SENATOR Sam Ervin SAYS

Washington — Hearings have been held on appropriations for North Carolina water projects by the Senate Subcommittee on Public Works. Senator Jordan and I recently appeared before the Subcommittee in support of seventeen of these North Carolina projects of which fourteen are for surveys and studies connected with the development of our rivers and harbors, flood control, navigation and erosion prevention. The other three requests are for construction projects. The progress of North Carolina is vitally connected with the protection and development of the State's number one natural resource—water. The amount we requested for these public works is $3,149,800.

Mallory Rule Change Urged
On June 13th, I introduced a bill to make voluntary admissions and confessions in criminal proceedings and prosecutions in the courts of the United States and the District of Columbia admissible against defendants. The rising tide of crime within the District of Columbia points up once again the need for legislation to clarify the Supreme Court ruling of 1957 in the Mallory case. That ruling held inadmissible the voluntary statement of a convicted and self-confessed rapist because of the delay in taking him before a committing magistrate. The Mallory ruling and a prior decision in the McNabb case have more than any other business

4 3/4 MILLION PEOPLE OWN RURAL ELECTRICS

America's Rural Electric Systems are outstanding examples of free enterprise. More than 4 3/4 million shareholders have accepted the obligation of supplying themselves with electricity. No other business in the U.S. is owned by so many individuals.

Necessity forced these rural folks into the electric business. Established electric utilities shunned the job of serving these widely scattered rural users as unprofitable. As a result, the people organized themselves into non-profit groups—usually cooperatives—borrowed money from the Rural Electrification Administration, and built their own electric systems. Best of all, they've kept their credit good.

Since 1935, nearly 1,000 locally-owned and managed rural electrics have repaid almost $1 1/2 billion in principal and interest on over $3 1/2 billion REA loans.

We are proud to have played a part in this enviable record of free enterprise coupled with sound business management. Our rural electric cooperative, owned by 2900 member-consumers, has already repaid $532,000 in principal and interest on our REA loans.

Today we are busy increasing capacity of our lines to keep pace with our member-consumers' ever-growing demand for electric power.
