

Labor Provisions Apply To Children Under Age of 16

Farmers employing minors under 18 years of age in harvesting strawberries and spring truck crops should acquaint themselves with the restrictions that have been placed around such employment, State Labor Commissioner Forrest H. Shuford said today.

Commissioner Shuford said it will be to the advantage of farmers employing minors to obtain a copy of Child Labor Bulletin No. 102 in order to learn about the child labor requirements of the Federal Wage and Hour Law.

Shuford said that Congress has given most minors employed in agriculture protection against being employed during school hours.

He pointed out that employment of school age minors under 16 years of age is limited to those periods when the schools for the school district where the child is living at the time of employment are not in session.

When schools for the school district where the child is living are not in session, or before or after school hours, there is no restriction on employment of minors in agriculture, regardless of age. This includes vacation periods and holidays.

The prohibition against the employment during school hours of minors under 16 years of age applies to migratory workers as well as resident children, but not to a farmer's own children working on his own farm, Shuford continued. It does, however, prohibit a farmer's children under 16 years of age from being employed on someone else's farm during school hours.

A farmer employing minors under 18 years of age on his farm during school hours must keep records giving the employee's name in full, place where the minor lives while employed as well as his permanent home address, and his date of birth. If the farmer does not employ minors under 16 years of age during school hours, no such records are required.

A "proof of age" certificate will protect a farmer if it shows the young employee to be at least 16 years of age. These certificates may be in the form of either a birth certificate or an employment certificate issued by the local Public Welfare Superintendent.

All kinds of agricultural work are affected by the child labor regulations, including such operations as preparing the soil, planting, tending, picking, or harvesting the crops. All kinds of farms are included, if their products get into interstate commerce, either directly or indirectly.

Farmers in doubt about their status under the child labor regulations are advised by Commissioner Shuford to contact the State Department of Labor in Raleigh or the most convenient of the Department's field offices located in Asheville, Charlotte, Greensboro and Goldsboro.

Do You Remember?

BY J. P. PERRY

Of course you do! If you are thirty five years old. We are calling attention to "happenings" of more recent date. Such as 1929-30-31 and 32 when nearly everything struck bottom. I will never forget 1932, twenty-one years ago. I would stand in front of my store and look at folks on the other side of the street—poorly dressed, many were actually ragged—never heard a man break out in a good hearty laugh, as if he were happy and enjoying life, but on the contrary, was sad, cast down and discouraged. The banks all over the country were closed for a short time. The average citizen didn't know what it was all about. The American citizens' money must be protected, and so, in a short while, the banking business was resumed. Most of the business concerns could "pay off" with checks again, confidence was being restored, people were given work to do. "A.W.A." was in operation, "reemployment office was opened up in the Court House and "throng" rushed in for a job—50 and 75 cents a day—one man, when given work to do—asked if he might spend a small portion of his wages for badly needed "underwear" (because he had been told he must not spend his wages for liquor)—I never met this man on the street, but that he spoke and smiled—Someone remarked that all the places of business in Hertford would be closed, except Mark Gregory's, J. S. McNider's and the Post Office. They are all 3 still doing business—Take courage, and look upward.

Sorry Misadventure
Heck—Have you ever had a motor mishap?
Peck—Yes, I met my wife in a garage.
