COLONIAL CUTS
PRICE ON RECORD
HAM SHIPMENT

J. M. Bloom, Colonial Stores Meat Buyer, said today that the company made a record purchase of hams, and that prices will be reduced substantially throughout all Colonial Stores this week.

Colonial had the opportunity to make a larger than usual purchase of King's Reliable, ready to eat hams, and Winslow's certified hams at a lower than average cost, he explained, and this means that customers throughout Virginia can enjoy this old favorite at "bargain prices".

The Colonial executive, who is in charge of the selection and buying of meats and poultry for a third of the company's territory, said he is as pleased with the quality and flavor of these hams as he is with the new low prices.

Other company officials pointed out that it is standard procedure with Colonial to maintain the lowest day-to-day prices possible on quality merchandise and that the special price reduction on hams is simply a continuation of that policy. They emphasized that Colonial's meat purchases of food distribution makes it possible to offer highest quality food items to the customer at the lowest possible price. Evidence of this, they said, is the fact that the company's profit is only one penny on each dollar of food sales.
