

Farm Safety Week Will Be Observed Week Of July 25th

The proclamation by the President of the United States setting aside the week of July 25 as Farm Safety Week has particular interest for North Carolinians where more than 600 persons are killed each year in home and farm accidents, it was pointed out by a safety spokesman of the North Carolina State Board of Health.

Dr. Charles M. Cameron, Jr., Chief of the health department's Accident Prevention Section, in announcing the special Farm Safety Week, called attention to farm machinery and equipment, fire, live stock, and pesticides and other chemicals as accident hazards found on most of the state's farms.

"The Insect and Rodent Control Section of the State Board of Health has recently completed a survey of eye injuries due to the careless or improper use of pesticides," Dr. Cameron said. "Due to the widespread use of these chemicals it is necessary to point out that many of them are safe only if the directions on the label are followed exactly."

In gathering information as to eye injuries from pesticides, the Board of Health investigators interviewed six eye specialists in Eastern North Carolina who contributed data indicating that several hundred persons each year receive treatment for eye conditions resulting from pesticides entering the eye.

Dr. Cameron emphasized the excellent work done by North Carolina State College, the Agriculture Extension Service, the Department of Agriculture, and the various chemical companies in stressing the importance of observing safe guards when using chemicals on farms and in the home garden.

"Let me stress that these useful chemicals have played an important role in advancing agriculture in North Carolina," Dr. Cameron concluded, "but all farmers and gardeners must read and heed the precautions on the label if many serious injuries are to be avoided."

Added Attractions For Visitors To Lost Colony This Season

Manteo, N. C.—Persons coming to the Dare Coast this year to see a performance of Paul Green's symphonic drama The Lost Colony, will have an opportunity to see many historical and interesting sites. Notably, of course, is the First Raleigh National Historic Site with its museum and restored fort, where the famous drama is now being presented for its 14th season.

At Kill Devil Hills close by the site of The Lost Colony is the Wright Brothers National Monument. This year in addition to the monument which commemorates man's conquest of the air in a heavier-than-air, powered machine, are the reconstructed hangar and living quarters of The Wright Brothers, Wilbur and Orville, identical to the way they left the quarters after the first flight experiments of 1903. The buildings are equipped as they were 51 years ago.

This year, for the first summer season, it is possible for Dare Coast visitors to drive their own automobiles direct to far-famous Cape Hatteras. Cape Hatteras is in the center of the new National Seashore Recreational Area, which begins at Nags Head and extends southward to Ocracoke Inlet.

An additional craft, the Lindsay Warren, has just been added to the Oregon Inlet ferry fleet, and the paved highways from Nags Head to Hatteras are now completed for the entire distance along the unusual Outer Banks drive. There is no toll charge on the ferry and no entrance fees to the national park, nor the Light-house and the new museum at Cape Hatteras which is now being provided.

In addition to old shipwrecks, there is one brand new wreck on the beach a few miles south of Oregon Inlet. This is the Honduran freighter Omar Babun which foundered in the surf during a recent gale, after she had sprung a leak off Cape Henry on a southbound voyage.

North Carolina Cuts Forest Fire Losses

North Carolina, with a vigorous Keep Green organization, whacked its forest fire losses almost in half in 1963, the American Forest Products Industries reports.

The report, based on new government figures, showed 3,782 fires burned over 186,209 acres during the year. In 1962 the record was 4,280 fires and 357,843 burned-over acres. All but eight per cent of North Carolina's for-estlands is under organized fire protection.

"The educational fire prevention campaign conducted through the Keep North Carolina Green organization is certainly to be commended for its part in achieving this improved record," said Carr Gibson, Elizabethtown, chairman of the North Carolina Forest Industries Committee. "Our industries, government agencies and woodland owners are working to keep forest fires at a minimum."

Other forest fire losses shown in the report for 1963 included: Georgia, 401,573 acres; South Carolina, 72,867; Virginia, 35,197; Tennessee, 256,006; Mississippi, 773,620, and Alabama, 292,365.

CORN SAUTE

4 large ears of corn
2 large green peppers
2 small onions
2 cloves garlic

2 tablespoons Triangle butter
2 tablespoons hot water
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Put corn from cobs. Remove seeds from peppers. Finely chop peppers, onions, and garlic. Melt 1 tablespoon of the butter in skillet. Add peppers, onions and garlic. Saute until onions are transparent. Add corn and cook 8 minutes. Add the remaining butter, hot water and seasonings. Cover and cook 15 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 6 servings.
