Next Case: The Red Cross
 Christmas Seals, the Crippled Children drive, the March of Dimes, the Heart Fund, several other charity drives and now the annual Red Cross Drive! This series of calls upon the average citizen seems to get monotonous and we often hear complaints that one just cannot contribute to all these meritorious causes.

But when one considers our kind of government, and the fact that charity is the main financial support of humanitarian and medical efforts to eliminate these killers from the American scene we realize it is both an honor and a privilege to live in a free country where we are merely asked to contribute to such praiseworthy causes, and not levied with an assessment by an all-powerful government.

In our free government we have the right to contribute to these charitable causes or not contribute. And every citizen should meet this responsibility and contribute to them whenever possible, appreciating the fact that this opportunity is one by which we can demonstrate both our good citizenship and the merits of our social system in the United States.

The Red Cross drive, now underway, deserves your support. Despite the fact that it is not a perfect organization, and never will be, it stands for the right things in our society, kindness, emergency aid and even medical aid in epidemic or plague areas. The Red Cross is a world-wide symbol of the good neighbor spirit, which means aid for those who need it badly in times of emergency.

We urge citizens of this community to support the Red Cross drive this year with contributions as liberal as they can afford.

What To Do In An Atomic Attack
 The United States Atomic Energy Commission has issued a long report on the effect of the hydrogen bomb explosion in the Pacific last year. The report for the first time tells of the extent of blast, heat and radiation damage caused by the bomb explosion.

The blast, heat damage and direct radiation exposure (from the blast are somewhat understood. The AEC says, however, that proper precautions, even in the blast area, can save many lives.

The AEC report specifies these safety measures which should be taken in the event of a hydrogen bomb explosion: 1—Avoid exposure by staying indoors, or taking shelter in a basement or a bomb shelter. (By staying indoors on the first floor of an ordinary frame house can reduce the danger level by at least fifty per cent.)

2—Avoid any falling dust or ash that can be seen downwind within hours after a nuclear explosion, until such dust or ash is tested by a radiation detection instrument.

3. Avoid eating solid foods or drinking liquids which may contain fall-out particles.

4. If there is any chance that fall-out particles have come into contact with the skin, hair or clothing, bathe the body thoroughly with soap and water, and change clothing completely.

We would suggest that all readers memorize these safety steps. They may one day save many American lives.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN LOVE

International Sunday School Lesson for March 6, 1955.

Memory Selection: "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another."— I John 4:11.

Lesson Text: Acts 2:42-47; Colossians 3:12-16; I John 4:7.

The present condition of our world is a matter of great concern to many Christians. Some are tempted to ask how or why God permits these things to happen. We venture the statement that it is not God who is responsible for the terrible things which are happening in the world today. The responsibility rests solely on man and, as the poet Burns said, "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

We need to face the fact that one of the most important, if not the only cause, of the condition of the world is a lack of love—love of God and love of one's fellowman. The Christian religion is unique in its emphasis upon love. No other religion has a God whose nature is love and grace. No other religion has been able to make its supreme appeal for acceptance and loyalty on the ground of voluntary love.

One of the sorest needs of the world today is for a demonstration of Christian love. The world should be able, rightfully, to look to the followers of Jesus Christ, for examples of the love way of life. If Christians, the world over, would exemplify the Saviour's love for all men everywhere and apply His principles of love in all relations of life, the effects would be felt throughout the world.

A clever lawyer, hoping to confuse Jesus, asked him the question, "Which is the great commandment in the law?" Jesus unhesitatingly quoted Deut. 6:5, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." However, realizing that one could demonstrate his love for God in only one way, Jesus then added, "And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

What did Jesus mean when he added the second commandment? Simply that if one truly loves God, he is bound to love others. Therefore, one's protestation that he truly loves God, which is not demonstrated in a life of love and service to others, will hardly carry conviction. A love-filled heart will be an unselfish heart, a compassionate heart, a helpful heart.

The story of the activity of the early Christians is interesting. We are told that they continued in fellowship, the breaking of bread and prayers, and that many wonders and signs were done. Many of them sold their worldly possessions and goods in order to provide for their brethren who were in need. Surely, this is a rebuke to the selfishness prevalent in our own day. As a result of their faith and belief they "took their food with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God and having favor with all the people."

Paul, in writing to the believers at Colossi, pointed out to them some of the fruits of Christian fellowship and love. "Put on, therefore . . . kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering." He points out that, before they were converted, they were guilty of the sins of anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, and lying. But, now that they were Christians, they were to drop all that, just as a man would drop a dirty old coat when a new one is offered, and seek to incorporate into their lives traits which would show to the world that they had put off the old life of sin and put on a new life in Jesus Christ. Above all, they must practice the love and charity toward each other which would bind them together in Christian fellowship. If they did not love one another, they would not be able to fellowship together and their efforts at establishing a church would fail.

Our passage, taken from I John, was written, of course, by John, the beloved disciple. The purpose of this gospel was to strengthen the faith of the Christians nearby, for whose benefit John set forth in memorable words the contents of his own personal faith. The epistle tells about the love of God, love among those who follow Jesus, Christ's sacrifice to atone for human sin, and the eternal life reserved for those who believe. John appealed to his readers to put away anger, hatred and dis-

Thank you, God, for my baby . . . and help me to be worthy of him. He is such a blessed little bit of humanity . . . so innocent . . . untouched by the many evils of the world.

There is so much to teach him, and You have chosen me to be his teacher. You have placed a soul in my clumsy hands, and I am humble before your gift.

How well I realize that in my wonderful task I need the help of the greatest Teacher . . . Your help. My constant prayer will be for guidance . . . so that I may teach my son what is right . . . so that I may set his tiny feet in the right direction on the path of life, and guide his dear little mind into the right channels.

And when the time comes, my son will go to Church . . . because the Church is Your home on earth, and there in Your presence all that I have tried to show him will have true meaning to him, and he will believe.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
 The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
