THIS WEEK'S HEADLINES

Nine persons were killed Monday when an earthquake struck Tehachapi, California. Most of the victims were children. The earthquake destroyed every major building in the town, and isolated the community when roads were blocked by landslides from mountain tops. Local and State officials, assisted by Civilian Defense groups, worked diligently to open the highways and bring relief to the suffering within the town.

Alger Hiss, convicted of perjury in testimony given a Congressional committee investigating communism inside the government, was denied a motion for a new trial. The motion was denied Tuesday by a federal judge. It was the third attempt Hiss has made in an effort to win a new trial following his conviction.

Several attempts made this week to settle the steel strike have failed. Reports state Union officials are holding fast to the demand for a closed shop, in all steel mills, and the industry leaders are as determined not to give in to this demand.

Dr. Clyde Erwin, State Superintendent of Schools, died of a heart attack last Saturday at Raleigh. No successor to his post has been announced and it was reported Wednesday Governor Scott has stated no action on the vacancy will be taken until after the Governor returns from the Democratic Convention at Chicago.

Another record heat wave engulfed most of North Carolina this week. Temperatures ranging up to 105 degrees were reported in many areas of the state.

Mrs. Bratman has served notice through her attorney that she will fight extradition to North Carolina on the charges.

Sheriff M. G. Owens and Solicitor Walter Cahoon went to Washington on Tuesday for the purpose of attending the extradition hearing and presenting testimony, but they returned after the judge continued the hearing.

She has been charged with kidnaping Dennis Defabio, 9. The boy together with two other Defabio children had been placed in the care of the Dare County, North Carolina, Welfare Board after Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Defabio, formerly of Washington, failed to send them to school.

Mrs. Bratman contends, her attorney has said, that the boy is her child by a former marriage and that she lost track of him two years ago.

County PMA Office Announces Plans To Enlarge Operations

Committeemen To Act In Explaining Voluntary Program

Every farmer in Perquimans County is to have an opportunity to cooperate in the 1953 Agricultural Conservation Program extended to him through a personal visit by a PMA community committeeman, says Milton Dail, chairman of the County PMA committee.

This new development in the Agricultural Conservation Program for 1953 will bring into the program farms that have never participated in the program, thereby have never received assistance in carrying out heeded soil building practices. However, this program is still entirely voluntary. Any farmer who believes he will not need the limited assistance available to do the pressing conservation job on his farm must feel free to tell his community committeeman so when he visits the farm.

Community Committeemen will visit farms within the next three weeks to assist farmers in filing their requests for assistance under the 1953 AC Program, Mr. Dail stated. The farmer is encouraged to utilize the limited program assistance on the practice or practices that will meet the most acute conservation problems.

September 15 is the opening date for the 1953 program year. The county PMA committee, reports Mr. Dail, will notify farmers of the practices approved for assistance and the amount of the assistance therefor before the beginning of the program year in the county.

Rotarians Told U. S. Must Use Economics Against Communism

"Military might alone is not enough for the United States to combat world communism," Professor Earl Sykes of Dartmouth University, told members of the Hertford Rotary Club at their meeting held last Tuesday night at the Hotel Hertford.

Professor Sykes, Professor of Economics at Dartmouth, told the Rotarians that after long study of the subject he is firm in his belief that in addition to military strength the U. S. must also use economic assistance, and provide an example in Democracy at home in order to fight the growth of communism throughout the world.

Citing the growth of Communism in China, Professor Sykes said, the Reds succeeded mainly because of promises to divide up the land among the many people of China who had insufficient land to provide enough foodstuff for families.

He related that economic aid, such as providing agricultural assistance, farm instructors, health instructors and mechanics of other kinds, to the people of backward areas of the world will go far in halting the advance of communism.

He cited the present Point 4 Policy of the U. S. Government as an example of economic aid which can gain results in areas where Communism might gain a foothold.

Herbert Nixon New Election Chairman

Announcement was made here Tuesday afternoon of the selection of Herbert Nixon of Hertford, to serve as chairman of the Perquimans County Board of Election, succeeding W. F. Ainsley, who has held the post for the past few years.

Mr. Nixon was named as chairman of the board at a meeting of the group held Monday afternoon. Other members of the board are Jarvis Ward and Raymond Winslow.

No announcement was made as to the date of Mr. Ainsley's resignation of the post as election chairman, but it was understood Ainsley contemplated this move following his selection to serve as chairman of the county's Democratic Executive Committee.

Democrats Expected To Name Candidate Sometime Friday

Governor Stevenson Appears As Popular Choice Of Many

Delegates to the National Democratic convention are expected to nominate the party's candidates for President and Vice President, possibly, on Friday. A fight over convention rules developed at the session Monday night and this slowed down the progress of the convention. It appeared Tuesday night a compromise was being worked out regarding the disagreement which came up over the rules, however, some reports stated other delays and fights may come when the convention adopts the party platform. There appeared to be much behind-the-scenes action over the selection of the presidential nominee. Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois became the popular choice following a speech he made to the convention on Monday but at the same time reports indicated a movement to "stop" Stevenson was being attempted.

Much gossip circulated the convention hall over the man who might receive the support of President Truman. It was reported the President had instructed his alternate to the convention as to his choice for the nomination but up to Wednesday no announcement had been made as to what these instructions might be.

Late Monday night Vice President Alben Barkley announced he was withdrawing as a candidate for the 1952 nomination. This announcement, according to reports from Chicago, came after Barkley had had a conference with labor leaders who advised Barkley their unions could not support him as the candidate.

A number of southern delegations, including the one from North Carolina, opposed the adoption of a rule which binds all delegates to the convention to support the nominees of the convention in the general election in November. This matter brought on quite a floor fight on Monday night, and some Southern delegations stated the rule was in violation of their state laws and that they (the delegations) therefore could not subscribe to the pledge of assurance demanded by the rule.

Local Conservation Office Reports On County Farm Plans

As of July 1, 1952, 486 conservation farm plans have been prepared in Perquimans County since the Albemarle Soil Conservation District was established, it was reported by F. A. McGoogan, local Conservation official.

When a farmer requests help from the District the first step is to prepare a complete conservation plan for his farm to help guide him toward the goal of good land management. In making this plan the soils are classified and a map prepared to show the fields, buildings, ditches and roads. The plan has all the recommended treatments including drainage systems, woodland and wildlife management, cover crops and pasture considered by the owner and the technician when they go over the farm.

Seventeen group drainage jobs have been completed. On jobs of this kind a large amount of technical work is required to make the surveys, prepare the plans and supervise construction. Some of the larger jobs which have been completed are the Bear Swamp, Burnt Mill Creek, Tom White Mill Pond, New Hope Ditch and Lake Section Ditch.

Perquimans County farmers cooperating with the Albemarle Soil Conservation District have improved the drainage on 13,600 acres of land and have seeded 1,844 acres of permanent pasture, Mr. McGoogan stated.
