Vets' Question Box

Q—I understand that if a Korean veterans' training entitlement runs out when he is half-way through his semester at school, he will be allowed to finish that semester under the Korean GI Bill. I am taking on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill. What if my entitlement expires before I'm finished? Will I be permitted to complete my training?

A—No. Under the law, entitlement may be extended only in the case of veterans attending school. It may not be extended for veterans training on-the-job; for them, GI training ends when entitlement ends.

Q—I have some pressing bills for household expenses I would like to pay. Could I get a short-term loan for this purpose?

A—No. Loans for the purpose of paying household expenses—doctors' bills, furniture bills and the like—may not be made under GI terms.

Q—Is it possible to get a loan on a GI term insurance policy?

A—No. A GI term insurance policy has no loan value. A GI permanent plan, on the other hand, does have loan value, after it has been in effect for one year.

LIBRARY NEWS

The Perquimans County Library this week has five new books, and all are of special interest.

"The Tumult and the Shouting," is Grantland Rice's own story of the whole world of sports as he knew it in his fifty odd years as a sports writer. Sports fans of every age will find good reading here.

"They Called Him Stonewall," is, at last, a real biography of that great military genius, General Thomas J. Jackson.

Two new novels this week are by popular authors, Marcia Davenport and Elswyth Thane, and a third is by Hamilton Basso, one of the outstanding southern writers of fiction and non-fiction.

In addition to the above books, the library is the recipient of a beautiful edition of "Birds of America", by John James Audubon as a memorial book.
