

County Receives Fitzgerald Library

Rush M. Morton, State Chairman of North Carolina's Tribute to President John F. Kennedy for benefit of John Fitzgerald Kennedy Library in a letter to W. L. "Bob" Hollowell, chairman of the campaign in Perquimans County sent congratulations on going over the goal in Perquimans County. Governor Sanford and I are mighty pleased that Perquimans County has been credited with sending $400.00 for North Carolina's part of the Kennedy Library. The county goal was $200.00. Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy telephoned Governor Sanford and told him that of all that has been said and done, what the people of North Carolina have done is the nicest thing that has happened to her. Governor Sanford promised in his remarks to the President's mother at Chapel Hill. He told Mrs. Kennedy that the state pledges the full amount of its goal of $230,000.

Many counties are over their goals, and this will help raise some of the counties that are lagging. We will now concentrate on helping the counties that are most behind, in the hope they will go over the top.

IN MEMORY OF RALPH CHAPPELL

Seven years ago you whom we loved
Went to live with God above.
Little did we expect one so young would tread
In only one week of illness down that path to God.
We are glad that yesterday's memories lighten the sorrow
As we go through each tomorrow.
I cannot say, and I will not say,
That he is dead; he is just away!
With a cheery smile and a wave
of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land.

State Wool Pool Planned June 15

"The State Wool Pool will be held at Sermons Warehouse in Washington, N. C., on June 15. Those farmers in Perquimans County who would like to send their wool to the Wool Pool as we have done in the past will bring their wool to the Agricultural Building in Hertford on Monday morning, June 15, from 8:00 until 11:00 A. M.," states R. M. Thompson, County Extension Chairman. Mr. Thompson further states that the wool has to be in Washington, N. C., by 2:30 P. M., on Monday, as this is the specific time allotted to us this year.

The wool price this year is much higher than it was last year, with the price being about 12 cents per pound above the 1963 price. The price is as follows:

Clear Wool	71.46
Short, Lambs, Stained and Coarse	66.46
Reject Wool	64.46
Light Burry Wool	63.46
Medium Burry Wool	58.46
Heavy Burry Wool	53.46
Tags	14.00

(Handling Charges—1c lb.)
Farmers that will send their wool to this pool would save a lot of confusion if they would have their wool tied in bags and have the bags labeled with their name, the weight of each bag, and the number of bags on each tag. This makes the bookkeeping and keeping up with the wool much easier for those people that are handling the wool at the pool, because it is real easy to make a mistake and it has to be handled carefully to make sure each farmer gets all the money that he is entitled to for his wool.

"We hope that you will make arrangements to participate in this sale as we know that it has meant much to the farmers in the past, and if you have any questions concerning the marketing of this wool, please contact us," states Mr. Thompson.

Bailments And Sales Distinguished

Atkins took some corn to a mill for the purpose of having it ground into meal. He told Bailey, the operator of the mill, that he wanted to get back meal ground from the very corn that he brought and that he would be back in a week to pick up the meal. In the meantime the mill and its contents were destroyed by fire. The fire was not caused by any negligence on the part of Bailey. May Bailey be sued for the value of the corn delivered to him?

No. The transaction was a bailment. Atkins was a bailor and Bailey was a bailee. In a bailment the possession of personal property is delivered to the bailee, but the title of ownership of the property is retained by the bailor. The particular transaction was a bailment because Bailey agreed to return the identical property in an altered form. If property delivered to another under a bailment is lost or destroyed without the fault of the bailee, the loss falls upon the bailor, because it is his property that is lost. The risk of loss for the destruction of property, unless otherwise agreed, is upon him who has the title.

Suppose Bailey's mill had not been destroyed by fire. Could the creditors of Bailey have levied upon the corn brought to the mill by Atkins?

No. Creditors of Bailey cannot seize property in his possession that does not belong to him. Coble took some corn to Bailey's mill in exchange for some meal. There was no agreement or understanding that Coble was to get back meal from the very corn that he brought. Coble was to simply exchange his corn for meal, picking up the meal a week later. Before Coble returned for the meal, the mill and its contents were destroyed by a fire without negligence on the part of Bailey. May Coble sue Bailey for the meal that he did not receive in exchange for his corn?

Yes. The transaction was a sale or exchange. The title to the corn had passed to Bailey. It was property of Bailey as of the time of its destruction by fire. Coble may recover from Bailey the market value of the meal promised in exchange for the corn.

If the mill had not been destroyed by fire, creditors of Bailey could have levied upon the corn delivered by Coble. As of the date of delivery, it became the property of Bailey.

This Is The Life
By DONALD R. THOMAS
THE RICH POOL
A man's life doesn't consist in the amount of his possessions. A story of a rich man whose hand produced a greater harvest than he had room to store. "I will pull down my old barns and build bigger ones to store all my crops and goods. I will say to my soul, 'you have many goods laid up for many years, so you can take it easy now. Eat, drink and be merry.'" God told him that very night, "You fool, this night your soul shall be taken from you." Who then shall own these things you have stored up? You are rich in material things, but not rich toward God. So, beloved, do not be anxious about life, but about your soul. There's a better life in the next world if you have taken Christ Jesus as your savior. God wants you to have things, but seek Him first and He will give all these things to you. Your soul is very important to God and I want to see you saved. Christ is the One who saves and keeps. Take Him at His word because they are true. "What will it be, life everlasting or the lake of fire? It's up to you to choose. The Bible says, "Lay not up for yourself treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal."—Matt. 6:19.
