

KNOW YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Donald Morris, representative of the Social Security Administration, is in Hertford the 2nd and 4th Wednesdays of each month at Perquimans County Courthouse.

The Social Security Amendments of 1965 include several provisions especially for women, and it's important for women to know what these changes in the law can mean to them.

Besides health insurance for the aged, there are many major changes in the old-age survivors', and disability insurance program. Of these changes, three affect women directly, and all the others have a "woman's angle".

The provisions especially for women are: payment of reduced benefits to widows as early as the age of 60; wife's and widow's benefits for divorced women who were married for at least 20 years before the divorce; and benefits for women 72 or older who were not eligible for benefits before this because they or their husbands had not worked long enough under social security.

Less directly affecting women is the provision that allows for the payment of benefits to the children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers up to the age of 22, if the children are full-time students.

Information on these and other changes in the social security law is available at your Social Security Office. The people there will be glad to answer any questions you may have and provide you with explanatory material about the Social Security Amendments of 1965.

Voluntary Programs Successful

Growers participating in the 1965 Feed Grain Program earned $384,738 in diversion payments, and $138,168 in price support payments. These payments were earned by the diversion of 16,850 acres of land to conserving uses. This land would normally have been used to produce feed grain crops that are already in surplus supply. Payments were earned on 496 of the 930 feed grain farms in this county.

Wheat farmers earned $10,895 in diversion and price support payments on 67 farms.

Cotton growers participating in the Cotton Domestic Allotment Program earned $9,635 by electing to plant within the domestic allotment for their respective farms and contributed to the reduction of cotton production.

Excess Peanuts

Farm Operators that have excess peanut acreage are reminded that this acreage must be destroyed before harvest. We would like to complete disposition by September 24 in order that all peanut marketing cards may be issued as early as possible. The peanut marketing card cannot be issued for a farm until all excess acreage is destroyed.

Committee Elections

Ballots were mailed to all known eligible voters on August 31, 1965. Ballots are available for additional eligible voters (that failed to receive a ballot) at this office. Ballots MUST BE MAILED BY SEPTEMBER 10, 1965. The certificate on the envelope MUST BE SIGNED or the ballot will be ineligible.

Cotton History

We have several farms on which 75% of the cotton acreage was not planted this year. Regulations require that the 1966 Cotton Allotment be reduced on any farm not planting at least 75% of the allotment in the current year.

This reduction may be avoided if failure to plant was due to conditions beyond the control of the farm operator and a written application is filed with the county committee before September 15, 1965.

Corn loans are available at $1.21 per bushel through May 31, 1966 on all eligible corn stored in acceptable facilities. For further information, contact this office.

A. T. Banks recently constructed some ditches with a dragline on one of his farms. Herbert Chappell, Walter Dail and A. W. Lane are planning to construct a group drainage project.

Melvin Forehand says that the dragline ditch he constructed this spring did a good job of taking care of the water during the big rains this summer.

Some of the corn fields are looking good where the corn has been picked and the stalks shredded with a rotary mower. This residue when left on the surface of the land will provide good protection to the soil during the winter months.

Philip Thach has a nice border of shrub lespedeza. This shrub lespedeza was seeded approximately three years ago on a spoil bank along the edge of his woods.

Senator Jordan Viewing End Of 89th Session

By SEN. B. EVERETT JORDAN

WASHINGTON. — It appears that Congress will be able to adjourn by the end of September, now that decisions have been made not to bring up for action three highly controversial legislative proposals.

The proposals which have been set aside until the next session of the Congress are measures that would increase minimum wages and expand coverage of the wage and hour law, federalize the state unemployment compensation programs, and re-align Congressional districts.

Shrub lespedeza seed are relished by quail. Quail need food every day. Most farms have too little at some time of the year—winter—spring, or fall. Many shrub lespedeza seeds remain on the ground for 12 to 24 months thus providing food all year.

"We cannot afford to curtail soil conservation, either in the East or the West—it is vital to the future of our farm areas, and though you may live in a city, what happens to the land of your country touches you as closely as if you were a farmer."

Earlier this year, the House of Representatives voted to repeal Section 14 (b), and it appears that the battle over the issue in the Senate will be hard and close.

I have had a great deal of mail on this subject during the current session, most of it in opposition to repeal. I have always been a strong supporter of right-to-work laws, and I certainly plan to do everything I can to preserve them in the future.

Another extremely important question facing Congress is farm legislation, which includes the cotton program. The one-price cotton program, which means so much in our efforts to increase the use of cotton and thereby help keep the textile industry going at full capacity, expires next year.

We are making every effort to have the one-price cotton principle preserved in the omnibus farm bill which is scheduled to be acted on by the Senate during the next week.

The wise man will want to be ever with him who is better than himself.

—Plato.
