazards, make a healthier place to live, and result in happier work days and more production.

Farm families alone lose about 3,500 lives and 100 million dollars worth of farm property annually by fire. About 18,000 farm residents are killed and a million and one-half others are injured each year in accidents.

Look into every nook and cranny. Get rid of any winter accumulation of trash, junk and discarded equipment from all buildings, and get rid of the dead grass and weeds near the buildings.

In the farm home and other farm buildings clean up all debris, trash, paper and other hazardous waste material. Oily rags and old paint brushes may cause spontaneous ignition.

In barns, shops and machine shops get rid of old metal equipment. Discarded machinery may cause falls and other accidents. Rusty metal can cause tetanus (blood poisoning).

Waste scrap metal, urgently needed for defense, will bring a cash dividend.

In all farm buildings fix leaky roofs, cracked chimneys, rusty stove pipes, poor foundations, rotted sills, bad electric wiring and connections, and lighting rods. See that doors, windows, screens and furniture are in good repair. Watch for and repair broken or loose stair steps, board walks and the like. Remove nails, jagged boards and other items that might cause injury to people or livestock.

Keep your water supply sanitary and safe. Springs, wells and cisterns may need to be cleaned. Plan your water supply so that it will serve in case of fire.

Remove dry brush, weeds, grass, etc., from along roadsides and near buildings. If the removal is by burning, use extreme care, for a fire that gets out of control can burn your buildings and may do damage to your neighbor's property. See that fire-fighting equipment—hand extinguishers, shovels, swatters, rakes, water containers, ladders, hose, etc.—is conveniently located and ready for use.

chutes guarded to avoid falls. Special cars should be taken in making starts and stops while loading, especially on rough ground. Never dismount from tractors or mowers while they are in operation.

Check all equipment carefully for defective hitch, ropes, pulleys, lifts, hay racks and ladders. Also, make sure that all safety guards are in place on the mowing equipment.

For outside work, carry a pitchfork over the shoulder and stick it securely in the ground when not in use. Don't lay it down, and never throw a pitchfork. When the day's work is completed see that it is hung up or stored in a rack in the barn.

Remember that damp hay is one of the principal causes of barn fires.

so make sure hay is well cured before it is stored in hay mows. Freshly stored hay should be checked regularly for several weeks to see that there is no sign of heating.

Example has more followers than reason. We unconsciously imitate what pleases us, and approximate to the characters we most desire.

GARDEN TIME
ROBERT SCHMIDT

This is "bug time" as well as garden time and garden fruits, vegetables and flowers seem to have more than their share of pests. It is not possible to give specific control information in a short column such as this, but certain principles of control can be mentioned. Spray materials and labor are expensive and unless used properly and intelligently may be a waste of time and money.

In order to carry on a successful spray program you should first know or determine what pest you are trying to control. Is it a disease, is it a chewing insect like a bean beetle or a sucking insect like an aphid, and what sort of damage does it do? Second, you should know what spray material to use to control the pest and how to apply it to be effective. For example, it would require a fungicide to control plant diseases, and this spray would have no effect on insects. Insect sprays would not control diseases. It is often necessary to know how to apply the spray. For example, the Mexican bean beetle feeds mostly on the under side of the bean leaf. Therefore, the spray must be directed against the under side of the leaf in order to effectively control it. Third, the spray must be applied at the right time. This is very important, especially for control of plant diseases as well as certain insects. Fourth, do a thorough job. Good coverage is necessary for effective control.

Your county agent can help you identify the specific pests that are giving you trouble and can furnish you information for controls. Or you may obtain bulletins from the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, Raleigh, N. C.

The driver knew something was wrong with his brakes but he took a chance—his last. Learn a lesson from this man and always make sure your care is in a safe condition. Brake checks are especially important, but be sure to check lights, tires, and windshield wipers, too. Remember—safety checks help check accidents . . . before they happen.
