Game Of Happiness

Why is it that some people are usually happy and others usually depressed? Is there a certain individual, though relatively lacking in material wealth, perhaps also lacking in nature's physical endowments, nevertheless cheerful and merry, and able to enjoy every day, or most of it?

The experts tell us the happy individual is one who has developed a sound philosophy of life. That means, as we see it, a philosophy which takes into consideration on what we have to be thankful for.

It's true that we have our troubles. It's also true that many of us worry and fret because we can't make as much money as we would like to, or because we don't get ahead in the world as fast as we'd like to. And then there are many things which come along to irritate us.

And trivia—if not kept in perspective—can dominate one's thoughts and crowd out of one's personality the thankfulness and humble appreciation for the many blessings we enjoy. The key to contentment and happiness, then, is found in the state of mind—not the state of the bank account.

The Miracle Of Rain

Although man has made amazing scientific achievements, nature still puts on the greatest show on earth and exhibits miracles every day which put man's best efforts to shame.

Some people fail to recognize the miracles which occur around them every day. For example, take the occurrence of rain, upon which event the hopes of millions of farmers and others are hinged.

A farmer with a hundred acres of planted crops must have, of all things, a plentiful supply of water. If he receives a rainfall of one inch, which often occurs during the planting season, nature has dropped 2714300 gallons of water on his crops. And nature can accomplish this in just a few minutes.

Scientists who attempt to compute the tremendous forces involved in such an operation as a heavy rain are constantly amazed at the power of nature and the ease and gentleness which she usually does her job. If the reader will think about it, he too will be constantly amazed at the miracles which take place about him every day which are accepted as commonplace occurrences.

800 Million Would Die

Nikita Khrushchey recently told a Communist gathering in East Germany that 800 million people would die in a nuclear war between East and West. The Russian leader was arguing the Moscow line and attacking the Peking line, which calls for war against capitalism.

Khrushchey said the Russians had a new bomb so powerful it could not be used in Western Europe, for some of the effects would be felt in the Communist countries to the east. This bomb was manufactured, no doubt, with the United States in mind as a target.

But Khrushchey also admitted, in candid terms which were revealing, that the United States possessed 40,000 atomic or nuclear warheads and it was when referring to this huge stockpile of bombs that he said a war would kill 800 million people.

The most significant thing about the Khrushchey speech is that it was an admission of inferiority in numbers of nuclear warheads by the Russian leader.

The Khrushchey speech is reassuring to all those who shudder at the terrors of nuclear war. It is good to know the "other side" understands its terrors too, and that Communism's old line in favor of the use of force is being necessarily modified by the facts of the nuclear age.

CHEVROLET TRUCK QUALITY

You can see the difference wherever you look

If you believe various makes of trucks are pretty much alike, you aren't doing justice to your pocket-book. There are differences. A Chevrolet truck welcomes comparison. Look at the little things on it—latches, hinges, stitching in the upholstery. Notice how strong the tailgate is, the rubber encased chains that keep it from sagging. The body floor is made of select wood to eliminate the rust problem and give you better footing. The lower side panels are double-walled; you might dent the inside but it won't show through. Chevrolet designs suspension systems to fit your need. The light-duty type is strong on comfort. Another kind for heavier trucks stiffens up as you increase your load and vice versa. Make sense? If you are going to need a new truck this year, you should look at the quality Chevrolet has to offer. May we bring over a new '63 so you can examine it?

Sunday School Lesson

CHRIST NEEDS WORKERS

International Sunday School Lesson for February 10, 1963.

Memory Selection: "Truly, truly, I say to you, he who believes in me will abide in the works that I do; and greater works than these will he do, because I go to the Father." (John 14:12)

Lesson Text: Mark 6.

The purpose of our lesson today is to show how Jesus met physical and spiritual needs and to learn how we can carry on this ministry.

Standing at the center of this chapter is the story of Jesus sending his disciples to extend his work. And we are told that as they went they were endowed with power to do wonders. What was this disciple group? What was their task? Does this group and this task continue into our time? These questions, and their answers, are important for our understanding of a significant aspect of Jesus' ministry.

The disciple group is uniquely identified with Jesus Christ. It is called to share his work and his mission. And this call for disciples is still to be heard. Christ continues to invite men into this grand company of his followers. And he gives to those who respond even today a distinctive task. They are to express the meaning of the Kingdom through their lives. But what is this meaning? What are the disciples to make known? The Kingdom is expressed when modern disciples exhibit the character of Jesus. This means that the Christian is called to be a servant of all men, among other things. And every man we meet is our neighbor, and the next man we meet is our neighbor. The Christian can no more distinguish between man and man. He must be himself to each one, and each individual who is in need of which...

