

SENATOR Sam Ervin — SAYS —

Washington — On the eve of the Thanksgiving week-end recess, Congress paused to ponder the series of tragic events that have seen the death of one President and the coming into office of another. Historians have the awesome task of placing in perspective the series of occurrences that saw an assassin's bullet remove from life the being of John F. Kennedy. As of the moment, the mood of the Nation seems to be summarized in the words: "one touch of sorrow makes the whole world akin." This generation and those that follow it will remember the sorrow, and men and women years later will recall their stations on that fateful afternoon as the awful tragedy unfolded.

Out of the tragedy, our country has witnessed grandeur, too, in the marvelous courage and beauty and pathos of the late President's widow and children. It saw united as it has seldom since the burial of the Unknown Soldier the leaders and the ministers of the world as they stood side by side on the grassy slopes of Arlington overlooking our Capitol. It found Haile Selassie and Charles de Gaulle and others united in simple tribute to a fallen hero.

As the week wore on all the problems of the country remained as they have been — an enormous burden for the President and the Congress. Congress got a personal look into the thinking of the new President when he delivered his message to the joint session. I think it was significant and expected that President Johnson, who has been intimately acquainted with Congress and its workings for many years, would say: "Congress can expect the full cooperation of this Administration that the expenditures of your government will be administered with thrift." It was indicative of the practical sort of man the new President is that he would pledge that the "government will set an example for prudence and economy", and that he would restate that he "firmly believed in the independence and integrity of the legislative branch." "I promise you," he continued, "that I shall always respect this." I think these statements carry an assurance that will give the country much stability in a time of great stress.

Out of this tragedy has come a reaffirmation of our faith in constitutional government. It has demonstrated the marvelous wisdom of the men who founded our government and drafted our Constitution.

I think the Nation is fortunate that we have an able and experienced leader to guide our country in a most difficult time. President Johnson comes into office with perhaps the most profound knowledge of national problems of any Vice President who has ever succeeded to the Presidency under similar circumstances. I think the President is a leader who will seek to obtain attainable legislation, and that he will have a successful Administration.

This Is The Life

By DONALD R. THOMAS

There came a knock on the door. A woman opened it, and there stood a man who needed a shave, haircut, and clean clothes? "What do you want?" she snapped. "Could you please spare me something to eat?" the man asked. "Why don't you get a job?" she snapped. He was startled, and she said, "You don't have to make an excuse. I know your kind—I'll try and find something." She handed him a can of sardines and three cold biscuits. "You can have these," I was going to throw it out to the dogs anyhow. You have to eat it out there, I don't want you to mess up my house," she said. The next day he came back and knocked again. She opened the door and said, "What can I do for you?" He was clean shaven, had a haircut, and was wearing a new suit. "I want to pay you for the food you gave me yesterday." He had a good job but wanted to find out how his wealthy brother and sister would treat a tramp or Jesus. If they came to your door, how would you treat them? Do you love or hate? The Bible says "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." — Romans 13:9.

A man's first care should be to avoid the reproaches of his neighbors.

tions on anyone or unduly criticized. I would have said just what I have said if my preacher were involved. I think the most of the statements I have made can be proven by God's word, and I challenge anyone to prove otherwise. But if you think I've stuck my neck out or gone out on a limb (so to speak) I bow in humble submission to you and ask your forgiveness.

The best folks sometimes make mistakes or make errors in their judgment. The Bible speaks about putting stumbling blocks in the path of others. If we've been guilty along this line, let's pray that God may remove them and forgive us for it.

Some may think what I've said is out of date. I don't think anything that can be said about whiskey is ever out of date.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear and loving daughter and sister, Rachel Spivey, who was killed December 4, 1960 on her way back to college.

Little did we know when dawned that morning What sorrow the day would bring.

The end was sudden, the shock severe; To part from one we loved so dear.

She went away with a smile and happy; She said goodbye to all of us. Never did we think this was the last;

When her work on earth was done.

Gone but not forgotten, Mother, Daddy and Brother.
