Colonial Features Savings On Foods For Holiday Picnics

Backyard chafe and molasses with picnic baskets to fill will find everything they need in a special feature of July 1st this weekend at Colonial Stores. Recognizing the value for outdoor eating which is coming to the country, Colonial is appealing to men and women shoppers with carefully low prices on every type of food needed for the long holiday weekend ahead. In the meat department alone, fryers, chickens, ham, lamb, "hot dogs" and sandwiches made all carry price tags that will make possible an economical Fourth of July picnic. Similarly low prices are being featured in the produce and vegetable departments and on "throw away" accessories such as paper napkins, plates, cups and other picnic requirements.

"It is always Colonial's policy to price our items to benefit with our slogan, 'You can't find till you have what you shop at Colonial,'" said R. J. Brinkman, manager of the operation for this area. "Therefore, this weekend, we are outdoing ourselves. We are prepared for one of the biggest weekends in our history."