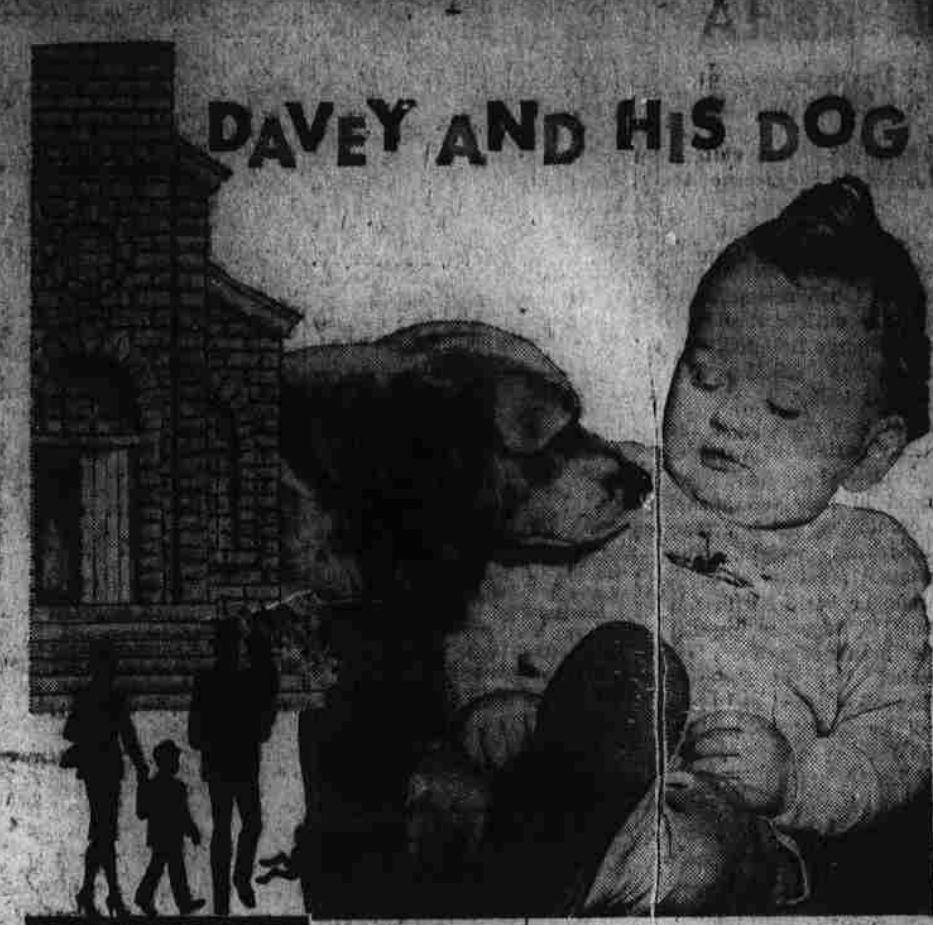

...as illustrated in the parable of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:30-35) we notice the priest to the Samaritan who was left for dead by the roadside. He passed by a priest, and then by a Levite. He offered no help until a Samaritan came to his aid. To Jesus' question, "Who was the neighbor?" the expected answer would be: the man who was helped. But Jesus applied the Samaritan as the neighbor.

Does not this mean that we are to answer first of all for ourselves? The neighbor is the one who helps. We are to be neighbors. We are not to hesitate and ask "Is that my neighbor?" Am I responsible for that person? The Christian's first question must be: "Am I a neighbor?" It has, indeed, been truly said: "Love does not seek out its equal; love creates its equal."

In calling attention to the fact that Christian love must be universal and yet be centered upon each person, we must remember also that it is often easier to love people in general than it is to love people individually. The crucial test of our Christian concern comes when we face a person to whom it is difficult to be a neighbor. Perhaps he is unappreciative or hostile or amused at our concern. Yet, to him, more than any other, we must be neighborly.

The Christian life is one of becoming conformed to Jesus Christ. That is, we are to mature by growing more like him. This challenge stands before us. But where is the power or the motive to fulfill this challenge? This is a gift of God. We are not able in our own strength to do these things, for our strength is blocked by our wills. And we do not will to be like Christ. Our wills need to be changed. Our love needs to be redirected from ourselves to God and to others. This change of will comes about when we are captured by Jesus Christ. When we have responded to his claim upon us, then we are able to respond to his love. We are able to be obedient and then we can will to do his will as his disciples.

What is the Christian to share with others? What is to be made known? It is precisely what has been made known to us in Jesus Christ. We are to speak of God's redemptive love, his complete giving of himself for all men, his desire for man's wholeness, his purpose of establishing his Kingdom in its fullness. We are to make this known by the way we live.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL

ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor out of which for the building of character and good citizenship. It is the workshop of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four chief reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
