The Air Force leademy

Secretary of the Air Force Harld Talbott said recently the Air occe Academy to be located at olorado Springs, Colorado, would haps be the finest university in he world, when completed.

nd the Secretary may not be gerating. Certainly the equip-Academy will be the newest, and test in any major university. Congress will provide the air ser-vice with the necessary funds to havre that future aerial generals will have a high code of honor, duty and obedience-and the very best in technical and scientific training.

Of interest to football fans now enjoying the current season is the fact that the Air Force will field a team of its own. That might confuse the Army-Navy rivalry a bit, because there will be a third team in the act, but it will lend added interest to the sport and add color to the acader y's role in intercollegiate athletica Dec3.10nd The major role the new academy will play in the national picture. however, is of course, one of national defense. Of all branches of tor of the the military service, Air Force Hunter, training and conditioning is the ans Cour most complex and demanding, and to notify most complex and demanding, and against only young men of superior capa- to exhib bilities are accepted for pilot at Belvic training. It will be the new academy's function to train the young men who will lead the nation's ed to sa number one military arm.

Therefore, its role on the U. S. scene is of vital importance, and the taxpayer has a real interest in the multi-million dollar plant you Dec3,10,1 that this country's Air Force Acad-emy becomes the nucleus of an Having serial military force that enables the est the United States to keep the peace Perry. of the world for many years to one Com come such as navies of great pow- against ers have been able to do in recent to exhib eras. The Railroads

The Association of American Railroads recently reported that the Dec3,16.1 country's roads had suffered a drop in income, in the first eight months of 1954, which amounted to 32.8 per cent below the same Stallings period of 1953. This drop is a quimans eavy one and is reflected in puring claim recently told the annual meeting will be of the Railway Tie Association that covery. the railroads were faced with in- said creasingly tough competition - mediate much of it subsidized by the Government. Monroe warned that the country could not afford to let it railroads get into an unhealthy state because of the vital role the Nov26.De railroads play in times of national emergency.

Monroe is, of course, right in his contention that railroads are a most vital part of any country's defense system. It is also true that there is no time to build sufficient cars and other rolling stock once a national emergency arises. While it is no doubt true that antiquated methods, and operations which should have been streamlined twenty years ago, are costing the railreads through the nore, it is also true that the time may be fast approaching when the Government will have to think seriously about maintaining the nation's raffroads in a healthy state.

It may eventually work out that the Government will have to drasthe Government will have to dras-tically change some of its regula-tory provisions which prevent com-petition and thereby encourage an-tiquated and backward methods. A CRY OF THE DEPTHS

International Sunday School Lesson for December 5th, 1954

Memory Selection: "Thou, Lo art good, and ready to forgive, a abundant in lovingkindness unto all them that call upon thee." -Psalm 86:5.

Lesson Text: Psalm 130: 1.6; 86:3-5, 11-13.

We are continuing our lessons based on the Psalms and one of the Psalms for our consideration this week (the 130th) is the sixth of what we have come to know as the Seven Penitential Psalms (the others are the 6th, 32nd, 38th, 41st, 102nd and 143rd.)

The author of the Psalm is not definitely known. Some scholars think it might have been Isainh, recording the experiences of King Hezekiah, who was a very sick man toward the end of his reign. At one time, he had come to the place in his illness where thought he would not recover. Out of the depths of his despair, he began to cry for God's help.
This sounds so familiar to us today. So often, we in our wealthmaterial and physical — seem so self-sufficient and have no apparent need of divine help. But, when trouble appears, in whatever form it may come, we begin to realize our insufficiency and turn to God for assistance to lift us out of our trouble. And then, so often, when God hears our plea and gives us the desired help, we immediately fore our backs on him and forget him once again.

Some scholars are not sure that this Pailm was referring to Heze kinh's experience. It could just as well have been written hy David. for, on numerous occasions, David was "down in the depths" of trou-ble and desnale, and needed God's holm. Whoever the author was, he never ted the feelings so often never cod by us. When house "If thou, Jehovah, shouldest mark injuities, who could stand?" he expressed the amazement we fee so often that God, knowing all our sins, forgives us of these sins we will only repent.

We must never forget, however, that, although God forgives our sins, we cannot escape the punish-ment for these sins which, through our wrongdoing we have brough upon ourselves, or upon others. God might forgive you after a life spent in riotous living, if you turn from that sort of life, repent of your sins and try to live for Him the rest of your life. But you will carry voor grave the marks of unholy live ing which cannot be erased even by o forgiving Heavenly Father

This is a thought that young people would do well to pender. So many of them think that after sowing their wild oats," they can eventually settle down and live derent, preright life and all will well. They overlook the fact the inful living takes its toll of the

Sin is anything that separates God's creatures from their Crea tor. Sin blasts character and des trovs opportunity. Sin destroy health, not only of the sinner bu oftentimes the health of an inno-

Sin is universal—it is present ev-erywhere—in every strata of society. Its only cure lies, as the Psulmist declares, in learning the "way of God" and walking steadfastly in that way. If you know that the shortest and best way to a given point is via a certain highway, you would be a foolish person indeed if you used another highway to get where you most desired to go. The Psalmist says to God, in Ps. 85:11, "Teach me thy way ... (and) I will walk in thy truth."

God's way is not an easy way to travel—s choice to leave the other, and sometimes, more attractive road. On this highway, some of one's friends may not be found. but others, who are well worth knowing, will be there.

In trying to live for God, so fill your life with good things like rvice for others, forgive qualities—that there, just let left for ain. A positive Chri life will be one which so no regrets when the air Continued on Page Sevi
